The Superintendent oversees Arizona's public school system and leads the state's Department of Education. The current superintendent is Democrat Kathy Hoffman. Hoffman took office On January 14, 2019, she was replaced by Diane Douglas (R), who lost the Republican primaries on August 28, 2018. Hoffman won the general election on November 6, 2018. The power of the Superintendent's position is established by the Arizona Constitution as part of the state's executive department. The Arizona Constitution, Article 5, Section 1 (Version 2) The Executive Department must consist of the Governor, the Secretary of State, the State Treasurer, the Attorney General, and the Superintendent of Public Education... The qualification of the Arizona Constitution requires that all officials in the state's executive department, including a superintendent of public education, are at least 25 years old, a U.S. citizen for 10 years, and an Arizona resident for five years. The Arizona Constitution, Article 5, Section 2. No person is entitled to any of the offices mentioned in section 1 of this article, except for a person of at least twenty-five years of age who was required in the ten years preceding his election as a United States citizen and for five years prior to his election as an Arizona citizen. Arizona's election elects them the superintendent of public education in the midterm elections (2006, 2010, 2014, etc.) for a four-year term. The winner takes office on the first Monday in January after his election. If no candidate wins a majority (more than 50 per cent) of the vote, a second round of elections is held between the two candidates with the highest number of votes. If two candidates in the second round receive the same number of votes, the state legislature chooses the winner. The Arizona Constitution, Article 5, Section 1 (version 2) of the Executive Department consists of the Governor, the Secretary of State, the State Treasurer, the Attorney General and the Chief of Public Administration, each of whom must hold office for four years, starting on the first Monday in January 1971 after the regular general election in 1970. B.B. Person, gaining a majority of votes cast for the position for which they voted, is elected. If no person receives a majority of the votes cast for the post, a second election shall be held between the persons receiving the largest and second highest number of votes cast for the post. The person receiving the highest number of votes in the second election for the post is elected, but if the two have an equal number of votes for the post, both houses of the legislature are elected immediately by a joint vote of one of them for the post. 2018 See also: Arizona Superintendent of Public Education Election, 2018 General Election Katie Hoffman defeated Frank Riggs in the Arizona general election of the Superintendent of Public Education on November 6, 2018. votes: 2,299,238 (100.00% precincts reporting) Democratic primary primary primary Republican primary election champion Frank Riggs defeated Robert Branch, incumbent Diane Douglas, Tracy Livingston and Jonathan Gelbart in the Arizona Republican primaries on August 28, 2018.
