Whether your Android phone has an amazing camera or mediocre, there are many apps in Google Play that will help you take the best photos with it. We believe that the FX HOOM camera is the best of these options, not only because it packs powerful features, but it will help you learn how to make better photos as well. The FX camera is still our favorite camera app for Android, but it's been a while since we reviewed its features, tested the competition, and explained why it's still our choice for the best you can get. The SUOM FX camera has grown a lot over time, and while the competition is strong, we still feel it deserves a nod. Here's a fresh look. Camera zUM FX Platform: Android Price: $2.99 Download PageFeaturesAuto-Focus and click on focus modesHardware customization options, including white balance, night mode shooting, ISO, focus accounting, exposure, contrast, saturation, and more (as long as your equipment supports it) gesture and multitouch support, including a pinch to zoom in, click to focus, and click to shootBurst shooting mode, which supports up to 20 shots per secondCustomizable mesh attachment (so you can use the rule of the third Horizon level indicator (never to be photographed again)Stable shot meter and shooting mode (with crosshairs, That flash red when the camera moves)Setting all the hardware buttons on your phone and assigning them to camera functions, such as zooming in on volume-controlled time spans for shots and long exposures ofSelf TimerVoice and sound-influenced triggers: Clap or speak to take a photorear and control shutter ControlOver 40 different photo filters and effects such as sloping shifts, vignettes, LOMO, retro, toy cameras, and PolaroidDozens photo presets for one-touch personalizationReal-time digital zoomGeotagging photos using your phone's GPSPreserves EXIF and other metadata with your photosAutosave images when you take theirLive previews of photo effects and filters before applying themSt any editing tools, including so you can build an instant collage of photos that you just take , Twitter, Flickr, and moreDownloadable leather packs, borders, frames, props, shutter animation, and other additionsTho it excels camera zUM FX is even more packed with features and photo tools now than it ever was. The app does a great job of giving you end-to-end photo shooting, editing and sharing experiences where you can use the app to take great photos, edit and touch them the way you like, add and other post-processing and then share it online or with friends on Twitter, Facebook, or any other app you want to click on the photo. Even if you don't use editing or customization features, it's still a fantastic camera app, packed packed composition tools, timers, audio-controlled shooting modes and settings to help you take the best photos with your Android device. G/O Media can get commissioned these are the composition tools that really send the FX zUM cameras over the top though. Many camera apps have stickers and frames and filters, and that's fine if you like to use them, but it will actually help you build the best photography habits by teaching you the rule of thirds, looking for a golden ratio in your shots, or by helping you make sure you level with the horizon. A stable shooting mode will make sure that none of your photos are blurred or poorly focused, and click on focus ensures that you always highlight the object you want to be in the spotlight. Best of all, each of these features is so easy to use it's refreshing. A lot has changed in the world of android camera applications since we originally crowned Camera S'5 FX as our favorite, but what hasn't changed is the developer's commitment to adding new features, improving existing features and updating the interface and layout of the already great camera application without dropping support for old devices and various hardware. The FX OM camera is still the winner, and is usually a bargain (it's often on sale at least 40% off), and a huge improvement over almost any stock camera app. We keep trying other apps and we still think it's one of the most powerful. Where it falls the short camera of the ZUM FX is great, but it's not perfect. It's long been missing HDR mode, as some other camera apps have stepped up to turn on, and it can't take panoramic shots even if your hardware supports panorama photography. It's a bit of a bummer, but given the widespread support for OS apps (Android 1.6) that may have something to do with it. However, given other camera apps definitely have these features, it's a bit of a thorn in the side to find them missing. It's important to remember that the FX CAMERA is at best a replacement camera app, even if it's trying to do a little bit of everything. What it does, it does well, but if you're looking for all the filters and tons of photo effects for what's available here, you'll have to look at some of the apps below. Similarly, if you want more detailed editing and post-processing features, you should look elsewhere. Both of these things are OK though, since we're talking about the camera app here, not the personalization app or photo editor. The FV-5 camera contest ($4, Free Lite version) has been around for a while, but only recently it's gotten good enough to really pay attention