With the new makeup dropping at a dizzying daily pace, we decided to make it easier for you to sort out the selection of the latest liners, lipsticks, and the like. Allure editors look to pore over every new launch and emerging brand to find outstanding in bright, shimmering choices every month. While we are partial to our particular faves, peak heart rates with every exciting makeup release. Who knows, maybe there will be some newfangled primer that actually works for our fastidious skin types or innovative mascara that really checks every box of our eyelash criteria. With each launch, seeing what innovations beauty brands come up with to improve formula or design is always exciting. It is easy to say that makeup is one thing relieved from if it is not broken, do not fix this mantra. It's an exciting part of an ever-expanding market: finding new makeover treasures to help us present our best, true self in the world - no matter how colorful or minimalist our go-to looks can be. Because of the COVID-19 pandemic, we understand you might not be on the hunt for new beauty products right now. However, we know from a lot of personal experience how much impact mascara napkins or bold new lipsticks can have on your mood. Just as we always do with hair and skin care, we will list new makeup droppings in May that we recommend adding to the basket. You can also check out the launches last month that we still love. All all products presented on Allure are selected by our editors. However, when you buy something through our retail links, we can earn an affiliate fee. Whether you use it to mask dark circles, hide stains and acne scars, or as a lazy day tool to give out your skin when you don't feel like wearing a full foundation face, there is always room for a good concealer in your makeup bag. Of all the concealer out there that get the most in words, many of the icons are a little the purse (looking at you, Cle de Po, you are a radiant, dear goddess, you). Look, not everyone can hide as a star, if you understand what I am. However, there are loads of concealer out out there that work just as hard, offer skincare benefits, and feel just as luxurious at price points that allow you to live your best life in other departments (such as paying bills and boring, necessary things like this). It's not all pharmacy stuff either - straight-to-consumer beauty brands also offer some seriously impressive formulas online even cheaper than some pharmacy prices. We love the good luxury to buy, but the next time you save for a vacation, your makeup bag was lost along the way. You will find yourself somewhere without your trusted concealer, keep this list and a $20 bill on hand. All all products presented on Allure are selected by our editors. In early 2016, I found a black Watch checkered jacket from the defunct Nom de Guerre on Grailed. I'd wear it, and to my surprise, every so often someone would say, hey, this is my jacket! They weren't joking. I got it from a Wall Street Journal editor who bought it from an early Grailed employee who bought it from a menswear podcaster who bought it at a style forum. We can say that the true Grails are the friends that we made along the way. -Samuel HineThe Supreme SecretThis is more of a religion than a science, but some supreme fans believe that his mobile site is faster and less prone to crash than his brother on the desktop. Get rid of yourself and go straight to Nois, a site equipped with goods completely free of leather, wool, silk, fur and any hint of crisp. -Gabriella PaiellaAcronym's techy, not-your-medium-messenger bag. $1,200 Courtesy of AcronymWhen I Shop, it's usually for something from Acronym, an ultra-coveted brand of technical clothing designed by Errolson Hugh, who releases the outfit by schedule. To stay on top of it all, I just include push notifications for Hugh's Instagram posts, which he uses for drops, and basically have everything else - email, Slack, Twitter, Co-Star-off. At all times. Great for my closet and keep my screen time to a minimum. -Chris GayomaliSay hello sit down bear. The $267 Provided Lotique USAI've got something of a Ralph Lauren Polo Bear addiction, but I wasn't a true collector until I learned the power of the hashtag. After #PoloBear on Instagram, he took me to a boutique in Atlanta selling Sit Down Bears, and then a reformed collector dumped his stash of vintage ski bears. It's a scroll-heavy, shotgun approach, but a godsend if you have an unquenchable obsession with fashion like mine. -C.W.Try Lands' End for stone cold brackets like these. $41 Granted lands' EndCall is a dotcom paradox. Some of my favorite online shopping comes courtesy of retailers with Web 1.0 sites. The $550 provided by Middleman StoreNew arrivals are good, but nothing gets me amped up like an old gem-mohair secret sweater from 2002, say the kind that is easier to find in Japan than in the States. Since there is no eBay out there, I turn to Yahoo! Auctions Japan. It's not in English and the sellers don't ship outside Japan, which seems like a nightmare, but makes it a gold mine if you put in the effort. Here's how it works. I start by looking undercover because a sweater or mohair can't translate. Yahoo! uses eBay-style fashion hierarchy Men's sweaters are the brand's zgt; since once you find find list (exactly where it will be on eBay or Etsy), it's simple enough to sort the results. Using a bit of memorization (I know Japanese for a sweater) and trial and error (if I get a page of lamps in the shape of burgers, I made a mistake), I can narrow the search results from about 16,000 to maybe 200 pretty quickly. If I find the sweater that I want, I head to zenmarket to garner a proxy to make a bet and calculate the shipping cost (both domestic and international), all for a small fee per unit. Thanks to the wonders of DHL, I'll have it in a week. Noah Johnson's version of this story originally appeared in the March 2020 issue. More from THE G.H.
