Hi all I installed domin8r winch about 6months and the other day I tried to spool, but the control box solenoid just kept clicking does not send a message to winch. Just put in a brand new solenoid and it still does. any help would be very appreciated, I know you hear clicking, but do not exclude the remote control as well, use and hands or wireless. Check your Earthing to Winch - have a nice great heavy cable running from your winch to your battery neg and that you get 12V out to your winding. Cheers checked all the cables and they were okay, tried both a portable and wireless remote control. im thinking captured aswell dno67, undo this long screw he rusted all over his only 6months old and haven't even been used on the tracks yet, giving the 4wdsupa call center tomorrow that or sure good luck with the supa center, don't tell them that you removed the screw to find rust. Good luck with the center supa, don't tell them that you removed the screw to find rust. The external bolt will not matter how it is required to be screwed and unscrewed to put the ground on memory. The armiatue and brushes and brush holders will be rusty, it might only work on 3 brushes, maybe 2-1/2 before it finally come out on it. Even if they replace this it will only have the same issue again because obviously its poorly designed. So forget about the warranty on the new (if they replace) and restore yourself, as in the links I put in the past, which is in the DNO link. They don't cover the water entrance, but it's there discretion you might have been lucky... Swaggie, I'm 100% sure he had another post here saying he unscrewed a long screw from the lid to find rust and had to call the supa center this week. That was the reason for my response. I'm damn sure of that..... And I pulled off a new domin8r and everything was ready, starting to rust out of the box. That's why I always say that vincha should be used on a regular basis, and its like just winding it in one go Month. Edit, I think I'm losing it ... but this post is back there now from AussieAndo. It's really really really me around, but I swear that the post wasn't there when I checked it twice, reading all the posts before replying to this post. Last edited: Aug 25, 2014 Yes. I use my vinchlo about twice a month and it works very well. Winch out..... Winch in..... Free reels out..... Now all I need is something to win as I get a little tired of winching myself in.
