same to the red bait of AFP's martial law film screenings a month earlier. [175] Similarly, the Let's Organize for Democracy and Intergrity (LODI) group slammed the PNP's attempt to censor the program and urged Año and Albayalde to look in the mirror instead. [176] Nettizens also jumped into the show's defense. [177] MTRCB President Rachel Arenas said she could not censor the show because the agency was a bridge between constitutionally protected freedom of expression and the state's right to regulate. He adds that after reviewing the episodes of the show, he saw nothing objectionable in the depiction of the police, considering that the show still depicts a victory for good over evil. [178] After Martin and the show's producers met with the PNP and DILG, the latter again expressed support for the show. In a joint statement with ABS-CBN and DILG, it was claimed that the latter will continue to support the show as it continues to inspire Filipinos with the valuable lesson that, in the end, good always triumphs over evil. [179] Subsequently, the Parties signed a Memorandum of Understanding. [180] Atake episode depicting rape and violence against police women The show once again landed in hot water in a scene from the July 15, 2019 episode showing police women being raped by Alyas Bungo (Baron Geisler). Nets were quick to point out that the rape and violence on screen were too graphic. Members of the PNP also wrote that the rape of uniformed officers was disrespectful to their uniforms. [181] In a statement, PNP Deputy Spokesman Lieutenant Colonel Kimberly said that the PNP would speak to the production staff at the show and [d] impending the extent of the breach [we] would warn them or return to the said MOU. [182] PaoEdit's unflattering portrayal of the PNP's negative portrayal was not the end of the show's woes, as the controversy stemming from the story arc caused an off-shoot problem. PAO leader Persida Rueda-Acosta also twitted the show where it was proved that PAO lawyers refused to make a case which would pit them from the President Lucas Cabrera (Edu Manzano). [183] Ang Probinsyano party-list punching incident on Albay that saw him punch a waiter for no apparent reason. [184] The party list bore the show's name and was supported by Coco Martin and Yassi Pressman, who joined the youth sector of the party list [185] The party list has since investigated the case. [186] and de los Santos himself apologized for the incident. [187] Allegations of mistreatment of staff on the show have been chased by rumors that staff were assaulted on set. Among the rumors that circulated involves Coco Martin's alleged temperament, which is that cast member Arjo Atayde has a large, great misinterpretation. Atayde explained that the gesture only serves to remind everyone on set to observe the right decoco decoy, that Martin cares about the show, that he wants it to be perfect as much as possible. [188] In addition to Martin's alleged bad tempers, he is said to have been involved in insaning the show's staff and characters with imitomar water during sleep. [189] The track re-raises a year later when Robin Padilla accused Martin of abusing the show's staff by pouring water on them; The former also claimed that Martin had argued with a female location manager, in whom the latter had lost patience. Padilla made the claims amid rants against ABS-CBN, which faced woes over the impending expiration of the franchise and stonewalling perpetrated by the House of Representatives on franchise renewal bills filed in favor. [190] However, Dreamscape Entertainment denied Padilla's claim. Dreamacape vehemently denied that Martin was abused by the show's staff and explained that the prevalence of water dousing was actually a prank between the cast and the staff of the show's talent servicer, filed a complaint on the public service show Bitag. The complainant alleged that Minor had participated in a programme in Ponz and had not paid for the talent he had brought on the set of the show. [193] Minor claimed that ABS-CBN, for its part, denied Minor's allegations, arguing that Minor was not connected to the show or the network and that he had banned Minor after receiving a number of complaints similar to those in the program. [193] Sociocultural and political impactEdit social commentary and good valuesEdit While the show is a fiction and distorts this fact flashing statement at the beginning Episode 2, the show has been known to address timely social issues that integrate with its history. [194] This fictitious and realist merger earned praise from critics and audiences, with some looking at Ang Probinsyano as a social