to and the boy did it get it good. It packs in tons of features, and the developers have moved on to useful functions to shoot over filters and effects. You can control equipment settings such as white balance, exposure time, diaphragm, light meter and so on, and the viewfinder even has histogram right there, real-time update. You'll find all the other useful features from other apps here too-tilt-shift shooting, auto-focus and click-on focus, long exposure support, work. Its only drawback is that the interface can be a bit overwhelming as a result of all the features. The vignette ($3) is still around and kicking, and it's a great option if you're looking for an elegant shooting interface and more filters and post-processing effects than you can shake the stick on. It looks great, it's a joy to use, and can do a lot of other apps here can do, including tilt shift photos, cross-process, duotone, LOMO, toy camera, and more. The only downside to vignettes is that, being elegant and useful, it's also a little easier on features and shooting modes. Still, if other camera apps are overkill but you still want to step up from the stock, try it out. Cameras360 Ultimate (Free) grew out of the old Camera360 app, which was most notable for its HDR shooting mode. The latest version so far has it there, along with some other useful features such as photo effects, fast sharing, support for Sony's phone-mounted lenses, and a very easy-to-use interface. The interface is great at guiding you straight to the type of shooting mode you may want, but the problem with the app is that it's gotten progressively bloated and bogged down with features that aren't too useful and have little to do with taking good photos-just gimmicky ones. It also got to be the biggest of storage pigs, weighing in at 21mb. The focus camera (free) we mentioned earlier is better known as the camera that used to be complete with CyanogenMod. It's available now as a standalone download, and packs features such as HDR shooting, panorama shooting, photosphere, explosion shooting modes, self and auto timers, and more. This little buggy on some devices is definitely still a beta, and doesn't support anything running less than Jelly Bean 4.2, but if you need HDR or panorama, it's more than worth a look. Android (4.1): Focus, the camera app from CyanogenMod, is a pretty powerful photo and video with More Your Camera default app slightly different on each phone (Motorola will be different from HTC, which is different from Samsung and so on), but overall they don't offer a ton in the way of power. Some are better than others, and include a tap-to-shoot or tap-in focus, and some even give you these delicious equipment settings like white balance control and exposure times, but they're often buried in menus if they're there at all. They will do as a last resort, and while they are certainly a competition, their only advantage is their simplicity (that Sometimes). It's obviously not just the camera apps out there, but they are by far the best. If you use one we didn't mention, please share it with us in the comments. Lifehacker's App Directory is a new and growing catalog of recommendations for the best apps and tools in a number of these categories. End of the line! Disney has quite a lot of media ownership these days. They own ABC, ESPN, Marvel, Lucasfilm, and, soon, Fox. This means that there are a bunch of ways to interact with Disney stuff. However, we believe that people looking for Disney apps want more classic Disney characters and experiences. We can definitely help with that. Disney, again, is massive. They have movies, TV shows and music in many genres. We can help you find what you are looking for. Here are the best Disney apps for Android.Disney-DisneyNowFANDOMyHeartRadio FamilyInternet TV (link to Hulu)Movies AnywhereMy Disney ExperienceRedditOfficial Disney appsYouTubePrice: Free trial / $6.99 per month / $12.99 per monthDisney is the biggest disney release app in recent times. It has a bunch of Disney shows and movies along with content from Disney-owned properties (such as The Simpsons) and some original content such as Mandalorian. It's a huge success for Disney so far, and it's an obvious choice for a list like this. Also, you can get Hulu, Disney and ESPN for $12.99, and it's honestly the best deal to stream right now. It's easily the best Disney app. DisneyNowPrice: Free with TV subscriber loginDisneyNow is Disney's current streaming service. You enter the service with existing information from the TV cable provider and get access to a bunch of Disney TV content. This includes children's shows, cartoons and live action stuff, classic and new Disney characters, and even Radio Disney. Disney is an excellent streaming service, but you'll still get more day-to-day Disney content from this than you have from Disney, and it's still integrated with your cable TV provider if you still have one. Fandom from WikiaPrice: Free with adsFandom from Wikia is a community of enthusiasts who create these little wiki pages for various media properties. It used to be a collection of apps for different fandoms, but now it's one app with every theme available. The app usually provides information about characters, movies, TV shows and even some