Given our existing user base of more than 730,000 customers and how re-signed our previous campaign is, we have created a pre-registration process to determine who will gain access when the investment will live on July 31. In April this year we ran a campaign that promised the first 5,000 Premium members early access to our crowdfunding campaign. We have contacted all the first 5,000 premium members to gather interest, and those who have pre-registered previously (or those who pre-register between Monday 24 - 28 July) early access to our invest page from Monday 31 July. Once they have had the opportunity to invest, we will open the possibility for more Revolut users on the investor list on Wednesday August 2. These customers will be added to the newsletter and randomly selected to ensure that everyone has a fair chance! When it is filled, we will stop sending invitations and the round will be is there a limit on the amount I can invest? We want to give everyone the opportunity to invest in our future. Thus, the minimum investment amount is only 10 euros! Premium members will have a maximum investment amount of 2,000 euros, and Standard users will have a maximum amount of 1,000 euros.Who can invest? You must be a Revolut user to invest in Revolut. You can sign up for Revolut for free through the Google Play Or iOS App Store. What happens after pre-registration? If you do so in our investment round, we will email you on Wednesday August 2nd with a link to our investment page. Please keep an eye on your mailbox so you don't miss it. How can I actually invest? We partner with one of Europe's leading crowdfunding platforms, Seedrs. You will need to create an account on Seedrs here to invest. If your name appears next on the list, we will send you an email with a link to our investment page. We advise you to set up an account with Seedrs before the investment round goes live to avoid potentially missing out because you have to sign up for the platform first. How can I make a comeback? Investors will receive Revolut shares in exchange for their investments. If Revolut makes an exit further down the line through an IPO or a trading sale, if the company's valuation has increased, then you can make a profit from your investment. When investing in early stages of a business like Revolut, investors should assume that their shares are illiquid and that there is no easy way to sell shares until there is an exit event like an IPO or sale. The Seedrs secondary market is a place where investors buy and sell shares from each other. Currently, only existing shareholders in the business have the right to buy shares. The market is open for one week, starting on the first Tuesday of each month for investors to list their shares for other investors to buy. Not all stocks will be eligible on the secondary market, and even if they are, the ability to buy and sell shares will depend on demand. Investors should not assume that an early exit will be available simply because there is a secondary market. What fees do seeders charge investors? Fees are only levied on investors if the businesses they invest in increase in value and have an exit event (e.g. IPO, trading, etc.). Seedrs charges a fee of 7.5% of any return (i.e. over-capital invested) on investments made by Seedrs as a nominal. They do not charge any permanent administration or management fees for actions as a candidate. How to make an investment in Seedrs?1. Click here which you will receive by email 2. All investments carry varying degrees of risk, and investing in early-stage and growth-oriented enterprises is no different. The main risk associated with investing is that the business will simply fail and investors don't #146 to get their money back. Illiquidity is another consideration because even if the business succeeds, investors are unlikely to receive dividends or be able to sell their shares within a number of years. There is also a risk of dilution: if the business requires further capital in the future (highly likely scenario), and issues more shares in exchange for that capital, the percentage of shares held by previous investors will decrease.
