Piano Sonata in C majorNo. 16by W. A. MozartThe beginningOther nameSonata facileSonata sempliceKeyC majorCatalogueK. 545StyleClassical periodComposed1788 (1788)Published1805MovementsThree (Allegro, Ante, Rondo) Piano Sonata No. 16 in major, K. 545, Wolfgang Amadeus Mozart was described by Mozart himself in his own thematic catalog as a beginner, and sometimes known by the nickname Sonata facile or Sonataplice. Mozart added the work to his catalogue on June 26, 1788, on the same date as his Symphony No. 39. However, the exact circumstances of the composition of the work are unknown. Although the play is well known today, it was not published during Mozart's lifetime and first appeared in print in 1805. Typical performance takes about 14 minutes. Music 1. Allegro performed by Robin Alciatore. Courtesy Musopen 2. Andante Converted from Mutopia Public Domain MIDI 3. Rondo Converted from Mutopia Public Domain MIDI Problems Playing These Files? See the media report. The work has three movements: Allegro, Ante, 34 Rondo: Allegretto, 24 1. Allegro First movement is written in the form of a sonata and is in the key C major. The familiar theme of the opening is accompanied by Alberti's bass, played in his left hand. The bridge passage of the scale structured follows, arriving to the cadence in Major G, the key in which the second theme is then played. Codetta follows to complete the exposure, then the exposure is repeated. Development begins in G minor and modulates through a few keys. The recapitulation begins, unusually, in a sub-domestic key F major. Bass Alberti, which began as a major triad C at this point becomes the F major triad, followed by a left-handed F main scale pattern that emulates the rhythm of the previous right-handed minor scale. According to Charles Rosen, the practice of starting repetition in the subdominante was rare at the time when the sonata was written, although this practice was later taken by Franz Schubert. [2] 2. Andante Second Movement is in key G major, the dominant key in the C major. The music modulates to the dominant key D major, and then back to G major, in which the exposure is heard again. For development, the music modulates to G minor, then B> major, C minor, then G minor and finally back in G major, at which point there is repetition followed by short codes. 3. Rondo: Allegretto Third Movement is in the form of Rondo and is in the tonic key, C major. The first theme is lively and sets the mood of the work. The second theme is in G major and contains Alberti bass in his left hand. The first theme appears again and is accompanied by a third theme. The third theme is in a minor key and modulates through a variety of different keys before being modulated in C major. The first theme appears again followed by code and finally ends in C major. The final was rescheduled F major and combined with a solo arrangement of the piano of the second movement of the violin sonata in F major form posthumously composed and, thus, the false Piano Sonata in F major, K. 547a. Other arrangements Of the first line of Grieg's arrangement in 1876-1877 by Edward Grieg arranged this sonata for two pianos, adding additional accompaniment to the second piano part, while the first piano part plays the original as Mozart wrote it. Trying to give a few of Mozart's sonatas a tonal effect that appeals to our modern ears, Grieg left an ill-meaning document or two about what the Norwegian ears of the late nineteenth century had expected. One of the notable recordings is the recording of Elizabeth of Leon, accompanied by Sviatoslav Richter (1996). Links Notes and Pajot, Dennis.