games. It's a neat way to learn some little things about basically any Disney movie, show, or character. Of course, it's a bit of a niche product. Trivia lovers should definitely try this one.iHeartRadio FamilyPrice: Free/$9.99 per month there are several different versions of iHeartRadio. However, for Disney stuff, we iHeartRadio family. It has 80 family music stations from a bunch of popular children's shows and movies. Of course, this includes a lot of Disney content. You can go with with dedicated disney princess songs or just hit up to standard Radio Disney for a great mix of music from Disney. Of course, the full version has all these stations as well so current iHeartRadio fans just need to press the search button to find these stations. The premium version adds unlimited passes and a bunch of other features as well. Internet TV (Sling TV, Hulu, DirecTV Now, etc.) Price: Free/Variest easier (and cheaper) to watch TV than ever before. TV services such as Hulu, Sling TV, YouTube TV, PlayStation Vue and DirecTV now all have a bunch of great children's content. Consequently, they all also have access to the Disney Channel along with a bunch of back-registered Disney content. For example, on Hulu, if you subscribe to a live TV service, you get Disney Channel, but also access movies like Pocahontas. The amount of Disney content on the streaming service varies, but you can at least get an actual feed on all of them. Honestly, it's probably better cable than Disney stuff because you get these on-demand titles as long as you subscribe to the LIVE TV service. In addition, Disney has a Disney, ESPN and Hulu subscription bundle for a pretty big price here. Movies AnywherePrice: Free / Movie Prices varyMovies Everywhere is probably the best app for movies on Google Play. This is not his own standalone streaming service. It's actually a collection of other movie streaming services. You sign your iTunes, Amazon, Vudu or Google Play. All movies purchased on all these services are now available in one place. The service boasts more than 7,500 movies, and that of course includes tons of Disney movies along with basically every Marvel and Star Wars as well. Disney will most likely have all these movies at Disney when it comes out. Until then, however, this is probably the best place to actually buy a Disney movie and watch it. The app is sometimes buggy, but it's otherwise pretty good. It also comes with Chromecast support. My Disney/DisneylandPrice experiences: FreeDisneyland and Disney World are two of the most popular holiday destinations in the world. They also both have official applications. The My Disney Experience app focuses primarily on Disney World. You can use it to plan your vacation as an interactive park map and you can even buy tickets and merch there. The Disneyland app is the same. The app shows you information such as the expected waiting time, the browser restaurant menu and the interaction with the park map. There are apps for all Disney parks separately, including in Paris, Hong Kong and Shanghai. Those headed to Disney World or Disneyland should definitely have these apps on hand. RedditPrice: Free /$ the month/$29.99 per year Reddit is good for many fans and Disney fans are no exception. The site has dozens of subreddits for properties, Star Wars movies, and of course the classic Disney properties as well. You can talk to other people who like the things you like and post things you care about. Either way, it's a great way to read news about Star Wars, Marvel, or other Disney properties and discuss these things with other fans. The premium subscription removes advertising and gives you some extra features as well. Disney's official appPrice: Free (usually) We've said it over and over again that Disney is a huge company. As it turns out, there are a number of official Disney apps for most of these properties. Some examples include the official Star Wars app, the official Marvel app, the ESPN app, the official ABC app, and the list you can go on. These official apps are some of the best ways to interact with a massive list of Disney media companies. For example, you can watch ABC programs in the ABC app or read about the latest Star Wars news on the Star Wars app. You can even read old Marvel comics in the Marvel app. It really depends on what kind of content each property does, but it's still Disney.YouTubePrice: Free/$12.99 a monthYouTube is an excellent, albeit obvious, choice for a great Disney app. You can basically find any Disney song ever made there along with a ton of clips and memes from various movies and TV shows. It's also a place to see trailers for upcoming movies or shows, reviews of various toys or games, and basically everything else you can think of. Disney has an official VEVO channel with more than 11 million subscribers. But, again, you probably already knew it all so this part of the list is actually just some confirmation bias. Yes, YouTube is one of the best apps for Disney fans. You can additionally pay $12.99 per month to remove ads, download videos for offline use, and you get a few other features. If we missed any great Disney apps for Android, tell us about them in the comments! You can also click here to check out our latest Android app and game lists! Lists!
