Follow the latest daily buzz with buzzFeed Daily Newsletter! The new year is the beginning and an opportunity to get quiet, slow down and be deliberate about what you want your next 365 days to be. As an entrepreneur, you'll probably do it for your business, but are you doing it for your life? A year ago I created a tool to help me understand where I was and where I wanted to go. It was a wonderful experience and so now I'm happy to share it with you. Filling this one sheet of paper was incredibly refinement to me. As soon as I finished it, I put it on my desk where I would see it every day. Within 3 months, all my goals for the year were met - even a big intimidating one that I was afraid to call. But here's the thing - it wasn't a job - instead it felt like magic. The act of recording things helps us to own our way. Our words and our thoughts are powerful things and this tool can put them to work for you. Here's what this process is designed for this: Clarify and understand what directs you to create an inventory of your life (today as it is now) to set your intentions for what you want to create (in the future) Get honest about what challenges you face it is not a complicated process - but it can be. It can be joyful or it can be painful. It's different for everyone. Despite everything, I hope this tool brings you clarity. Feel free to share with others. And I hope you enjoy the journey. I did this a long time ago when I needed a booth to hold up the Ocarina Tabs that I had printed out. It's pretty effective. One of my friends gave me a stand and I decided to make it a bit so he could keep himself. I tilted the bottom pieces and glued a thin piece of cardboard to the bottom to help keep things going. Then I just glued the bottom 2 things to a pair of wooden blocks. I'm sorry if you came here looking for a homemade booth that you could do as well. Trust me, I tried to make one and it never came out straight until I got this piece. So if for any reason you want to turn a note booth app into an almost portable music booth, I hope it helps. Dynamic signs are musical signs used to indicate how much note or phrase should be performed on. Dynamic signs dictate volume (volume or softness), but also a change in volume over time (gradually louder or gradually softer). For example, volume can change slowly or dramatically, at different speeds. Dynamic signs can be found on music sheets for any instruments. Instruments as different as cello, piano, French horn and xylophone can all play notes in different volumes and thus are subject to dynamic signs. No records confirming who the first composer used or invented dynamic signs, but Giovanni Gabrieli was one of the first users of musical notations. Gabrieli was a Venetian composer Renaissance and early stages of the Baroque era. During the romantic period, composers began to use dynamic signs more and increase their diversity. The table below lists widely used dynamic signs.
