WhatsApp, a popular instant messaging app, recently released a new beta version of the app, version 2.19.332, for Android. WhatsApp Beta 2.19.332 for Android hint at features that are under development and has been spotted by WABetaInfo. According to the latest WhatsApp update, two new features have been added, including a blocked contact notification and grouped blocked contacts. SEE ALSO: Top 5 WhatsApp tricks and tips you should know WABetaInfo states that these features are still under development to provide a error-free experience for you. A blocked contact notification is a small new feature that will be available in the future whenever you block or unlock a contact. Basically, every time you turn on this feature, WhatsApp will add a bubble in the chat, saying: You have blocked this contact. Click to unlock. The same will happen every time you unlock the contact. However, this bubble notification will only get added to the chat and will not be visible to the person blocked. Another new feature is group blocked contacts, where all blocked contacts will be classified separately and business contacts will be grouped in a different section. However, you will only notice this change in Blocked Contacts, and it will be an automatic location. SEE ALSO: WhatsApp will end support for these Android and iOS devices by 2020 In addition to these two features, instances of the multiplatform system have also been seen in this latest WhatsApp update. In case you don't know, this multiplatform system allows users to activate one account on multiple devices. However, to access WhatsApp from a second device, you need a WhatsApp registration code that is sent to the main account used on the main device. Users will also receive notifications about the same whenever someone asks for a registration code. In addition, the latest update also brings with it a new updated image that appears if the contact has not uploaded a profile picture. Another feature that users are now desperately waiting for is the dark mode on Android and iOS that is due to arrive soon. ky license plate image timur1970 from Fotolia.com your car registration number is the number that identifies your particular car and proves that you own it and duly registered it in your state.