commentary of our time. [195] Although there was praise for its realistic depiction of social themes, such as the polarizing Philippine drug war, [196] the long-running series was also undertaken for unfair depictions of various government agencies and its staff. [161] [194] However, many have come to the show's defense, claiming that the show is fictitious and that violated government agencies should clean up their ranks instead. [177] In addition to timely issues, the long-running action drama series has been praised for showing good values on television such as patriotism, importance of prayers, acceptance of members of the LGBT, and the prominent role of family in Philippine society among others. [197] Sociologist Josephine Placido said the show earned the title Pambansang Teleserye because the show provides good values and life lessons on television. [198] Historian Xiao Chua, on the other hand, appears to give Filipinos hope, as it is built in the form of light-dark light typical of epic poetry in the Philippines, [198] In addition, the Cardo Dalisay character itself is seen as a role model that is steadfast and incorruptible. [194] The programme further expands the case by submitting information programmes to different communities. [197] In addition to showing social problems in time, Ligtas TipsEdit A is known for making public service announcements called Ligtas Tips. [200] PSAs broadcast during commercial breaks on the show, while infographics were also uploaded to the show's website. [201] In 2017, Ligtas Tips was collected in FPJ's Ang Probinsyano Ligtas Tips, published by ABS-CBN Publishing. [202] Giving actors a second chanceEdit the long-running show became a favorite way for big stars to return to television. [203] The series hosted the return of action stars to small screens after being inactive due to the decline of the action genre in cinemas. [204] However, high-profile actors and action species are not the sole beneficiaries of the series. Martin is also known for casting former actors and desiring to share his blessings in the show. [206] Of these, [207] CJ Ramos,[207] Rhed Bustamante,[207] Whitney Tyson[207] and Mystica were given second chances. [208] The resurgition of the action genre Edit the action genre of action in both film and television. [209] Jeric Raval and Jolo Revilla[211] have thanked Martin for reviving the action genre, while action star Ronnie Ricketts sees Martin as keeping the genre alive. [213] However, the label does not come from Cardo Dalisay's mysterious weaponry and combat prowess, which allows him to avoid bullets and other attacks, but from many times when he survived to be killed. This includes the death after defeating Alyas Bungo (Baron Geisler). [217] Both these deaths and many extensions of the series have made it a topic of jokes and memes among Filipino neons. [216] [218] [218] Coco Martin himself has acknowledged the numerous memes and jokes and longest-running action series, the series inevitably became a sought-after platform for political endorsement. The show's involvement in politics began with Coco Martin supporting Grace Poe in the 2019 midterm elections. [222] According to a 2018 survey by PUBLICUS Asia, Inc., Martin has the highest number of celebrities among Metro Manila voters. [223] In the same year, the show's cast name was used in a fake election by COMELEC, where Cardo Dalisay won the presidency of Barangay. [224] Martin and the protagonist Yassi Pressman also took part in groups supporting party list groups, with the two teams supporting an ang probinsyano party list. That party list finished fifth, which secured a seat in the House of Representatives. [225] In addition to supporting the show's protagonist, actors with political aspirations have also tried to perform in the series to improve their visibility and profile among voters. [227] This required the characters played by the candidates to be described from the show before their own campaign season began. [228] Of the nine previous cast or guest stars in the 2019 midterm elections, only Lito Lapid and Jhong Hilario appeared. This result, however, is still considered a kingmaker as factoring Grace Poe finishing second in the election race, and two party-list groups bearing the show's name to the top 10 secured seats among House representatives, the approval value confirmed. [230] [231] Special quotes CIDGEdit received a certificate of recognition in January 2016 for a favorable depiction of a highly committed and responsible CIDG police officer in the FPJ's Ang Probinsyano. The summons was invited to Camp Crame in July of the same year by then-PNP chief