Why can't customers choose which channels they want in their package and just pay for them? The reality is that it will be out to be much more expensive for customers to choose their own channels. If you were able to choose channels, your unique combination might not be popular, so the cost would extend to a handful of like-minded people, and this would thus be more expensive. Much more expensive, actually. The only way to make our services available is to pack channels so that it is available to groups of customers so that we can distribute costs. What channels are offered on Dstv? Dstv offers subscribers a wide range of great entertainment with the following genres: Entertainment, Movies, Lifestyle, Sports, Documentaries, Kids, Music, Religion, News and Commerce, Specialist, Audio Where can I find a program schedule? Click the TV GUIDE button on the remote control. You can find your graphics according to the genre of programming you are looking for. Here you can access the schedule for up to eight days in advance. What causes changes in planned programs? Unfortunately, in some cases, channel providers will change the schedule of programs on their channels. Because Dish magazine is printed a few months before, later changes to the program can only be tested on EPG. Make every effort to ensure the maximum accuracy of the EPG and reflect all changes in the program. In the case of sporting events, there will be times when matches are run over or changed at the last minute. Why does TV Guide sometimes contain incorrect information? Accidental inaccuracies in the TV Guide are caused by the following reasons: Schedule information is sometimes not received in time for publication in the TV Guide (information must be provided at least six weeks before publication), live sports coverage can change without notice, as the event may be cancelled/delayed at the last minute due to bad weather, injuries, loss of satellite signal or other problems. Planned programs are replaced by special programs of events. What is the policy for repeating the program and advertising it? Replays of programs are an integral part of the multi-channel television environment. Channel providers internationally repeat movies and programs to allow viewers to plan their viewing time at a convenient time for them. Purchase of programs and movie rights is based on the model whereby programs and films are purchased for a certain number of screenings. This allows you to show movies or programs at different time intervals to give viewers a choice of when they want to access programming. Receptions in a multi-channel environment allow subscribers not to miss out when two or three interesting programs are running at the same time. They also allow subscribers to plan their viewing time more How can I be sure that my children are watching the right programs? Program? corresponds to the global standard level of content and age-limited ratings based on accepted international standards. All decoders have the ability to block different levels of content to ensure that home viewing is acceptable to the subscriber. Please follow the parental control guide to install this block on the decoder. Which channels broadcast sporting events? Channels 200 - 232 are sports channels. SuperSport Blitz (Channel 200) is an advanced app that allows viewers to access through information about magazines and ratings. SSHD1 (171), SSHD2 (174), SSHD3 (176) - SSHD4 (178). What is DMX? The AUDIO bouquet of DMX allows you to enjoy the world of more than 20 cd-quality music channels. It is continuous music, covering each genre, 24 hours a day. How are programs licensed for pay-TV? M-Net movies are usually licensed over a 2-year period, with repetition 10 times per channel, i.e. M-Net, M-Net Movies and M-Net Movies 2. Thematic broadcasts require special 2-month licenses. Pre-recorded specials are usually licensed for 1 year. Direct channels such as BBC Entertainment, Discovery or National Geographic follow international standards that offer a shorter licensing period with typically higher repetition speeds. How can I access the channel grid on my TV screen? Customers can use a network of channels to find their favorite channels. The channel grid displays a list of all available channels in the Dstv bouquet and it's a quick way to check what shows on your favorite channel. It's also a great way to tune in to the channel when you're not quite sure what number that channel is on. To display the channel grid, tap any of the arrow keys on the remote control. (Please make sure there is no other information on the screen, such as i-plate, bouquet variants, etc. when you press the arrow keys). Use the arrow keys to move the highlights around the grid. When you move the backlight, you'll notice that the information on the i-plate (at the bottom of the screen) is updated to reflect programming information on your chosen channel. To tune in to your chosen channel, simply click 'OK'. To view the extended information about the program, click 'i'. To remove the channel grid, click 'Exit'. You can also set reminders from the channel grid. Click 'i' and then arrow to highlight the following program. You can click 'OK' once to set a normal banner reminder or click 'OK' twice to set an automatic ringtone reminder. Why Dstv show reruns of some shows with over 60 channels, 24 hours a day, you'll never be able to watch everything on Dstv. Don't miss out, our programs are checked for your convenience at different times of the day. All international cable and satellite companies use this method to give viewers another chance to catch popular programs. So whether you're on the go executive or late night party animals, midnight movie man or daytime doddie observers, observers, You love going on whenever it suits you. Just go to the Dstv guide on Channel 100, find the right time, set a reminder - and you'll never miss a thing. Thing.
