She holds a Laurea degree from Lingue e Letterature Straniere from the University of Bari, Italy, and received her doctorate in English rhetoric/composition and linguistics from Arizona State University, where she taught for many years. She is currently an associate professor at Georgetown University in Washington, D.C. Its specialty is the methodology for teaching Italian as a second/foreign language. Her research also focused on the use of technology in foreign language classes. Elissa Tognozzi, Ph.D. of the University of California, Los Angeles, is a Senior Lecturer in SOE Italian and Director of the Language Program. Its main field of research and teaching is the acquisition of a second language. Her interests also include teaching culture, Renaissance literature and teaching with technology. She co-authored two Italian textbooks published by Cengage Learning, Piazza and Ponti and has published articles on teaching with technology. Her latest study evaluated the results of her studies in three different learning environments: a traditional classroom, a hybrid classroom, and a fully online classroom. In 2015, she received the AATI Award for Excellence, and in 2005 she received the Cavalier Award, awarded by the Italian government. © 1996-2014, Amazon.com, Inc. or its MindTap affiliates for Square Melucci/Tognozzi, The 2nd edition will help you find out on your terms.
