Tottenham Hotspur have established themselves as one of the Premier League's big six under Mauricio Pochettino and even reached the UEFA Champions League final last season. With the move to the new White Hart Lane full, the club appears to be moving in the right direction. However, the form during the first half of the 2019-20 season was not up to scratch, and Pochettino got the sack in November. In year a move that you usually only see in the famous football simulation himself, Jose Mourinho entered the club's hot seat. Can you do better than special though? Here's our final guide to supremacy at Spurs in Football Manager 2020! Club vision REASONABLE: Spurs don't expect miracles in their first season in charge. This new feature was a great success in FM20. This is both a short-term and long-term set of goals for the club under your leadership set out by the board. It includes game style goals, financial goals and competition results, with increased expectations during each year of your tenure. Tottenham place a heavy emphasis on club culture, with no less than seven goals you have to kick! The signing of young English players is a major theme, with improvements needed for the club's youth facilities. You also have to play an attacking, possession-based style of football that is doable. For competition, the goals are quite high. Reaching Champions League knockouts is fair, as is finishing in the top four, but reaching the FA Cup final won't be easy. Spurs have won the oldest football trophy of them all eight times in their history and you get close to winning it on the ninth occasion for Daniel Levy and co. to be happy. Tactical style and formation of POSITIVE APPROACH: It is best to opt for attacking tactics for Spurs in FM20. Tottenham can play different systems but controlling possession is probably your best approach for most matches. Tiki-taka and fluid counterattacks are also recommended by your assistant manager, but the first is perhaps too positive and the second is too conservative. 4-2-3-1 Broad may not be the recommended formation, but that's what Tottenham play and it allows you to use most of your best players at the same time. 5-2-2-1 is a recommended formation, but it is too many central players. Given that you have three available slot tactics, you should prepare both. Hugo Lloris' starting XI is in goal, with the back four of Danny Rose, Jan Vertonghen, Toby Alderweireld, and Serge Aurier. Victor Wanyama and Tanguy Ndombele are your best choice for two central midfielders. Christian Eriksen is your best AMC, with Lucas Moura on the right and Hyun Min Son on the left. Harry Kane is your only forward. Your seven on the bench should be Michelle Vorm, Davinson Sanchez, Ben Davis, Eric Dier, Dele Alli, Giovanni Lo Celso and Eric Tottenham have a solid squad and one that is able to challenge for Champions League spots and threaten the cups. There's a good spread where the best talent is concentrated though, so picking the best XI isn't too much of a problem. Player Pos Age CA/PA Best Stats Harry KaneAM (C), ST26177/18520 penalty taking, 19 finishes, 19 DefinitionChristian EriksenM (C), AM (LC)27168/17817 long shots, 17 natural fitness, 17 techniqueHeung-Min SonM (R), AM (RL), ST 27160/16117 off the ball, 17 acceleration, 16 finishingHugogo LlorisK32157/17018 Bravery 18 rushing, 17 reflexesJan VertonghenD (LC)32157/16517 tackle, 16 header, 16 positioningDenders, midfielders, forwards and even their goalkeeper features among Spurs' five most rated players. Harry Kane is unsurprisingly an outstanding talent, starting FM20 as one of the best forwards in the game and has the potential to improve further. The young talent Pochettino made full use of Spurs' youth facilities during his time at the club and you should as well. Not only is it a goal for the vision of the club, but it will also serve you well. The such as Sol Campbell, Jamie Redknapp, Ledley King and, of course, Kane, all came from Hotspur Way. Troy Parrott - CA 2 stars (107), PA 3.5 stars (150-180) NEXT ROBBIE KEANE: Parrot has the highest potential of any of Spurs' youth. At 17, Troy Parrott has plenty of time to grow and improve, and he can be a superstar within 10 years. The Irishman should be given minutes under the age of 23 and possibly during League Cup meetings too. In the future, Parrott must be overpowered by a Ligue 1 or Championship club to gain first-team experience. Credit is the best option as Parrott won't get many minutes at Spurs thanks to the level that Kane is working on. Ryan Sessegnon - CA 2.5 (129), PA 4.5 star (140-170) REALISING HIS POTENTIAL: Sessegnon is tipped to be England's regular in the future. Ryan Sessegnon has been hailed as the next great talent in English football while at Fulham. While the spotlight has been different of recent times, Sessegnon is a superb asset for the Spurs' team, being able to play all over the left side of the pitch. Strangely, despite the higher star rating, Sessegnon has a lower PA than Parrott. While Sessegnon is ready for first-team performances with the bat, as highlighted by the greater presence