Editor's note: Sony closed PlayStation Vue at the end of January 2020. This article remains only for archival purposes. PlayStation Vue is a subscription service that lets you watch LIVE TV without paying for cable. This requires an Internet connection and a compatible device, but this device does not have to be a game console. While there is a Vue app available for both PS3 and PS4, you can also use Vue to watch live TV on your phone, computer and many other devices. The somewhat confusing name of PlayStation Vue happened because the service started out as a way for PlayStation owners to watch live TV without a cable subscription. However, the service is no longer blocked on consoles. You do need a free PlayStation Network account to sign up for Vue, but you don't need to own a PlayStation. Another potential area of confusion is that PlayStation Vue has nothing to do with PlayStation TV. While PlayStation Vue is a tv streaming service for cord cutters, PlayStation TV is a micro-console version of the portable ps Vita that lets you play Vita games on your television. PlayStation Vue competes directly with other TV streaming services, including Sling TV, YouTube TV and DirecTV Now, which offer both live and on-demand programs. CBS All Access is another similar competitor, although it only offers content from CBS. Streaming services such as Amazon Prime, Hulu and Netflix also allow you to watch TV shows and movies online, but only on demand. All of them are different from Vue in that Vue allows you to watch live TV just like cable. It's easy to subscribe to PlayStation Vue, but you'll need to make a free PlayStation Network account if you don't have one. It's easy to subscribe to PlayStation Vue, and it even includes a free trial. The trial is free even if you choose one of the more expensive packages, but you will be charged if you don't cancel before the end of the trial, so be sure to keep that in mind. Another thing you should know about signing up for PlayStation Vue is that you need a PlayStation Network account. If you don't have one, you'll be able to set it up during the registration process. You don't need to own a PlayStation game console, so there's no need to worry about it. Vue is available throughout the United States, but the availability of live networking limited to certain markets. To subscribe to PlayStation Vue: Go to the free vue.playstation.com/watch. Click to launch a free trial. Enter your zip code and click to continue. Determine which subscription plan you want and click select this plan. Determine what extra packages and standalone channels you want, and click to add. Channels included in the The subscription will speak in the kit and you won't be able to click on them. Enter your email address, select your password and enter your birthday to create a PlayStation Network account, and click the agree button and create a new account. If you already have a PSN account, click login rather than create a new account. Check to make sure you have chosen the right subscription plan and additional channels, then click go to check out. Click I agree, confirm the purchase. Click on. Click activate the device if you want to watch Vue on a device like Roku, or tap the watch now to immediately start looking in your browser. Click no, I'll finish it later if you're not currently home, or click yes I'm on my home network if you're home. The total purchase amount should show $0.00 if you are eligible for a free trial, but you will pay if you do not cancel before the end of the trial. If you accidentally set the wrong place as your home network, you may be locked out of the ability to watch live TV and have to contact Vue's customer service to fix it. PlayStation Vue offers several basic channel packages. PlayStation Vue has four plans that you can choose from. The most basic plan includes some of the most popular network and cable channels, while more expensive plans add sports, movies and premium channels. Four Vue subscription options: Access: 40 channels. Includes networks such as ABC, Fox and NBC, as well as cable channels such as ESPN and Disney Core: 60 channels. Includes all access channels and adds both national and regional sports channels. Elite: 80 channels. Includes all access channels and cores, adding movie channels such as Epix and family channels such as Discovery Family and Universal Kids. Ultra: 90 channels. Includes everything from cheaper packages and adds premium content from HBO, Showtime and others. Whatever plan you choose, the availability of live network television is limited to specific markets. To find out where you live, you need to enter your zip code on the PlayStation Vue channel page. If the list on this page includes local network channels, it means that you will have access to live network tv. If it shows ABC on Demand, Fox Demand and NBC On Demand, you will be limited to on-demand content for these