1 Name the button in the upper left corner A, the top right corner is called B, the bottom left is called C, and the bottom right is D. 2 Name the watch in the lower middle of 'L' for 'Light'. 3 Click 'C', or mode button, 4 times. You have to end up on a setting that has the letters AL at the top and the image of the bell. 4 Click on 'D' until you find an unused slot in which you want to place the alarm clock. Baby-G watches have five of these slots. Start with '1' and go one by one as you add more alarms. 5 Keep down on 'A' until your watch beeps once. Now there should be several numbers on the screen. 6 Click on the C button to switch between hours and minutes. The watch is the furthest to the left and you will know that you are on it when those numbers flash. Same for minutes, but on the far right. 7 Choose at what hour you want the alarm to go off. Click on the B button to add more hours and D to pick them up until you get the number of hours you want. 8 Swap for minutes and use the same technique as you did to change the clock to set minutes time. 9 Click on the A button to remove it in changing mode. Now you will only look at the alarm. 10 Click on the B button to turn on the alarm if it's not on. You can tell if it is on by looking at the light below ALM. If it's on fire, the alarm goes off. 11 Click on 'C' until you return to the homepage and your alarm clock is set! Add a new question question How can I tell if I set the alarm for the morning or evening? If your time does not show morning and evening, then your watch uses a 24-hour clock. If it shows 1:00, that is 1:00 am, but 13:00 1:00 pm question How can I turn off the alarm on my Baby G clock? Click on the B button to turn on the alarm if it's not working yet. You can tell if it is on by looking at the light below ALM. If it's on fire, the alarm goes off. The question is how can I change PM to AM on Baby G Watch? If you just keep moving through the rooms and you end up changing it from AM to PM. There are four main buttons on the watch. They may be labeled differently than lower, but they all serve the same function once you put the watch in editing mode: Adjust - Upper Left Corner Watch. Used to put the watch into editing mode. Reverse - Upper right corner of the watch. Used to move back a single value (e.g. time zone, hour, etc.). Forward - the bottom right corner of the clock. Used to move a single value forward (e.g. time zone, hour, etc.). Mode - Lower left corner of the watch. Used to cycle through options on the watch. 2 Tap and hold the Adjustment button for three seconds. It's a button in the top left corner of the watch's face. After three seconds, you should see one of the elements on the face of the watch begin to blink. 3 Press the mode button several times until Seconds start flashing. The Mode button is at the bottom left of the face of the watch. As soon as the number representing the number of seconds starts flashing, you can continue. 4 Reset seconds before the current time. Press the Reverse or Forward button in the top or bottom right corner of the watch until seconds are matched by the current time (e.g. 30 seconds). 5 Select the value of the minutes. Click the mode button again to select the number that represents the minutes. 6 Change the value of minutes up to a minute before the current time. You can do this by clicking the Reverse or Forward button. Installing minutes up to a minute before the current time will automatically synchronize minutes when seconds reaches 60 again. 7 Select Hour. Click Mode again until the current hour is selected. 8 Change the Hour for the current hour. Click Reverse or Forward to go to the current hour (e.g. 6). If you use 12-hour hours on the clock, make sure the time of day (represented by AM and PM) is correct. If this is not the case, you will have to cycle 12 times to get to the right time. 9 Adjust any flashing options. You can push the mode button to loop through other options that you look at, and use reverse/forward buttons to adjust them as needed: Time zone - It tends to appear at the top of your face watch. Keep in mind that the time zone will affect the current hour. DST - You can turn your watch on or off. This will allow the time of your clock to reset based on daylight saving time. 12H or 24H - This setting will allow you to choose between a 12-hour time (e.g. AM and PM) and a 24-hour time (e.g. 06:00 to 6am, 6:00 to 6 p.m.). Light - On a Baby G watch that has lights built in, you may be able to set a few seconds for which the light displays. Date - Usually set up a month and a day for supported hours. 10 Click the adjustment button. Adjustment. Set the time of your Baby G watch to match the chosen time. Some watch models, especially analog-digital, may need to hold Adjust for a few seconds before the time is set. The hands of analog-digital models will be automatically adjusted at the right time. Add a new question question How can I illuminate 3 smaller round windows? The windows are so dark that I can't read the display. Sadly, no. The only thing you can do if you've had a watch for some time is get the new batteries to put in. The question is How to stop the hourly beep? You need to turn off the "Sig" mode. Click the mode button (located in the bottom left corner) several times until you reach the opportunity to view the alarm. Click on the Search button or the bottom left button to go through all the alarms until you are on SIG. Stop there and press the Adjust button (top left) to switch the hourly beep settings or turn it off. The question is how can I set the alarm for Baby G-shock? Go to the alarm and press the adjustment button once. However, holding on to it will regulate the alarm time and it will blink after the beep. The question is how can I adjust for daylight saving time on my Baby G Watch? Just adjust the hour in any direction you need. The minutes will be the same. The question is how can I change the time when I hold the top left adjustment button and it doesn't work? You may have to go to the main screen where it shows the date. When I needed to set the clock an hour ago at the end of daylight saving time, I had to go to the screen date and hit the set-up there and then start adjusting everything as needed. The question is Where can I buy a Baby G watch? You can buy them on Amazon, eBay etc. you can also get them at your local watch store, although availability may be limited depending on where you live. The question is, how can I set up analog time to match the digital time on my watch? You'll have to set up both analog and digital times separately to fit each other (I've personally learned that the hard way). The question is How can I switch my baby G from military time? Just press the bottom right (referred to in this article as Forward). Pressing this button switches the time between the standard and the military. The question is how to set the day on a Baby G watch if the date is correct? If the date, time and time zone are correct, the day will be right. Ask a question Thank you! Thank you! Thank you! Hubby ordered from Amazon this Baby-G ladies watch, came straight from the factory in Japan with a fortune of coins and instructions in Japanese. Now I understand why the coin was sent! ... More Whoever did it is amazing! I have had watches for years and did my husband fix it every time! Love is a step-by-step direction. Thank you. ... More thanks, I had trouble tweaking my baby G watch, but as I follow your steps in this article, I got it fixed. Thank you! I bought my Baby G on Gumtree. The seller lost instructions for it, so this article was perfect for me. You needed to create a gift and it was easier to follow than the guide. (The text in the manual is too small.) Very helpful. My mom wanted me to do it because she couldn't. I got 10 pounds because I was able to do it. Helped me set my watch at the right time. Thank you. It walked me through exactly how to set the time. It is very easy to follow the instructions. Share your story
