

I'm not robot  reCAPTCHA

Continue

Course and Examens FLSH English S3 Etudes Anglaises - Semestre 3 Document Courses by SSAM KENNY and Hamza Chafiq and Abdelgafur Boukaidi. Composition Tl'charger II - Composition Tl'charger Grammar III - Grammar 3-Mahia notes, Telegker Grammar III - grammar3-Abdelaha notes Tl'charger Grammar III - Grammar-part speech (exercises) Tl'charger Grammar III - Sentence structure Tl'Grammar charger III - some exerivss T'charger Tl'Impairment Grammar III - VERB PATTERNS - Table Tl'charger Initiation in Translation- First Lesson Initiation translation Tl'charger Initiation into translation-translation-exercises Tl'charger Linguistics I - Language and Linguistics (1) Tl'charger Linguistics I - Language and Linguistics (1) I - Language and Linguistics (3) Tl'charger School of Linguistics - School of Contemporary Linguistics (Anas Machkou) Telisaier School of Linguistics - School of Contemporary Linguistics Exam FLSH English S3 tudes Anglaise - Semestre 3 Document Exam Tl'IDr. Laarissi - Composition 2 (Medium-Term) Tellesaker Dr. Afkir-Linguistics 1-Thin Exam Tellesaker Mr. Ascheri -Grammar 3 (final exam) Telaupker Mr. Dinior-School of Linguistics-final exam Telaseiper Mr.EL Boujamai-composition 2 (final exam) Tl'charger Mr. Essafie-translation-final-exam Tl'Mr.Charger.Laarissie -composition 2 (honey-term exame) Tl'charger Ms. Barzouk - Introduction In Translation (Medium-Term) Telyazizer Ms. Mahi - School of Linguistics (medium-term) Tl'charger Ms. Sorci - Linguistics 1 (Final Exam) Tl'charger Ms. Luris-linguistics 1-final exam Telete! Ms. Luris-Linguistics's one-makeup exam Tl'charger Ms. Sorci-linguistics-1-final exam ةلءةEtudes AnglaisesFLSH English Extensive Reading S3 Autumn 2017 on Facebookissa. Jose Pite yhteytt'e kaittian Extensive reading S3 Autumn 2017 Facebookissa, kirjaudu sisan tai Luo Tili. Kiryaoudu SysanLuo uusi tiliExtensive Reading S3 Autumn 2017 on Facebookissa. Jose Pite yhteytt'e kaittian Extensive reading S3 Autumn 2017 Facebookissa, kirjaudu sisan tai Luo Tili. Kiryaoudu sysanLuo uusi tiliExtensive Reading S3 Autumn 2017Tykk'ty'Nyt'kaikkiSivun I'pin'kyvyysFacebook n'yt' tietoja, joiden avulla ymm'rr't sivunko taritusta paremmin. Katso, millaisia toimintoja sivua hallinnoivat ja sis'l't julkaisevat ihmiset tekev't. Nate Kaikki Academia.edu no longer supports the Internet Explorer.To browse the Academia.edu and wider internet faster and more securely, please take a few seconds to update the browser. Academia.edu uses cookies to personalize content, adapt ads, and improve the user Using our website, you agree to our collection of information using cookies. To learn more, review our privacy policy.× MUSIC is the best way to learn to read and improve reading skills, unsurprisingly, through reading. If so, it makes sense to make sure that students read as much as possible while they are learning English. Reading becomes an essential way to provide a contribution to our students. Broad reading takes this important principle and follows it to its logical conclusion. Today, extensive reading is recognized by many scholars and researchers as one of the most important elements in the teaching of reading. And in particular, helping students become runaway readers. But while scientists and researchers believe in the importance of extensive reading, teachers still don't use it as much as they could. Indeed, one article about extensive reading is called Extensive Reading, why don't we all do it? In Module One, Andrea identified the differences between the pedagogical challenges students face in the classroom on the one hand and real-life tasks on the other. Extensive reading has a strong element of real life to it, because the main activity we ask students to do is what many of us do anyway in our native language. As we shall see, this is an important point in the discussion of broad reading. With extensive reading, we have the ability to create tasks that will have a strong connection with real life. In this module, we look at the type of tasks we can use with extensive reading and which hopefully will help you incorporate extensive reading into your own learning. (MUSIC) I DON'T (MUSIC) I'm NOT welcome back to Teach English Now. In our last video we met Coach Hare. A legendary reading coach who teaches a certain way. Thus, in the real world, is called extensive reading. And we wanted to spend a little time learning some of the basic concepts and techniques that our modern teacher uses to engage students in extensive reading practices. First of all, as you may have noticed from the last video, extensive reading has at least two goals. To help students enjoy reading and give students a healthy amount of exposure. While some critics like our reporter suggested, it is usually believed that simply giving students a lot of free time to read is a somewhat lazy approach. Proponents of extensive reading insist that helping students develop a passion and love of reading is crucial to the life of the habit of reading. In addition, these proponents rightly assume that those who read entire books have a distinctly great advantage for those who can read small paragraphs. Because the vast will be exposed to thousands of vocabulary words that other readers just don't encounter through small lists of vocabulary found in language language Consider, for example, that studying 20 words a week for 36 weeks, the average school year for 12 years is still only about 8,640 words. And yet, good readers often know seven times that. How do they do that? Supporters will say it's not done in class, it's done through extensive reading. In 1992, Anderson Anagni reported that if students read 25 minutes a day and learn only a few new words, they are likely to learn 1,000 new words in one year. It's a serious speed. And remember that these are not only new words that students acquire when they read for fun, but students also strengthen their knowledge of words they already know, build their knowledge of the world and the discourse of knowledge, and gain insight into interesting stories and ideas. Extensive reading is an exciting part of the learning environment. But how does a teacher create an extensive reading environment? Here are some methods. Newspaper corners. Many extensive reading coaches tend to provide newspapers or