[. . .] Guide to the owner of CLP-220 Bedienungsanleitung Guide to instrucciones IMPORTANT Check your power source Make sure your local AC hand strain corresponds to the voltage indicated on the plate on the bottom panel. In some areas, the voltage selector can be provided on the bottom of the main keyboard unit next to the power cord. Make sure the voltage selector is set for voltage in your area. The voltage selector is set at 240V when the device is initially sent. [. . .] If this light stays on, recording another performance will delete the recorded data. Procedure 1. Choose a voice and other settings to record. Click on one of the C1A1 keys by holding the PIANO/VOICE button down to select the right voice. (See page 18.) You can choose other settings if you want, such as reverb. Use the MASTER VOLUME command to set the volume to a pleasant listening level. You can also use this command to adjust the volume while playing. Turn on the record mode. Click on the REC button. You can't turn on the recording mode while playing a demo song. Recording capacity is the maximum amount of data You can save. The recording power of the CLP-220 is 65KB (about 11,000 notes). Change the settings of a recorded custom song To change the settings of the recorded user song, switch to recording mode, change the settings in your opinion, and then stop recording without playing the keyboard. For example, if you want to change the voice of a user's song, click REC (Save) to go into recording mode (see step 2), and then select a different voice (see step 1). Without playing on the keyboard, click REC to stop recording (see step 4). Click REC again if you want to disable the recording mode. WARNING Do not turn off CLP-220 while recording data in internal memory (i.e. when the REC and PLAY keys flash). Otherwise, all recorded data, including recorded data, will be lost. You can save a custom piece stored on your computer. You can also download user piece data from your computer and play it on CLP-220. Start recording. The recording starts as soon as you play the keyboard. You can also click PLAY to start recording. 4. Stop recording. Click on the REC button. 95 CLP-220 Record Your Performance 25 FRANKFURT Play Recorded Performance Data Procedure 1. Start playback. Click on Play. You can adjust the tempo of a recorded custom song. The user's song is always played at a recorded pace. 2. Stop breeding. When the user song is finished playing, Clavinova automatically returns to the previous mode. To stop playing, click on the PLAY button. Clavinova has MIDI connectors. Using MIDI features allows you to access a variety of music genres. Because MIDI data transmitted or received varies depending on the type of MIDI device, contact the MIDI Implementation Table to find out what types of data and MIDI commands can transmit or receive your devices.
