Vicki Dozier | Lansing State Journal EAST LANSING - Emery made a beeline for the cookie bin. The 8-year-old Chesapeake was ching. He looked at the basket on the pig's ear. Then he returned to the cupcake baskets, made his choice - cookie lovers liver - and immediately devoured it. Its owner, Adam Dobbrastine, corralled the energetic dog away as he nabbed another goodness. Emery seems to be feeling at home at Four Paws Dog Bakery in East Lansing, a family-owned business that opened in October. That's exactly what they're going for. Dobbrastine, 33, co-owns a doggy boutique with her mother, Robyn; Father, Dale; Sisters Sarah and Lisa, and his wife, Amber.they're a family of dog lovers. Photographs of dogs were displayed on the walls of the store. Lots of dogs. And almost everyone belongs to the Dobbrastine family. Adam owns three, Robyn and Lisa each have two. And Sarah owns 12, mostly huskies. She runs the organization Second Chance Musers, a team of rescued dogs who have recreational dog sledding, and has been dog sledding for more than 10 years. There are days when up to four of her dogs are in the store. This was really a dream come true for me. do something dog-owned, said Robyn Dobbrastine. My knees were too bad for work, so I got her best unpaid help. Robyn used to drive in a building on Haslett Road on his way to work as a medical assistant at Capital Internal Medicine Associates. The store has been available for a while with a rental check out up front. When Sarah moved back to Lansing from Traverse City last year, discussions about opening a store turned more serious. They contacted the owner of the building. They opened on Oct. The dog-friendly store is full of treats every dog would like to woof down. The smell of cranberry, mint and liver is in the air. The baskets are filled with different shapes and flavors of biscuits at the height of the nose. And it's perfectly fine if the dogs help themselves. The treats they sell are made in Traverse City by another company, Dog Bakery, using only fresh and healthy ingredients. Robyn says he's trying to get a license from the state of Michigan to make some of the baked goods on his own. But they love a dog bakery. There are no preservatives in any of the cookies, and when you look at every basket, every cookie has a sign that gives you all the ingredients, said Robyn Dobbrastine. There's about 30 calories in the cookie. Some biscuits have meat - like bacon and egg piglets. You can see cranberries, blueberries, sunflower seeds in other cookies. They have vegetarian toy. Gluten-free pastries. And there's a line of wheat-free that a dog bakery does. Decorated biscuits are matte in yogurt and chocolate is a hood - which dogs can eat. One wall is lined with sweaters (yes, there are some MSU sweaters), fleece-lined winter coats, rain slickers. For a picky puppy, there's a product called BakeNShakes. If you have a real picky eater, there is a Lake Michigan whitefish flavor and cheese flavor, said Robyn Dobbrastine. Just sprinkle it on their food and it helps them have a taste for what they're trying to get them to eat as their main meal. It's organic and it's all good for dogs. For dogs who eat too fast, they offer slow feeder food. And there's a little cat horn. It was absolutely amazing from the first time I walked in, said former Lansing resident Kat Lusch. I had my dog Nakoma with me and it was very warm and welcoming. They had all kinds of unique pet items, and locally produced treats. The quality was such that you could feel safe feeding the puppy, instead of big brands. She was stunned to have bowls of water laid out for the dogs and that four-legged customers were free to roam the store. He was able to choose what toys he wanted, she said. Photo Happy Tails Photography. Owners of small businesses are a special breed. They are full of passion, taking risks, creating jobs and bringing new ideas and life to a part of the city. On Saturday, October 25th, Luisa, Jessica and Michelle Martins brought their dreams to life, opening two new businesses: Four Paws Up Bakery & Boutique (358 Main Street) and Dream Land Arts & Crafts for Kids (358 Main Street) in Fairhaven, Massachusetts. The businesses are on the same block as the old Bijou Theatre. Four Paws Up Bakery & Boutique offers locally produced items with ingredients listed on containers. Photo: Michael Silvia. Four Paws Up Bakery & Boutique offers a range of cat and dog food that are locally baked or purchased with several organic offerings. Walk in the store to top the treats and you may want to taste the treats yourself! Bring your pet to visit and they will be in heaven with scents and wonderful colors. In addition to the totes, Four Paws Up is a boutique offering pet clothes, accessories and toys. Check out their Facebook page for specials, new offerings and promotions. The photo section is frequently updated, showcasing their treats, clothes and accessories. Dream Land Arts & Crafts for Kids offers activities for children and a place for birthday parties in Fairhaven, MA. Dream Land Arts & Crafts for Kids offers a space for children to have fun. Children can build their own stuffed animals, mosaics, candles, plaster art, jewelry and more. Dream Land plans to offer face painting, movie nights and dance nights soon. It's a great place for parents to have kids or even host a birthday party with up to 25 kids. Check out their Facebook page for special events. The family owned and operated by Four Paws Up Bakery & Boutique unique is their devotion to either baking a pet or buying goods from American manufacturers and making the most of local retailers in Boston, Cape Cod, Wareham or Rhode Island. Luisa, Jessica and Michelle are Fairhaven residents with a love of pets and children. Spend a few minutes with them and you will see their passion for offering quality treats and a child friendly environment. Our ingredients are always listed near the items, said Luisa Martins. It is important that our customers know exactly what their loved ones are eating. We are also proud that our things are produced locally and ecologically. Michelle has a special connection with pets. I used to help abandoned pets in Portugal and I loved my three years of volunteering at the Fairhaven animal shelter. Stop by soon to check out Fairhaven's newest business. Bring your leash friends and/or children for a great family-friendly but don't be surprised if you have trouble getting them out of the shops!
