Discord quickly rose to be one of the most used chat services by gamers around the world. VOIP focuses on games and was built on many Slack principles. While group chat is super simple, you can do more advanced things such as organizing custom channels and setting up your own text commands. If you're playing multiplayer games with friends on Discord, you already know that things can get the hectic real fast. My main problem when playing games with voice chat is that one friend with a cheap headset that ruins it for everyone else. Mediocre headsets pick up a lot of background noise that interferes with team communication. This also happens to people who use the internal microphone of their computer or laptop. But now I'm a happy gamer. I successfully convinced all my game buddies to use the Discord Push talking feature in our sessions. Since then, there have been no discussions or conflicts caused by background noise. Also, the chat is quieter, allowing us to focus more and rank like never before. If you want to convince a friend, or if you're the one influencing the gameplay of your chat buddies, you need to try the Push Talking feature as soon as possible. Don't worry if you don't know how to turn it on, we have two comprehensive guides with every step you need to take. Below are the web version guides to Discord, as well as Windows, Linux and macOS. Note: Push to Talk is highly limited in the web version. It will only work when the Discord browser tab has a focus. If you want a streamlined Discord experience, I encourage you to go with the desktop version. How to turn on Push Talk in Discord We are going to start by incorporating the feature and then follow that with a second guide to setting it all up. No matter what version of Discord you're using, you first need to make sure you've successfully logged in. Once you've got what's going on for you, here's what you need to do: Look for the username in the bottom left corner of the screen. Click on the settings icon next to it. Once you're in the Discord settings, scroll down and click on the voice and video (Voice). Now click the tick box next to Click to talk to turn on this feature. How to set up Push for a conversation in Discord Now you have successfully included Push Talk. But you can't use it right away. In order to make it function properly, we need to install a key for the push-speak feature. Here's what you need to do: Go to the settings and scroll down to the Keybinds section. Keep in mind that Discord will allow you to set multiple shortcuts for the same feature. This is very useful if you play several games that have different controls. Feel free to add as much as you Note: The Discord web version does not have a Keybind tab. I highly recommend the desktop But if that's not an option, go to the settings of the zgt; and video (in the app settings). From there you can click on Edit Keybind and add a shortcut. Once you're there, click on Add Keybind (top right corner). Now make sure you choose Push to speak as an action. Once you've got that in place, click on the Keybind record and press the key you want to use as a Push to Talk switch. Hit Stop The Record to keep your preferences. Now go back to the settings (Voice and Video). Just under where you've previously turned on Push to Talk, you should notice a small slider called Push to Talk Release Delay. This slider changes the time requested by Discord to cut the voice signal after you release the push to speak keybind. The lowest value is 20ms, but I suggest cranking it up a little bit higher so you don't interrupt yourself by mistake. Wrap Up If you make a lot of online games, there's no reason why you wouldn't want to rid your friends of background noise. Push to Talk is a must-have solution with all microphones, with an internal combination of speakers/microphones or any other headset that doesn't have good noise. Of course, it will take some time until you discipline yourself to keep the push talking key pressed while talking, but do it for the team. As a tip, I recommend going to keybind/close to the motion keys (WASD). It won't affect your gameplay in any way. If you're using Discord and you have a better setup, let us know in the comments section below. ou heard right. We've just released voice chat functionality in Discord apps for iOS and Android! You want to update the app or visit the App Store/Google Play Store to download it right now. Unlike some other mobile apps out there---TeamSpeak- Discord is completely free. Sorry, there must have been something that irritated my throat there. Voice chat on a mobile phone is perfect for those of you in the FFXIV Free Company with PC and PS4 players. Now you can voice chat through the platform and no one will feel about the side. We think it will be great for time time with people while playing mobile games like Clash of Clans too. Try and let us know what you think. Tapping the voice channel will bring up a request asking if you want to connect. Once confirmed, you can see the channel you're connected to at the bottom of the screen, and you can disable or access your voice settings. You can even use Push-to-Talk! In your voice settings, you