Even if being in a relationship with cousins is a considered taboo now. Back in the 18th century when the film was set it was perfectly normal and common for people to do it. This is a story of natural love, as the main characters were shipwrecked, although the information displayed here can be considered graphic or shocking. This is what will really happen if a situation like this happens, since the characters do not know that love is physically or mentally, since they have been shipwrecked since childhood. A teenage girl has her first period. Being on a desert island from her youth, she did not understand what was happening. There are several sex scenes throughout the film with a few more graphic, then others, since Brooke Shields was a minor at the time the scene wasn't too graphic. After these scenes, usually kiss, cuddle, lay them on top of each other, touching, and kissing different parts of their body, especially when Emmeline is slowly kissing down Richard's bare chest. Throughout the film the two leads look at each other in easy sexual ways, which the girl noticed as she stared at his muscles, they also spy on each other. And at some point, while the girl is asleep, the boy comes up to her and starts smelling her hair, the girl wakes up before he can do anything else. Full frontal nudity of Brooke Shields' double. Richard comes out of the sea naked and goes to the camera. His whole body is silhouetted, but his penis is quite visible. Significant nudity, both male and female, is often full of frontal, but most of the time it is in underwater sequence breasts and genitalia were seen in all the swimming scenes. The pubic hair is clearly visible on Richard's Out of the water There is a masturbation scene. This scene is seen from behind, and a reasonable distance, Richard's hand is seen moving up and down before it is interrupted. There is a love scene that is actually in a few short scenes. The Blue Lagoon of Henry de Vere Stacpoole Blue Lagoon is the story of two cousins, Dickie and Emmeline Lestrade, stranded on a remote island with a beautiful lagoon. As children, they care for Paddy Button, a pre-baby sailor who drinks himself to death after just two and a half years in paradise. Terrified and confused by the terrible corpse of people, children run to another part of the island Palm Tree. Within five years they grow and eventually fall in love. Sex and birth are as mysterious to them as death, but they manage to copulate instinctively and conceive a child. The birth is particularly remarkable: fifteen-year-old Emmeline, alone in the jungle, loses consciousness and wakes up to find a boy on the ground next to her. Calling the boy Hannah (an example of Stacpoole's penchant for gender reversals), the Lestranges live in family bliss until they are unexpectedly banished from their tropical Eden.
