ky license plate image timur1970 from Fotolia.com your car registration number is the number that identifies your particular car and proves that you own it and duly registered it in your state. This car registration number is the same as your license plate. If your car is not in your immediate possession and you need to determine your car registration number for insurance or car permit applications, you can find it on your car registration certificate. Find a car registration certificate. This is a document that a state representative handed you when you received license plates for your car. It is a good idea to make multiple copies of this document by keeping one in the glove box of your car and the other in your home office. The place where your car registration document says plate number or registration number. This information is in the upper left corner of the vehicle registration. Scan on a series of numbers and letters corresponding to your plate, or registration number. This is the official number associated with your car in your state. Write down the registration number in your application for an insurance policy or car permit. President Barack Obama's auto registration certificate is skewering Mitt Romney's campaign for his overseas investments, including at Cnooc, China's National Offshore Petroleum Corporation, but the White House has previously touted the U.S. firm's ties to the company as a sign of progress. From the Obama campaign press release: Romney invested in Cnooc, a Chinese state oil company: One of the many shocking revelations in Mitt Romney's 2011 tax return was that he invested more than $75,000 in shares in Cnooc Limited, the Chinese state oil company. It wasn't until Romney decided that he was going to start talking tough about China in the context of his presidential campaign that he dropped the stock. But last year, the White House cited ties between the company and the Ohio energy firm for the development of carbon capture and storage in both countries. AEP - State Grid Corporation of China: American Electric Power, headquartered in Columbus, Ohio, has signed cooperation agreements with three Chinese companies, China Huaneng, State Grid Corporation of China and China National Offshore Oil Corporation. The cooperation agreement with China National Offshore Oil Corporation (CNOOC), China's largest offshore oil exploration and production company, includes CNOOC's investment in AEP's commercial carbon capture and storage project, and plans to explore the use of carbon capture capture to increase oil and natural gas production in States. This is expected to benefit the development of USS technology in the United States and China. Opinions expressed by the participants of the entrepreneur, entrepreneur, Own. As the capital of our country, Washington, D.C., is a tourist attraction, complete with trendy hotels and restaurants, upscale neighborhoods and historic museums and monuments. Ward 7 and 8 are located in areas with luxury condominiums and high-end restaurants. Although only a few miles away, these areas are worlds apart. Wards 7 and 8 are the lowest socioeconomic areas of Washington, D.C. Unemployment and poor health are among the daily struggles for their residents. The Wards 7 and 8 have three grocery stores serving 148,000 residents, while the wealthier Ward 3 has nine grocery stores serving 80,000 residents. Elisabeth Tamasi, Patient and Family Manager at Johns Hopkins National Metropolitan Area at Sibley Memorial Hospital, is part of the Johns Hopkins team that provides the best health care for those living in wards 7 and 8. Until 2015, the United Medical Center was the only hospital serving all residents of Wards 7 and 8. Since then, Sibley Memorial Hospital has treated 104 patients for lung cancer, cancer glands, colon and other types of GI cancer, as well as a number of other cancers. Most of the patients treated by African-Americans are 60 years of age and are eligible for Medicaid. Many patients have cancer at the time of diagnosis and also suffer from other untreated diseases such as diabetes. With this framework, Tamashi and the team set out to identify all barriers to the ability of those living in wards 7 and 8 to receive care that could lead to earlier cancer diagnosis and improved cancer treatment. Tamashi began using the National Comprehensive Cancer Network's Disaster Thermometer to understand the challenges facing treatment. The tool allows patients to score their disaster level on a scale of 0 to 10, 0 not distress and 10 to be extreme distress. The tool also includes a checklist of 39 practical, family, emotional, physical and spiritual/religious problems that patients can note, as well as providing space for listing problems and problems not presented. Using the tool, patients from Wards 7 and 8 got a voice to start communicating different stressors. Housing, childcare, insurance, sadness, family health problems, food shortages and fatigue were among the many obstacles to treating these patients. Transportation, followed by fear and anxiety, were the most common stressors noted. We can't take care of patients if they can't get to us, says Tamashi. The first thing she did was fix the transport problem. This year alone we have provided 300 round-trip trips for 19 patients by taxi and, if necessary, by medical transport, she said. About 65 percent of patients are Medicaid recipients. Surprisingly, the ability to pay was the easiest barrier for Tamashi and the group to overcome. We help patients seek the services they can claim and help them with the cost of their medicines. New contracts were signed between Sibley and insurance companies to make sure that Medicaid and other coverages are available to people living in wards 7 and 8 were accepted in Sibley. Sibley has a special needs fund that is used to provide charitable assistance not covered by other services. They also use the fund to buy grocery cards, prescription and over-the-counter medications, durable medical equipment and other essentials for patients from wards 7 and 8 too. Tamashi's patient and family services team has been working with patients from the start. It assigns a navigator, social worker and palliative care nurse to each patient (care aimed at solving problems that cause discomfort in patients). Patient navigators and social workers make sure that patients understand their diagnoses and treatment plans and work with them throughout their care to help manage the barriers to getting the treatment they need. They also recruited other experts in Sibley to address unrecalced medical problems such as diabetes. Improving access to health care and reducing inequality requires identifying, understanding and removing these barriers. Such support is the key to care, says Tamashi. These patients have already gone through so much, and competing commitments often takes precedence over their health. The success of this The new partnership, which is expected to begin in the winter of 2019, is with Ward 7-based Unity Healthcare, the largest network of community health centers in the area. This partnership is primarily aimed at improving the care of gynecological and prostate cancer. Johns Hopkins Medical Concierge Services offer free travel assistance and travel planning.