can determine whether you want to use PTT or voice activity detection. With the PTT enabled the microphone will only transmit while your finger is pressed on the PTT button at the bottom of the screen. Of You can choose whether to use PTT or VAD, adjust VAD sensitivity, increase or reduce output, and even optimize sound quality with voice switches. Of course, what you really want to do try it for yourself. What are you sitting here for? Go get it! I don't know who uses Discord push-to-talk because the VOIP app for professional gamers was invented for seamless communication throughout the game. I have an Discord server, and I often communicate with members of my team using it. It must be said that Discord produces high-quality seamless voice calls without problems. What is Push Talk in Discord For Beginners who are confused over PTT and the regular method of communication, I break it down in simpler words. The PTT feature is a popular term in the gaming industry where gamers have to press a button on the keyboard to use voice chat. By default, you should set up or turn on Push Talk in discord manually. You can join the voice channel and expect a seamless line of communication. How can I turn Push Talk into Discord Inclusion Push to talk about Discord mobile or desktop version easily, and follow suit for further instructions. I recommend readers upgrade the software to the latest version for a smooth experience. Start the Discord app on Windows or Mac OS or Linux. The user interface does not change in desktop or web application programs. Access the user's settings at the bottom of the screen and click on the gear icon. In the settings section, you've got Voice and Video and click on it to view more options. In V/V settings, you can find an option called typing mode and choose Push to Talk. That's it and you've successfully transformed Voice-up on Push Talk. Complete the program from your computer and then restart it to apply the changes. I use my desktop and plugged in an external microphone, and the settings apply to built-in hardware and external hardware. In case the Discord microphone doesn't work, be sure to install a preference microphone in the audio manager. I can't ignore Mobile Discord users because 70% of my current audience is on a mobile phone. I can't deny the fact that most of my Discord members communicate via a portable phone. It would be unfair for mobile communicators to leave them behind and focus only on desktop class consumers. Let me show you how you can enable Discord click talk on Android, iOS and other devices. Search the app and swipe left on the screen to see more options. Click on the gear icon at the bottom, and I'm talking about the user's settings. Scroll down until you find the Voice and Video settings and click on it. The first feature is typing mode, and then click on the Click button to talk. Many registered users don't know how to set up, as PTT is not a popular option. I want to show iOS device owners a Push-To-Talk setting on iPhone and iPad. Join any Discord voice channel. Now click on the gear icon in the top right corner of the corner section to start the process. Click on the typing mode button to change the mode. Now select Push-To-Talk from the options and click on the selection to confirm the changes. Recheck the typing mode for the Push-To-Talk option, and then click The Close button to finish the process. Click on the Push-To-Talk button at the bottom of the section to talk and chat with team members. You don't need to apply settings everywhere in Discord and change your settings to meet the requirements. However, I want to remind users that they need to keep the screen backlight to use this feature. The voice will only pass when a button is pressed on the screen. As I've mentioned how to change Push to Talk Key in Discord, I mentioned that AAA name games provide the PTT function and they install one default key. You don't want to create problems while playing an intense match. Typically, players install T or K, which collides with games such as Counter-strike Global Offensive or Players Unknown's Battle Ground. It is very important that you install a permanent keyboard and make sure it doesn't collide with Apex Legends or other games. Click on the user settings icon at the bottom. I have already shown you in the above decision. Click on the Voice and Video button, then select Push to Talk in typing mode. Below you can find the Keybind Record option. Click on the recording key and carefully select the key on the keyboard. You can always reset it by clicking on the same option, and re-entering the new key from the keyboard. Also, change the keyboard at Battle Royale because it may invade at some point in your match. I recommend installing a key based on multiple games because I play Apex Legends, PUBG, Counter-strike and other FPS games. For the safe side, I recommend considering different games, while installing a key for PTT. The Bottom Line Turning On Discord Push-to-Talk won't take more than a few seconds to complete the process. In several scenarios, the program does not function at all, and I have provided enough information to solve this problem.
