The classic Vander Human Physiology reaches its 14th edition completely reformulated and updated enough to reflect advances in physiology and medicine. As in previous editions, elements of the work - organization, graphic design and pedagogical resources - have been carefully selected to make the information more direct and facilitate consultation. Among the novelties of this edition, we emphasize the careful review and updating of the text and the inclusion of new figures, in addition to the inclusion of updated evaluation questions, the reorganization of issues in accordance with Bloom's taxonomy, fragmentation of complex topics into smaller segments to facilitate the assimilation of the reader and the inclusion of questions, figures and figures in clinical cases at the end of each chapter. Finally, the general principles of physiology have been integrated into all chapters in order to continuously strengthen their meaning. We include in this book all its theoretical foundations, traditional and new ways of diagnosing constitutional biotypology, offering treatment through needle insertion, non-invasive methods such as magnetotherapy, herbal medicine, exercise, silicon pills (stiper), and an unprecedented proposal to include floral bah and dowsing for the treatment and evaluation of constitutional acupuncture. We have included in the end some clinical cases illustrating this, the effectiveness of the technique, with excellent results. We invite you to enjoy this book.
