If you are a fan of racing and cars, this is a great and fun way to experience both at the same time. Tight grip and sweat shiny on your forehead, you keep your attention on the road. Care on the tarmac at more than 300 km/h, you approach the turn, which will definitely hit you with a few G as you perform the accuracy of the drift. The step on the brakes was miscalculated and you suddenly hit the railing, the car crunching into a pile of rubber and steel. Of course you'll probably be in the hospital right now if you don't play racing sim. Here's how fascinating some of these android games are. While you don't get that sudden rush of adrenaline from the actual performance of the race car, the equipment for Android phones and tablets these days is now capable enough in providing realistic racing scenarios for the couch racer in you. Prepare the processors, and the revs of your RAM cause here come the apps, Will overload your engines and give you the diesel fix you need. Note: Many of these games are demanding in terms of devices that they can work on on upfront costs of owning them. If you have cash and a higher end device, you'll have no problem grabbing the name below. Otherwise, check the market description and check them first to see if the game works for you.1 Asphalt 6: Adrenaline HD ($6.99)Asphalt 6 is the best racing game on the market in my opinion. Advance your racing career by winning races and challenges and get rewarded with real cars like Lamborghinis and Ferraris and better customization kits. On top of that, you can even drift during the races and also take a beat to your opponents to make sure they feel the pain. NEED FOR SPEED™ Shift ($2.99) This racing classic has finally come to a mobile phone, giving you some of the best tracks to get your tires burning. If you want to know what it's like to race against a cocklot rivals and have a nitro running through your veins, that's one game you should really get.3 Raging Thunder 2 ($4.99, lite version available) This is not your usual street race. Walk through temples, beaches and even the Great Wall, making sure your opponents don't make it to the finish line in one piece. What's more, you can go head-to-head against your friends via online multiplayer.4. Asphalt HD ($4.99, free version available)Want adrenaline, but your phone can not handle asphalt 6? No problem, Asphalt HD is here. Built for lower end phones, this is the same name burning roads tweaked to run better on lower processors. Even so, it is still as engaging and goes head-to-head against Adrenaline as the most promising racing game on the market. Extreme formula (free) I'd rather drive real cars myself, but this futuristic take on the usual racing game is a bit refreshing. Use cutting-edge fuel sources, high-tech tuning systems and advanced vehicles to further develop your racing career. It has a smooth maneuvering system and a one-touch drift, making it easy to play from the start but hard to master. Best of all, it's free.6. GT Racing: Motor Academy Free (free) If you want a race but don't have the bucks to do it right now, you can try GT Racing. You can prove yourself by completing the game unaided or just getting a little extra boost by using in-app money purchases to align your car and promote your career faster. Make sure you have a quick connection as well since it needs a hefty download at the beginning to set everything up.7. Drift Mania Championship ($1.02) You have to give props to dedicated developers. Did you know that this app was developed in alongside a professional drifting association? And yes, I know, It's not a racing game per se, but who can't resist doing some smooth drifting on a specially made track, chained combo with every successful drift? Focus and control when burning rubber and who knows, you can even win the DMCC.8. CUP. Wave Blazer ($2.99, lite version available)Who is available)Who races should include cars right? Wave Blazer lets you rip through the average waterways of the world with a 4000 HP boat under you. Battle AI or challenge a living breathing person at the other end through online multiplayer. It's tricky to control the speeding of watercraft, to say the least, but one thing I love about this game: awesome airtime on almost every corner.9. Riptide GP ($6.99)More water racing action here, courtesy of Riptide. Keep your cool while plowing the trail through the track with speeding water skis, darkening opponents with storm speed and amazing stunts. Best to play on Tegra devices, it has all the physics you need from water movement to real reflections. It probably has one of the best graphics games found on the Android platform, but it lacks a bit of a challenge, with only 4 tracks.10. Speed Forge 3D ($2.90, demo version is available)Another game with very smooth 3D graphics, Speed Forge impresses with its renders, but not so much on the gameplay. However, its Podracer feel and physics game will allow you to fly through tight corners and roar through right away. It even has a feedback vibe, so you really feel when you hit the corners. TurboFly 3D ($1.99, demo version is available)It's for the racer of the future and the vehicles here actually handle more like jet fighters, especially when they start flying off rocks. Extremely smooth graphics and online games are two things that will make you continue to play this game.
