There was a Motorola support group that said that the g6 series would receive, then after that no more updates, but Motorola's support does get things wrong sometimes, so we have to wait until Motorola blog about what phones just yet, 469 Posts 07-13-2017 GB 1376 Signins 6708 Page Views Messages: 469 Registered: 07-13-2017 Location: GB: 6708 Post 6 of 6 2019-08-20, 9:25 p.m. tweeted: This week at least we received a security update for June 2019. I still hope he will get one major update. it was an Android pie. If we get that there will be two updates that the g6 series will have. Motorola under Lenovo is not the same OEM care software as it was when the Moto G kits were news. You didn't get security updates in a very timely manner, and the OS update in the pie was delayed a lot, too. But now that Android 10 is updated, let's talk about and when the Moto G6 will get it, as well as the latest updates released for the global and Verizon Moto G6. Will Moto G6, G6 Plus, and G6 Play get Android 10 update Motorola no longer updates their budget phones in the first few years of the series. Since the Moto G6 has already had its one OS update in Android Pie, so it won't get another The OS in the form of Android 10 from Motorola. But this is about the official update of Android 10, users can still get it unofficially, see below. Check out: Motorola Motorola Android 10 wotorola Motorola Power can still get Android 10 update unofficially in form ROMs like there is good device support in the aftermarket development scene. - stay tuned for Android 10 custom ROMs here: Moto G6 G6 Plus what developers use to do their job and build ROMs. But it will take a few months before a stable Android 10 ROMs are available that fit as a daily driver. Overall, you can start seeing Android 10 based on custom ROMs starting in December 2019, but we won't be a failure if some smart developers do even before that. Motorola's Global Moto G6 is no longer the kind of company that has quickly rolled out updates. Apparently, those who use Moto G6 will not receive monthly security updates, rather the company will only send out these updates after a period of between 60 and 90 days. Feel free to ask us using the comment box below. Sources: Verizon Motorola Most people will take a software update for a new OS for buying a new phone when it comes to how long they offer software updates for certain devices. Google gives its devices three major OS updates. OnePlus has done the same, starting with the OnePlus 3/3T. Samsung the world's smartphone provider, provides two OS updates for their devices, premium or not. Motorola is one of many other Android Android that guarantee only two OS upgrades for high-end (and middle-class) devices, while simultaneously reviewing their budget market segment for a single OS update. Motorola Moto G6 Plus Android 10. As it stands, the device, one of the best budget phones from 2018, will not receive a second OS update. after its debut with Android Oreo. But why? According to Motorola support, the device has already received its only and only scheduled upgrade to Android 9 Pie. Your moto g6 plus was launched in 2018, with Android 8 and the only operating system update that was planned for this product, has already been made in February 2019 to Android 9. Now, in the classic case of the left and right hands, not knowing what each one is doing, the other customer representative now claims that the standard Moto G6 Android 10 update is coming. No, no. Going to the discussion in screengrab above supposedly between the owner of Moto G6 and customer support, the device should get an update for Android 10. As reassuring as it may sound, the odds here don't look good. Fans of the Moto G4 evice should get an update for Android 10. As reassuring as it may sound, the odds here don't look good. As reassuring as Plus counterparts bore no fruit. None in the Moto G5 series received two OS updates as well. Of course, the story will probably even the last Moto G8 family. Either way, we'll still follow the story and bring you news as and when we get them. On the bright side, security updates are still coming, with the most recent bringing along to the February patch level. Even better is that you can still get a taste of Android 10 via LineageOS 17.1, albeit unofficially, and we expect more custom ROMs for the Moto G6 series. Thanks for the advice, TeJAs Raut!