of the Englishman under Mourinho. Jack Clarke - CA 1.5 stars (100), PA 3 star (130-160) ONE FOR FUTURE? Jack Clarke could become a regular for Spurs in the future. At FM20, Clarke starts the game on loan at Championship club Leeds. Clarke didn't get many chances at Elland Road, so has since moved to CPR. The English striker is still one of the best young talents in Tottenham's ranks though, able to reach the level that the son is now. It's worth saving Clark Clarke on loan for the next few seasons as it will take 3-4 years for him to be at Premier League level. However, Clarke has big stars for the striker from the start, 16 acceleration, 15 dribbling and 14 technique (among others) won't do him any harm at all. TRANSFER goal FINANCIALLY SOLID: As expected, Spurs are looking for just fine money-wise over the next few seasons. Starting transfer budget: 30 million pounds Remaining salary budget: 201,000 pounds a week As you would expect from a club run by Daniel Levy, financial forecasts for Spurs look very good for the foreseeable future. Despite the new stadium, the club's bank balance is expected to grow to more than 800 million euros by the end of 2021-22. Expenditure is expected to increase, but so turnover. The transfer budget is projected to rise to more than 100 million euros by the summer of 2022, with wage costs remaining almost unchanged for the next three seasons. Spurs have many average central midfielders but none that stand out positively apart from Christian Eriksen. While Ndombele will improve in the coming seasons, it doesn't hurt to have another young M (C) out of the way. DUTCH DELIGHT: van de Beek can make sure your midfield is for years to come. You'll have a budget of around 25 million pounds for your new central midfielder and few are better off for the money than Ajax's Donnie van de Beek. Van de Beek is one of the best young talents who have not been poached from Amsterdam in the summer and can be purchased for around 25 million pounds. The Dutchman is only 22 years old but already has solid stats across the board, making him ideal for playing in the middle of the park. While his transfer score is at the top of your budget, his salary requirements will be much lower than those of a player who is already in the Premier League. Alternative options If van de Beek does not tickle your fantasies, consider these other players, not: Title Age Club Country CA / PA Value Salary Jefferson Lema24BournemouthColombia141/156 x 25k 55kJack Cork29BurnleyEngland13 Future transfers will have a transfer budget of almost 100 million euros for the next summer transfer window, according to forecasts. A few areas could do with improvement, but nothing more than a right-back. Tottenham have not really replaced Kyle Walker since the defender's move to Manchester City. Serge Aurier is decent but won't improve much and Kyle Walker-Peters won't be early enough to become the Premier League's leading player. Spurs can bring in quality right-back and/or that will improve to become one of the best in the world in the coming years. The kind of Matthew Doherty. Max Aarons and Jonjo Kenny spring to mind, but you can set your sights even higher if you're feeling adventurous. STATE OF PLAY contracts: Spurs contract situation is not the safest going forward. Finances look great for Tottenham but contract contract Of course not. Jan Vertonghen, Toby Alderweireld and Christian Eriksen finish at the end of the 2019-20 season. To compound this problem, Giovanni Lo Celso's loan expires and Michel Vorm's contracts also expire in the summer 2020. As manager, you have to try to tie them up to long-term deals, these are some of the longest-running players at the club and losing them can be disastrous. You'll probably have to donate part of your salary budget for this, but with over 200k to play, it's an acceptable loss. Eric Dier's deal ends at the end of the 2020-21 season, but no big names are due to leave this summer. Key players such as Kane, Lucas, Son and Alli are all deals that run until at least 2023, which is very positive. Finally winning trophySpurs may have finished over Arsenal for the past few seasons but the Lilywhites have not won a major trophy since the 2008 League Cup. With a brilliant new stadium, Tottenham will be desperate to add to their trophy cabinet and win their first in this new club era. Despite the fact that the board does not care about it, the Carabao Cup is your best choice for winning the main honor. The FA Cup is also an opportunity, but the Premier League and Champions League in some way, at least for the first few seasons of your reign. You can't afford to sacrifice the league to win one of the cups, however. The competition for those top four places is serious and you can't bank on a cup final, anything can happen. Winning a trophy doesn't make or break for your work, but it will make you untouchable if you have fulfilled your other goals. Spurs are a challenge to manage at FM as the board expect to compete with the teams around them despite their smaller budget and possibly a less talented and deep squad.
