PKST5 and the $14 Emotions Wheel Kagan Emotion Wheel is a valuable tool to help the student understand their emotions and other people's emotions. It promotes self-knowledge, self-control, motivation and empathy. Based on the interaction of two dimensions, Happy-Sad and Like-Dislike, Emotion Wheel defines an emotional space that contains eight universal human emotions. The Wheel of Emotions shows how the increased intensity of each emotion leads to specific actions. It also shows how primary emotions interact to produce additional emotions. 17 x 22 PEW - $7. Win-Win Discipline 7 Poster Set the End of Discipline Problems by teaching students how to treat themselves with grace. Win-Win Discipline identifies 7 student positions that lead to almost every destructive behavior in the classroom. For example, when students are angry, they may show aggressive behavior. Each of the 7 posters has one student position and lists responsible and irresponsible behavior. Instead of intimidating others when they are angry, students learn to count to 10 before they react. Each poster offers several positive options. This set of posters is a great tool for preventing discipline problems and for working with students when discipline problems arise. In your students understand where their irresponsible behavior comes from, and give them the opportunity with a repertoire of responsible alternatives to create win-win solutions.
