If you like blackwork - or if you haven't tried it but are eager - here's a wonderful online resource for an extensive collection of blackwork filling models - and it's free! Kim is over on a string or nothing has assembled a four-piece PDF just loaded with blackwork models. You can download all four PDFs directly from her website and then print out the templates and use them for your personal blackwork classes. The toppings are presented in single square plates, and there are about 220 of them to choose from! Some of the plates fill the perfect square, too, so they would be great for biscornu making, decorating, and the like. If you want to sew something up with an autumn theme, look for models like the one above that include acorns and leaves. Do drop on a line or nothing this weekend and download this good collection of free blackwork filling models! You'll be glad you did! I've added Kim's book to my book page here at Needle 'N Thread, where you'll find all the needlework books I've reviewed and - if you scroll down - you'll also find some of my favorite free embroidery books online. If you're looking for something to browse this weekend, there's nothing in the world quite like a good embroidery book! Also, if you're interested in how to develop your own blackwork designs, you can take a look at these two articles here on Needle 'N Thread: Blackwork Design Development: Variations on the Theme of Blackwork Design Development: Further Variations Enjoy the Weekend!
