After the song was performed in early 2002 by Secret Garden and their invited lead singer, Brian Kennedy, the song became only a minor British hit. The song has been recorded by more than a hundred other artists, including American songwriter Josh Groban in 2003 and Irish boy band Westlife in 2005, whose versions were hits in their countries. Welsh singer Aled Jones recorded a successful cover version in 2004, the female Irish ensemble Celtic Woman in 2004 and with massive worldwide success with it in 2005. Background Jóhann Helgason claimed that the song was originally composed and released in 1977 under the title Söknuður, which means Into the light. Løvland composed an instrumental piece in 2002 entitled Silent Story. Løvland calls this to be an original. Söknuður was a moderate success, however, and it is claimed that Løvland had heard the song while living in Iceland. The Performing Rights Society of Iceland analyzed both songs and found a 97% similarity between them. They stated that the songs are 'musically identical' except for only two notes. At a press conference it was revealed that Groban had played Söknuður for him in 2007, responding in an 'alarmed' way. He then admitted that the two songs were the same and he didn't know where the inspiration came from. Later, the singer Edgar Smári performed with Söknuður in English to outline the similarities. [1] It has been reported that Løvland, who allegedly created the piece, later turned to Irish writer and songwriter Brendan Graham to write the lyrics to his tune, after reading Graham's novels. In 2018, Helgason sued Universal for the tune to have been lifted from him without his permission. [2] Løvland stated that the song was made by and for Løvland himself and performed for the very first time at the funeral of Løvland's mother. [1] [3] The original designated vocalist was Johnny Logan, who recorded a demo with an orchestra. But a desire to distance the album from the Eurovision Song Contest led to a change in vocalist. In 2002 it was released on the Secret Garden album Once in a Red Moon, with vocals sung by Irish singer Brian Kennedy, and sold well in both Ireland and Norway. Originally, Brian Kennedy was supposed to follow Secret Garden on their Asian tour in 2002, but Curb records couldn't to an agreement with Universal to release Brian, and he could reluctantly not participate in the tour. He was replaced by Norwegian singer Jan Werner Danielsen, who also later recorded the song with Secret Garden. A demo version of this recording was released in 2010 on Danielsen's posthumous compilation album One More Time - The Very Best Of, which included several previously unpublished recordings. popularity Although the original version does not chart internationally, the song has now been covered more than 125 times,[4] with the most successful covers being by Josh Groban (#73 in the US and #1 on the American Adult Contemporary chart), Christian group Selah (#1 on Billboard's Christian charts), Westlife (#1 in the UK), Daniel O'Donnell (#22 in the UK) and Dutch Popstars winner Wesley Klein (#4 in the Netherlands). The song has also found success as part of a three-song EP titled George Best - A Tribute by Peter Corry and the song's original vocalist Brian Kennedy, who reached #4 in the UK. In 2004, the song was played more than 500,000 times on American radio. At the end of 2005 there were over 80 versions available in the United States alone, and it has been nominated for gospel music awards four times, including Song of the Year. On September 30, 2006, You Raise Me Up became the first song to sell over 76,000 copies of the score on the popular sheet music website musicnotes.com. David Foster decided to produce the song after being introduced to it by Frank Petrone of peermusic, the song's publisher. He chose the up-and-coming Josh Groban to record the song, which was accompanied by tenor Craig Von Vennik of Establishment. Groban's version made it to #1 on the Billboard adult modern charts in early 2004 and remained there for six weeks. This version also peaked at #73 on the Billboard Hot 100, his first single to do so, and was nominated for a 2005 Grammy award. Performances Groban performed the song at Super Bowl XXXVIII, in a special NASA memorial service for the crew of the Space Shuttle Columbia disaster. A special surprise performance by Groban, for Oprah Winfrey's 50th birthday, also gave You Raise Me Up international prominence. April 25, 2007, Groban also performed it at the first Idol Giver Back Concert, along with the African Children's Choir. This version was released as a single and topped #76 on the Billboard Hot 100. He performed this version with the African Choir again on The Ellen DeGeneres Show on August 10, 2007. On May 26, 2007, Josh Groban appeared on the BBC's talent show Any Dream Will Do to choose one of the remaining contestants (or Joseph's) to perform the song with him. He chose show favorite and eventual winner Lee Mead, while the other four contestants (Lewis Bradley, Craig Chalmers, Ben Ellis, and Keith Jack) performed as backing singers. After that, the solo version of You Raise Me Up charted in the UK on #74, making it his first chart entry there. [17] Westlife performed this song with Secret Garden at the 2005 Nobel Peace Prize concert. On December 11, 2009, they performed it again at the 2009 Nobel Peace Prize concert celebrating U.S. President Barack Obama. Backing track is reappointed in the Spanish version of this song. Por Ti Sere, performed by Il Divo in their Siempre album. When Louis Walsh suggested the band record it, Filan, Egan, Byrne, and Feehly opposed it to say it was a church song and would not be successful. They also said they didn't want to record it. But they have since claimed in 2011, six years after the single's release, that the song changed their careers and were delighted that they recorded it. It was composed in the traditional verse-chorus form of E♭ major, with Filan and Feehly's vocals ranging from the chords of to B♭5. [18] Westlife's official music video for You Raise Me Up (from Disneynature's Chimpanzee) shot in late 2012 and is directed by Alex Hemming. It is currently the most played You Raise Me Up (from Disneynature's Chimpanzee official music video version on YouTube with 73 million views from January 2012.[19] It is also their most streamed single ever with 19.7 million listeners in the UK as of January 2019. It is the band's third best-selling single ever on both the paid for and combined sales categories. [20] Although it is their eighth most streamed song ever from their homeland, the Republic of Ireland, from 2 April 2019. It is the second best-selling single of 2005 in Ireland. The song was reinstated in the live bonus disc album by the band's Greatest Hits in 2011. After the band broke up in 2012, the single was performed solo in many live cases by three of the band members Shane Filan, Kian Egan and Mark Feehly. In 2018, the single was re-released by member Shane Filan for his solo album Love Always - Deluxe Version. On May 1, 2018, the song was performed on the South Korean music program 'Immortal Songs 2' by Sohyang. Filan was the featured 'Legend' and rated the contestants.