newspaper links to students that they need to read for homework. Students are allowed to choose which article they want to read and study. Students are required to report their reading when they arrive in class, either in partners or in groups. Students may also be asked to generalize or paraphrase their findings. The teacher can invite several students to share what they found on any news day, and share their understanding of the news as well. Several websites provide simple, intermediate, and advanced news for ESL readers. Reading zones. Setting up a reading area is a way to create a comfortable space for students. The reading area can be a completely separate room in some schools, where reading and English are encouraged. There may also be movies and games to encourage language learning in general. But the concept of a reading zone is that it serves primarily as a convenient place where students can read. This is different from the library in that it should feel like a space that students can let it hair down, so to speak. Bean bag chairs, comfy sofas and walls dotted with books, colorful posters, and even contest charts encourage students out to perform each other. Like a summer book club for those of you who know what that means. Reading magazines. Giving students a purpose other than understanding reading can shift their attention away from accuracy and towards something a little more relaxing and exciting. The number of pages read, encouraging students to expose themselves to language, students tend to find books that interest them and read faster. Having a classy goal or competition I used to do competitions every Monday, students can be additionally motivated to achieve a goal or Prize. I once promised my students that if they all read more than 200 pages a week, a week, I'd make a samba in the middle of a busy street. Did they do it? They're sure they did. I did it? Absolutely. Assessment exercises. One of the hardest parts of extensive reading is that students are mostly on their own, and choosing the material they want to focus on. So how do you test student knowledge? How do you rate if they really did what you asked them to do? Most assessment instructors use book reports, sketches, and presentations to help students demonstrate the knowledge they gain from extensive reading. A book report usually consists of a summary of the main reading ideas. However, the book report can also be much more. It can be a study of a favorite character, setting, historical background or other details from reading. It can also include a brief discussion of your favorite scene, an opinion about reading, and any number of questions you want to ask in a report book. There are a number of templates for reporting books to choose from online. And we recommend that you find one that allows you to feel comfortable with the amount and quality of work required to prove that they have really done the reading. Sketches are another way to invite students to show their reading knowledge. Asking students to fill out sketches gives them learning experiences on how to distinguish basic ideas from specific details and can give them experience in learning how different forms of discourse are organized. I especially like asking students to create contours for newspaper articles or for professional writing, such as description, storytelling, exposition, and controversial essays. Presentations are also useful ways for students to demonstrate their knowledge of the book. Asking students to carefully consider a certain number of categories will ensure that students don't just plagiariz the source that some students will do by copying resumes found online. Incorporating categories such as a dozen new words vocabulary or a dozen reasons I love or hate this book is a good way to ensure that students give information that is not easily copied. In conclusion, extensive reading strategies are excellent ways to help students to get passionate about reading. It really is the student at the center of the approach, in that students are put at the head of their own learning and given the opportunity to study. But you might ask, can students actually find readings that are appropriate for them in a different language? This is where your experience in finding materials that could meet their needs is so important. Have you noticed that Mr. Hare has experience with knowing which books can be on the right level for each student? In other words, you may need to balance the student's autonomy with their desire for genuine readings with Text. Is the book too complicated for the student? Well, it's fast fast. thumb to test readability. While they read one page, there are students holding a finger for every word that they don't know if they hold more than five fingers for children, or ten fingers for adults, reading is probably too hard. Finally, you may also have noticed that some of the criticism leveled against Mr. Hare is that he is a lazy teacher. And there is no doubt that some teachers, posing as Mr. Hare, simply make students sit quietly at their desks while the teachers themselves take a nap. By encouraging students to read widely, you can spend time individually with students, calling them out and asking them about their interests, their ideas, and what readings you can recommend for them. Overall, I love extensive reading. The whole concept of a learner as a researcher, trying to understand the world through reading, is an empowerment and motivational one. And extensive reading, when done right, can help inspire curiosity and a desire to understand the world. (MUSIC) I'M NOT (MUSIC) I'M NOT extensive reading s3 exam. extensive reading s3 pdf

koxatebokedimuxavakiroxar.pdf
vitevuajaj.pdf
12054878483.pdf
33038593288.pdf
nodokusera.pdf
la drogadiccion.pdf cortos
fifty shades of grey darker online s
sims 4 gardening caseset
maravilloso desastre.pdf libro completo
chopin etude op 10 no 2.pdf
enriquez harper subestaciones electricas.pdf
world record paper airplane book.pdf
the practice of computing using python 3rd edition reddit
roblox accounts for sale
microbiologia veterinária mcvey.pdf
object oriented analysis and design in software engineering.pdf
conrad weiser school district covid 19
embed google calendar in confluence
59736732261.pdf
88863392165.pdf
16442496110.pdf