Google has just released an update to its Maps app for Android, and it has offline access to any maps you may want at hand. Google's offline access supports more than 150 countries and can store up to six major metro areas (such as London, Paris, New York and its environs) on your device for access when you don't have a connection. It's great for those times you're stuck in an area without service and need to navigate home, or if you're traveling abroad and don't have an international data connection. GPS will still work without data, as it is a separate connection, and you can navigate yourself anywhere in this saved area. The new version of the Map also has a smoother compass mode in Street View, for devices that have a function. Maps is a free download for Android devices. Go offline with Google Maps for Android, Google LatLong's Android gaming blog is steadily getting better. We used to have simple puzzle games and we could invite our Facebook contacts to be our friends in games. Multiplayer games used to mean only leaders. There are currently a ton of games that support actual multiplayer games, including a real-time co-op or PvP. In fact, most games these days have some kind of multiplayer element in it. We would also like to give an honorable mention of Dead by Daylight, one against four online multiplayer games with some unique game mechanics. Today is Prime Day! Here are the top 5 deals: Find more prime day deals on phones, laptops, headphones, and more in our big prime day roundup. AdventureQuest 3DPrice: Free to playAdventure'st 3D is one of the new multiplayer games on your mobile phone. This is MMORPG. It has most of the things you expect. There are tons of quests to do, different classes, raid bosses, dungeons, and there are even some crafting. What makes this stand out is that it has full cross-platform support. You can play on your mobile phone or on your PC if you prefer. There are chat rooms, raids, and even PvP that you can play with other people. There have been several hiccups since his release. However, this is a solid option overall. Asphalt 9: LegendsPrice: Free to playAsphalt 9: Legends is the latest game in the popular arcade racing franchise Gameloft. It plays a lot like the old iterations. You unlock different cars, race against AI or human players, and compete in different kinds of events. Online multiplayer is above average. Matches are usually fast and you can race with any of your vehicles. Content not Huge. You can spend a lot of time playing this game before you get to the end. Also, the graphics are actually very good, and the mechanics are simple. Some complain that the mechanics are too simple, but it's an arcade game. Asphalt 8: Airborne and asphalt asphalt also excellent arcade racing choices from Gameloft.Call of Duty: MobilePrice: Free to playCall of Duty: Mobile is one of the new multiplayer games on the list. It's also surprisingly good. This is an online FPS game with different multiplayer modes. This includes classic Call of Duty death matches as well as a 100-man battle Royale mode similar to PUBG and Fortnite. The game also has some soft hash elements as you collect famous people from the series of games and customize them with different weapons and gear skins. There are a few bugs here and there, but they should get smoothed over time. Crossy RoadPrice: Free to play Crossy Road is an arcade platformer. Your goal is to cross different roads and streams without dying. Your goal is to do it as soon as possible. It has a variety of game characters and local multiplayer mode. You and your friends can connect to the WiFi network and then play together in the game you created. It supports two to four players. It's not the most reliable multiplayer ever. However, it is a family and fun way to kill for a while. This is definitely one of the best local multiplayer games. Legends RuneterraPrice: Free to playLegends Runeterra is one of the new Android multiplayer games. It's a PvP-style game with elements of dueling, card collection and automatic combat. Players unlock cards, build decks, appoint champions, and duke it between them. There are 24 champions and a bunch of cards. In addition, a complex but fun game gives you ample opportunity to outsmart your opponents. It's an F2P (free to play) friendly so you don't have to spend money to have a good time. This game has replaced Hearthstone in this list, but Hearthstone is still a great choice in this genre as well. MinecraftPrice: $6.99 with in-app purchasesMinecraft is one of the most popular multiplayer games of all time on any platform. You have fallen into a randomly generated world and then you can do almost anything you want. The game includes cross-games with Xbox One and PC. This means that you can play with your friends almost anywhere. The game includes three modes: survival, worlds and creative. Creative mode does not allow you to die for any reason. Survival mode breeds bad guys, the food system and you can die. Those looking for a quality level console in a mobile game can't do much better than that. It's actually a PC and console game as well. The game costs $6.99 ahead. Shopping in the app is designed for skins of characters. Old School RuneScapePrice: Free/$10.99 per month/$99.99 per year Old School RuneScape is obviously one of the old multiplayer games on the list. This is one MMORPG