channels. Like other services that offer streaming tv, Vue limits the number of shows you can watch at the same time on different devices. It's easier than some of its competitors, in that the limit is five threads, and that the limit is the same regardless of the plan you choose. However, Vue also limits the types of to which you can stream. While you can stream up to five shows at the same time, you can only stream on one PS3 and one PS4 at a time. So if you have two PS4 consoles, you won't be able to use Vue on both at the same time. Vue also restricts you to three mobile streams at any given time. This means that you can watch the show on your phone while someone watches another show on their tablet, and a third party throws a different show from their phone to the TV. But if a fourth person wants to watch another show on their phone or tablet, it won't work. In order to get up to a full five streams, you can use a combination of phones and tablets, Vue's browser-based video player on your computer, and devices such as Fire TV, Roku, and Apple TV. PlayStation Vue requires a high-speed Internet connection, and you need more speed to handle multiple streams. According to PlayStation, you need at least 10 Mbps to use the service and then 5 Mbps for each additional stream. So you'll need a rough speed: 10 Mbps to watch one show on one device. 15 Mbps to watch two shows on the same Internet connection. 20 Mbps to watch three shows at the same connection, and so on. PlayStation Vue allows you to add premium ala carte channels, or combine multiple channels, such as a sports package. In addition to the four main packages, Vue also offers a number of a la car options that you can add to your subscription. These options include many premium channels like HBO that you can add one at a time. There are also a number of strata that include several themed channels, including both a Spanish language package and a sports package. The sports package includes additional ESPN, Fox Sports and NBC Universal Sports channels, NFL Redzone, and more. The main reason to subscribe to Vue is that it allows you to watch live TV, and it's pretty easy to do so. To watch a TV show, sports game or movie on Vue: Go to vue.playstation.com/watch. Click live or Guide. Find the show you want to watch and click the play button. Direct network TV is only available in certain areas. If you live outside of these areas, you will be limited to on-demand content from major networks. If you're watching on a PlayStation console, you can pause live shows for up to 30 minutes. Pausing is limited to just a few minutes on other devices, so if you're used to pausing and then fast-forward through commercials, you'd better use the DVR feature. PS Vue includes both on-demand episodes and DVR function. PlayStation Vue includes both on-demand content and a digital DVR function. Unlike some of its competitors, the DVR feature is included in all packages, which means you don't have to pay extra for it. To watch an episode on demand or a movie on PlayStation Vue, or set up Go to vue.playstation.com/watch. Click channels. Click on any channel to view the available shows. Click on the name of the show or movie you want to watch or record. Click on the q button, and the DVR feature will register all future episodes of the show. Click the play button on any on-demand episode you want Vue doesn't allow a quick forward through advertising when watching on-demand shows, but you can quickly forward when watching a show recorded with DVR. To watch the show you recorded with the DVR: Go vue.playstation.com/watch. Click my vue. Click on the show you want to watch. Click the play button on any recorded episode to watch it. When you record a show with Vue's DVR, you can watch it at home or on the go, and you can also quickly forward, pause, and rewind. The shows recorded in this way will be stored for a limited period of time, after which they will no longer be available. You can't rent movies on PlayStation Vue, but you can rent them in the PlayStation Store if you have a PS3 or PS4. While there are many movies available for free on Vue, if you choose an Ultra package or any premium supplement channel, you can't actually rent movies through the service. If you have a PS3 or PS4, you can rent movies directly from the PlayStation store. However, if you're using Vue on a computer or other compatible device, you'll have to switch to another service like Amazon or Vudu to rent your movies. Wednesday August 29, 2018 9:12 a.m. PDT by Mitchel Broussard Following DirecTV Now adding numerous local stations to its customers, Sony this week announced the addition of about 200 new local network affiliates for PlayStation Vue users in cities across the United States. These include partner partners ABC, FOX and NBC in cities such as Buffalo, Honolulu, Memphis, Austin and many others. ABC affiliates on PS Vue now include Cincinnati,...