Ronald Bato dela Rosa, a self-admitting fan of the show. [233] The visit became an opportunity for the best cop to thank Martin for his positive portrayal of the PNP in the series. [234] [235] Quote from DILGEdit The show was praised by Interior Minister Ismael Sueno, who stated that the police should set an example for the protagonist Cardo. On September 14, 2016, Congressman Robert Ace Barbers of Surigao, the Philippines' 17th President, said: We're going to have to do this. The resolution praised the show's efforts to promote crime awareness and prevention among viewers and endorsed Coco Martin as a Celebrity Advocate for the drug-free Philippines. Inspector. When he replaced himself as Cardo Ador, he solved the child trafficking case that the latter left behind after his death, thus stepping up Ador as superintendent. When the ruse came out, the promotion was over. ^ The reason Cardo and Ador do not share the same surname is because Cardo was adopted to ensure his medical treatment. Borja was the middle name used by Ador in the series, although it was not his mother's maiden name. You may not be in the series, but Ador used Borja as his middle name, the reason for such use remains unclear. In the first episode, Ador's name was released as Dominador M. de Leon, but due to continuity errors, he was introduced as Cadet Borinador's Borja de Leon at the PNPA graduation ceremony,[13] and in the third episode during his promotion to chief of police. [14] In a few episodes Ador's tombstone in the cemetery PS/INSP. It was also presented as Dominador B. de Leon. [15] ^ Go up: b c d e f Character rank under §28, R.A. No. 6975 (1990 Ministry of Interior and Local Government Act), the police are representative at the time of the character's appearance and/or exit from the show. ^ Go to Paloma Picache is one of Cardo's cover and not a separate character. Cardo used the cover twice to infiltrate various criminal family. ^ In addition to Paloma Picache.
Cardo used various aliases in the series. He used the name Arthur Rosales,[16] to be a buyer of human organs illegally harvested by Dr. Ivan Gomez (Eric Quizon); Rico,[17] while on the run Trinidad (Anne Curtis) with Scarface Dimayuga (Nonie Buencamino) and her men; Edward,[18] when he infiltrated the Party Drug ring jonas paulino (Jake Cuenca); When, in Benny's name, Marie (Meg Imperial) impered herself as a secret admirer; Caloy,[20] when he infiltrated Atong's (Emilio Garcia) illegal dog fighting club; Raul,[21] dressed in reggae to safely board a ferry to Cebu; Miguel,[22] when he was a fugitive from New Bilibid Prison, went undercover while hiding and infiltrating Cebu; and Fernan, later adding the nom de guerre Agila,[23] during his time undercover as part of Pulang Araw. Fernan was originally intended for Elmer,[24] as Cardo introduced himself to Romulo Dumaguit when he regained consciousness. However, this was later done in the following episodes. ^ Go to b c d e f h i j k l m n The character's rank is based on r.A. no. 11200, the current law that prescribes police lines in the Philippines ^ While General Olegario was married to Romulo Dumaguit in the sixth season of the series, she continued to carry the surname of her first husband. Olegario is the surname of his deceased former spouse and not his maiden name, as evidenced by the fact that his son Joel (Marco Gumabao) bore the surname Olegario. ^ Delfin Borja retired from the PNP at 11200 as Police Chief (P/LTGen), earning an equivalent rank in the 6975 R.A. No. no. ^ Teddy Arevalo used the name Jose Malaya in his revelations against Lily and her allies in season seven. ^ Lucas Cabrera described the show as president of the Republic of the Philippines and is still credited to Carmen M. Guzman as president, Ador Ador B. De Leon, and Joaquin S. Tuazon after the latter's death. ^ JC Santos was previously the teenager Emilio Syquia in the flashbacks. ^ Marissa Hidalgo was described as the first lady of the Philippines, so the show is still described ^ Catherine Cabrera left the show before Lucas Cabrera's presidency, so she is still the second lady because the title was never explicitly used by the character in the series. ^ Emilio Syquia Gustavo Torralba began using the pseudonym after surviving a near-fatal encounter with Vendetta. During this appearance, Torralba introduces himself as a Colombian businessman; and transferred its business interests to illegal mining. A Gina Magtanggol was described as a Manila city councillor who waited as director general of the complex crime of unintentional abortion with double frustrated murder and is therefore still listed as a city councillor.