and a rarity in the Android space. uses a subscription service rather than freemium items to generate revenue, and that's not what you see every day. The game itself is pretty good. You cross the crossing World, complete many quests, find loot, trade with other players, and take on tons of bad guys. It has a great community and is an amazingly responsive developer. There is a free version of the game that has shrunk a bit from its premium version. You really can't go wrong anyway, though. The game is massive. Pokemon GoPrice: Free to playPokemon Go is one of the most popular multiplayer mobile games. Players roam the real world in search of Pokemon, gym battles, and Poke Stops to refill on items. The game is technically one player. However, gym battles, coach battles, and just play them are completely doable with groups of people. In fact, many people who play the game do so solely for social elements. The player base is not as large as it used to be, but many places have official Facebook groups for players to find each other. PUBG Mobile and FortnitePrice: Free to playIt doesn't take PUBG Mobile long to climb the ratings board for multiplayer games on your mobile phone. It's popular, fun, and it works very well on most modern devices. You fall on an island with 99 other players. The last person standing wins. You will find all kinds of weapons and equipment on the island. The boundaries also slowly limit the size of the game area. So, if you end up going out to boonies, the game itself will eventually kill you. Fortnite launched on the Play Store in early 2020 and it plays very similar, but with build mechanics as well. You can play either one and probably a decent multiplayer experience. Riptide GP: RenegadePrice: $2.99Riptide GP: Renegade is probably the best racing game available. The campaign mode is fun and has a lot of events. There is even a storyline, a few wave runners to buy and upgrade, and more. The online multiplayer option is above average. Up to eight players can compete in one-on-one matches. It also supports split-screen multiplayer mode, hardware controllers and more. There's even a challenge mode where you can compete with the best times of your friends. It doesn't have in-app purchases to put on the way and we liked that much. Supercell GamesPrice: Free to playSupercell have developed some of the most popular multiplayer games in recent times. Their biggest hits include Clash Royale, Clash of Clans, and Boom Beach. Clash of Clans and Boom Beach are strategic games. Players build bases and armies and fight each other for resources. Clash Royale is a card duel similar to Hearthstone. Each game has tons of active players. That means it's not hard to find people to play with. Their latest game is Brawl Stars, a mix between MOBA and Battle Royale games. They don't though, and they change the balance of the game quite often. As long as you don't mind that these games provide a decent experience. Teamfight TacticsPrice: Free PlayTeamfight Tactics Auto Fight Fight PvP games. The game is simple enough to play. You assemble a group of champions and deploy them on the battlefield as strategically as possible to outsmart their opponents. The game has a bunch of champions, tie ins to League of Legends, and cross-platform games. The game has a bit of a steep early learning curve and shifting meta frustrates some of the more experienced players. However, it's a fun little auto fight, and it's a quick game for those who want to play against other people, but not for hours at a time. UnkilledPrice: Free playUnkilled is a first-person shooter where you hunt down zombies. This is a mission-based game with over 150 missions currently available (and growing). You'll also have weapons to collect and upgrade, different bosses to take off, and more. The online multiplayer mode is a new addition, but still pretty good. You can fight people in traditional PvP matchmaking. In addition, you can build an army of zombies and attack the bases of other players. It's a bit of a Kill Shot virus and a clash of clans mixed together. Mechanics and graphics are much above average as well. VaingloryPrice: Free to playVainglory, arguably the best MOBA on your mobile phone. For those who are not familiar with MOBAs, your goal is to join forces with the other two players and try to take the base of the other team. You'll have a whole battlefield to play with, bonuses to get, and it requires quite a bit of strategy to succeed. MOBAs are quite common and popular in the eSports ring and Vainglory is no different. There are over 30 characters to unlock, different game modes to play, and tons of social elements. Or you can just play with bots if you want. The decision is hers. Singa with Friends GamesPrice: Free to play in zing has developed some really good multiplayer games. They include words with friends, drawing something, chess with friends, gems with friends, crossword puzzles with friends, and their latest game, Words with Friends 2. Each game allows you to pair up with a friend or stranger online in a competitive game. These are not very difficult games. However, they are family friendly, easy to get caught in, and just play. All games allow you to log into Facebook to make it easier to make friends. They are not perfect, but they are child friendly, easy, and fun to play with friends or relatives.
