Fe three houses gardening guide

When you're just start gardening, it may seem like there's a lot to know, and you have thousands of questions. How to plant your vegetables and what kind of soil is best? When should you be budding your medians and dividing your stewardesses? Is everything getting enough sunlight and water? The good news is nature is a great teacher. The more gardens, the more you'll learn what works and what doesn't. But for now, there are beginners who use this list of basic garden tips to find answers to some of the most frequently asked questions. And don't forget to have fun growing your own food and beautiful flowers in your garden! 1. Get to know your USDA Hardness Zone. Use it as a guide not to plant trees, shrubs and perennially that will not survive the winters in your area. You also know when vegetables, fruits and annuals plant outside your area, so you get a better idea to wait for the frost date in spring. 2. Not sure when to sned? Leylakgibi plum spring flowering shrubs and large flowering roses immediately after the flowers faded. They adjusted the flower buds for last year's growth in the fall. If you bud them in autumn or winter, remove the flower buds next spring. 3. Apply only compost, rotten manure, the soil of which is treated for at least six months. Fresh fertilizer nitrogen can be very high and burnt plants; may also contain pathogens or parasites. Manure of pigs, dogs and cats should never be used in gardens or compost heaps, since they can contain parasites that can infect people. 6. Deadheading is a good app for perenniss and year-olds. Because the purpose of annual plants is to set flowers, seeds and die, it tells annual plants to produce more flowers by removing old flowers. Removing spent flowers also encourages them to use their energies to grow stronger leaves and roots instead of seed production. Avoid decorative fruits or 50s, especially grown deadheading plants, such as para plant (Lunaria). 7. Pay attention to how much light different plants need. Grow vegetables somewhere that takes at least 8 hours of direct sunlight every day. Full sun is required to produce the best harvest of vegetables. If you have some shade, try growing cool season plants such as lettuce, spinach, radies and cabbage. 8. The best approaches to controlling the butt in the garden are hand-weeding and anchoring. Avoid deep hoeing or growing, which can bring soil seeds to the soil surface for germination. Weed does not go to weeds seeds early and often so. Use the thocd to choke and avoid annual weeds. 9. Hostas do not need to be divided because they do not want to rejuvenate an old plant or increase the number of owners, or simply prefer the appearance of single plants. Hostas begin to appear new shoots for the best time to divide in spring but before the leaves open, or it takes at least four weeks for your soil to freeze. 10. Not all medians grow in shade. Panicle hydranels (Median paniculata) need the sun for the best flowering. Some top panicle varieties include 'Limelight', Little Lime, Vanilla Strawberries and Bombshell. 11. Do not clean everything in your garden in autumn. Leave ornamental herbs for beauty and seed heads of perennials, such as cone flowers, to feed the birds. Avoid cutting back on marginally durable perenniss, such as garden mothers, to increase their chances of surviving a harsh winter. 12. Vegetable garden tip: The most suitable temperature for tomato ripening is between 68-77 ° F. And at 85°F, pigments responsible for the fruit color, too hot for plants to produce lycopene and carotene. When temperatures consistently drop below 50°F, green fruits do not ripen. There is a little change of color Tomato ripening can be brought in to finish. 13. Plant spring blooming bulbs, like tulips, fritillarias, ornamental alliums, and crocuses, in autumn before freezing the ground. In general, place a hole bulb 2-3 times deep in the bulb. While the most durable bulbs need to plant only once, and we will continue to come up every year, remember that hybrid tulip is an exception to this rule. It is best to take them up when they are finished flowering and replant new tulip bulbs every autumn, or choose the kind of tulip that becomes perenni. 14. Deadhead spent flowers on spring-blooming bulbs such as daffodils and hyacinths, so send ampoules energy into making seeds instead of plants. Leave until the greenery becomes brown and can be removed with a gentle tugboat. The leaves store the nutrients necessary for the flower bulb the following year. Knitting or binding of leaves is not recommended, as it reduces the amount of light on leaf surfaces. 15. Fertilizer is not the answer to growing the best plants; soil quality. Add organic changes such as compost and good old manure to the soil. The best soil structure is crumbly, easy to dig, easily accepts water and is loose enough to provide oxygen for plant roots. If you choose to use fertilizer, use an organic one to add nitrogen, phosphate and potas (you can use the form of potassium plants). 17. If rhubarb sends flower stalks, remove them from what will be the production of greens, not plant seed production. 18. When transplanting perennials grown in containers, dig a hole twice as wide as the soil ball of the plant to help with the establishment of roots. Make sure that the plant sits at the same depth in the hole as in the container. Instead of using bagged soil, use the soil you dug through the hole to fill the surroundings of the new plant. 19. Hide deep potato plants under the mound soil and potatoes harvested in full darkness. exposure to light turns potato leather green, an indicator Potatoes produced a colorless alkaloid called solanin, bitter tasting toxin, consumed in large quantities, can cause disease. To avoid the problem, cut any green portions or cabbage on the potato. 20. En-ground horticulture grows best with 1 to 2 inches of water per week. If it does not rain enough, the water will go deep once a week instead of being slightly watered per day. Frequent, shallow watering only moisturizes the upper layer of soil and encourages the roots of the plant to be transported there instead of going deeper. 21. Don't send your autumn leaves! Chop them and use them as composting agents. Pulverized leaves can be left to feed the grass. After a few hard freezes, the plants went completely asleep, you can also use 3-6 inches of shredded leaves as tics on tender perennials to keep them asleep throughout the winter. Remove the thr in the spring. 22. Avoid digging or planting in the somsy soil; damages the working soil structure. Wait until the soil crumbles and no longer creates a ball when you squeeze some into your hand (the bone doesn't have to be dry) or to dig. 23. Understand the drainage of your soil. The roots need oxygen, and if your soil gets constantly wet, there are no air pockets for the roots to develop. Many plants prefer well-drained soil, so replace soil with organic materials to improve soil quality. 24. Some plants flower in response to the length of the day. Chrysanthemums, poinsettias, strawberries and others need long nights to produce flowers. If you want strawberries that bloom and produce fruit when temperatures are between 35°F and 85°F, make a varied choice labeled day-neutral. CarmelkaGetty Images Hedgehog houses are designed for hedgehogs to shelter, breed and hibernat, ingring on a safe house for a year out of the reach of predators. In the garden in the fall, hedgehogs begin to build their own nests under piles of compost, shrubs and leaves, or piles of leaves, and logs, to collect leaves, grass, hay, reeds, etc. But in many formal or landscaped gardens, there is a limited opportunity for the natural nest for hedgehogs - hedgehog houses come here. There are plenty of ready-made hedgehog houses available to buy that can provide your resident hedgehogs (or soon-to-be residence hedgehogs) with a more permanent structure. The hedgehog house should be located in a sheltered part of the garden, away from direct sunlight and winds, and ideally close to the bush to provide hedgehogs with shelter when they come and go. Put dry grass and leaves in it to encourage hedgehogs to move. So on this note, take a look at some of the best hedgehog houses - all styles and budgets affordable - for the garden, and help protect one of our most endangered species in the UK.
