Young adult, fantasy, romance Little, Brown and the company Midnight Sun is a companion novel to the book Twilight author Stephanie Meyer. This is a retelling of the events of Twilight from the point of view of Edward Cullen, unlike Bella Swan. She started out as a simple character exercise, with one chapter from Edward's point of view, but she came to believe that she had to do the whole book. Meyer said That Twilight is the only possible book in the series that she plans to rewrite from Edward's perspective. To give them a better sense of Edward's character, Meyer allowed Catherine Hardwick, director of the Twilight film adaptation, and Robert Pattinson, the actor who plays Edward, to read some completed chapters of the novel when they were filming the film. Midnight Sun lets you learn more about Cullen as vampires and family. In May 2020, despite the fact that Meyer had previously refused the manuscript, announced the release date of Midnight Sun. It was published on August 4, 2020. The contents of the show Plot SummaryEdit When Edward Cullen and Bella Swan met in Twilight, the iconic love story was born. But so far, fans have heard only bella-side stories. Finally, readers can experience Edward's version of the long-awaited companion novel, Midnight Sun. This unforgettable tale, as Edward's eyes say, takes on a new and decidedly dark twist. Meeting Bell is both the most unnerving and intruding event he has endured over all his years as a vampire. After learning more fascinating details about Edward's past and the complexity of his inner thoughts, we understand why this is a defining struggle in his life. How can he justify following his heart if it means that Bella is in danger? In Midnight Sun, Stephanie Meyer transports us back to a world that has captivated millions of readers, and brings us an epic novel about the deep pleasures and devastating effects of immortal love. A preview of the story is on August 28, 2008, the release date of the book has been postponed indefinitely, and there is no certainty that it will be published. Meyer stopped writing Midnight Sun after illegally leaking 12 chapters of an unfinished manuscript online. She stated: If I tried to write Midnight Sun now, in my current mood, James would probably win and all calves would die, which would not dovetail too well with the original story. Either way, I feel too sad about what happened to continue working for Midnight Sun, and so it is on hold indefinitely. Meyer plans to publish the book because she believes Edward deserves to have his version of the story. Meyer later retracted the statement, which appeared on her website, telling EW: It was a joke! And it sounded so serious among all the lawyer talk, and I think my fans thought, wow, she was threatening to kill (Laughs.) I felt a little bad about it. Actually, I've never felt angry. Just a lot of sadness. I mean it was a sucker punch - as someone came up behind you and just hit you in the kidneys and you had no idea what was coming. She has made leaked chapters available on her website in fairness to her readers, now that the novel has been compromised before the expected publication date. In a recent interview with EW, Meyer stated that so my goal is to go on like, I don't know, two years without even hearing the words Midnight Sun. And once I'm sure everyone's forgotten about it, I think I can get to a place where I'm alone with him again. Then I'll be able to infiltrate and work on it again. This statement jokingly leads to the creation of a nickname for Midnight Sun, created in Twilight Lexicon: Dark Noon, in an attempt to still be able to talk about Midnight Sun, but not to mention his name directly. Links First of all, I hope you and your family are all safe, healthy, and in a good place. That's the main thing. Secondly, I'm happy to report that Midnight Sun is finally (very close to) ready! And will be in bookstores on August 4. I hope this ad doesn't seem unskin; I really considered delaying the release until the world returned to normal. However, 1) who knows when it will be? And 2) you guys have been waiting long enough. Much longer than long enough, in fact. I don't know how everyone else is coping, but now the books are my main consolation and the happiest escape. Personally, I would be anything but excited if one of my favorite authors announced something new for me to read. (No pressure, Lineie Taylor.) So, I hope this announcement has given you some fun and something fun to look forward to. Working on a book for more than thirteen years is a strange experience. I'm not the same person I was then. My children grew up. My back was weird. The world is a different place. I can only imagine everything that has changed for you. But the completion of Midnight Sun brought me those early days of Twilight when I first met many of you. We had a lot of fun, didn't we? Throwing proms and hanging out in hotel rooms and reading on the beach (while getting the most epic sunburn in our lives). We did T-shirts and fabulous websites. We have found kindred spirits that are still in our lives now. I hope to go back to the beginning of Bella and Edward's story reminds you all that fun, too. Stay tuned this summer- we have a lot more interesting things planned. Music (of course), contests, information about the book tour, and more will be posted on this page. I hope to see you all soon!
