If you're tired of your photos and videos impossible to get from Facebook, you'll be glad to know that they're rolling out a new feature that lets you download all of them in one big zip file. Here's how it works. Since this is a new feature, it is not yet rolled out to all-in fact, we don't yet have access to it ourselves, so you can bookmark this page and come back when a new option appears for you. If you already see new options, us to know in the comments. How to upload your photos and other data first you want to head to the account menu and choose your account settings. Then, under the account security link, you should see a new link to Download Information. If the link doesn't appear for you yet, then you just have to keep checking back every so often until it exists. Assuming the link is there now, you'll want to click through the Download button. And again, click through the next Download button... And then click THE GOOD. Facebook will take some time to collect a file containing all your information, including your photos, messages and other information. Once they've done that, you'll get an email that says your download is ready and a link to the button. At this point you will have to enter your password again to make sure it is really you. Then click Download now and you can finally download a file containing all your photos. After downloading a file that may take some time, you just have to extract it to access photos and other data. Download Photos and Videos - Video Guide Here's a short video that explains how it all works: In case you're wondering, we've pulled the steps out of the video guide, as some people prefer a step-by-step tutorial instead of a video. Either way, it's great that we can finally get our photos out of Facebook! Want to know how to download twitter photos and videos? It's actually quite simple. Read this guide to learn how to do it. We will divide this guide into two sections - how to download photos and how to download videos on Twitter. Both options require different methods, but you will find the whole process quite easy, regardless. Keep in mind that downloading this content does not give you the right to freely use downloadable content. You still have to respect copyright laws. How to upload images and photos on Twitter When uploading an image to Twitter, it saves as a file that is usually unreadable on your default computer. These files are often either .jpg-large or .png-large. Fortunately, it is very easy to fix this problem. We'll explain how you can do it below. The guide we offer below will work on both Chrome and Firefox. For the most part the guide should be pretty simple on other browsers as long as you know how to save images. How to upload images of Twitter on Chrome and Firefox: Click on the image on Twitter. Click Save as a box>Select type of all the files/mry images and add .jpg to endClick Save That's all to save images on Chrome and Firefox. The above guide for when the image defaults .jpg-large. If it's .png-big, you should add .png to the end, not. How to download twitter Images from the Twitter app: If you're in the Twitter app, saving images is much easier. Just click on the video to bring it to the full screen. Then tap the three points in the top right corner and then click Save. The image will be saved in the folder on your phone called Twitter. How to download a video on Twitter for your desktop When you're trying to use the same guide above to upload a video on Twitter, it won't work. If you click on the video and click save like that, it will ask if you want to save the entire web page rather than. Because of this, you will need to use a third-party uploader to upload the video. Before we start, please keep in mind that you should be careful with the use of such services. Make sure you don't click on any ads or try to click on any links other than the video you're uploading. These websites usually operate without any problems. A quick Google search will return to the now available Twitter video uploader. For example, we used DownloadTwittervideo.com. Once on the site, copy and paste a video link from Twitter. To get the full link, you need to click on the map to bring it into full view. An example of a link would look like this - twitter.com/madebygoogle/status/1137751414116114434 you can insert this link to the video uploader's website and then click download. Once you hit the download button, your browser will start downloading the .mp4 video file. How to download videos from the Twitter app Downloading videos from the Twitter app takes the same approach as above, but you need to get a link using a different method. Follow the steps below to get the video link. Open Twitter on your phoneFind video you would like to downloadTap on the video itself to bring it to the full screen viewTap Share buttonTap Copy ClipboardNext, visit your browser Now you can search twitter video uploader in Google and insert a link. The video will be uploaded to the default download folder. Also, you have options here just to send it directly through a number of apps instead. Summary That's all - I hope this guide proved useful. There is not much more than that. Just remember that when downloading through a Twitter video download website, be careful with advertising and make sure to remember that the source of the video or image still has ownership of it. Do you have any questions about this guide? If you do, make sure to leave them below and I'll answer as soon as I can.
