Transform your phone with different lock screen styles, wallpapers, and app icons. Turn your home screen into a work of art with a fantastic catalogue of guality images. Kinsey Promes, guincy Aspiegel Limited. Android themes are in transition. In the old days, you basically had to eradicate your phone if you wanted to change things colors or make the Google Play Store dark. Today, many OEMs support a system-themed theme with dedicated themed stores, or at least dark modes that affect all possible apps on your phone, depending on whether the app developer allows it. However, many old ways still work today, including icon packs, third party Android launchers, various wallpaper apps, and even some more hardcore stuff like widget and live wallpaper creators. There are a ton of things you can do, and to be honest, it requires multiple lists of apps to name them all. In this, we'll talk about the best Android themes in terms of customization. We have other lists of apps related below for even more themed ideas. Action LauncherEnergy Bar (or Energy Ring)FacerGboardKWGT and KLWPNova LauncherRedditTapetUCCWWalliOEM themesAction LauncherPrice: Free /Up $12.00Action Launcher is a great place to start for theming. It comes with some basic elements of theming. It can automatically adjust the colors of the color launcher on the wallpaper. In addition, it has different customization options to make everything look pretty much the way you want. This includes Android 7.1 style app shortcuts, fast bar, smart sized icons, and items from the Google Pixel Launcher. It's also a rock solid launcher app. You can make all kinds of fun Android themes with this and a little elbow grease. The Evie Launcher is another great launcher with lots of customized options. Energy Ring) appsPrice: Free/Up to $24.99Energy Bar (or Energy Ring) is a series of apps that allow you to do fun things from the screen. The original Energy Bar places the battery counter along the upper edge of the screen. It goes down as your battery goes do. Notching and pinhole cameras are complicated things a bit, but the developer has an Energy Ring series of applications for these obstacles. Apps work on any flat-top phone, most pinhole devices, and about half a dozen cut-out devices. You'll have to check the developer's page to find the one that works best for you, but it's a neat way to emphasize the top of the phone. Facer and WatchMakerPrice: Free with the purchasesWear OS app has an extensive blizzard system. Facer and WatchMakerPrice: probably tops that. Both of them allow custom do look faces for your android Wear device. You can also find thousands of watch faces from other people. You can download your projects and contribute to that number as well. Facer also supports Gear S2 and S3 devices. Those with OS wear can use themed apps like this to make their watches look just as awesome as their phones with a bit of work. Gboard and SwiftKeyPrice: FreeGboard and SwiftKey are two of the most popular Android keyboards. They are both perfectly masquerading as well. SwiftKey has more unique themes along with seasonal themes and the like. Gboard's theming is a little more simple. However, both keyboards have custom theming available at the top of the preset material. There are other keyboards with this functionality. Gboard and SwiftKey are just two of the best in terms of actual usage as well as theming. In addition, they are both free without in-app purchases or ads. Thanks to Google and Microsoft! KWGT and KLWP Price: Free/$3.49KWGT and KLWP are two of the most popular themed apps out there right now. KWGT is a custom widget manufacturer. It has a ton of different features to make the widgets that you want. Application Google Fit support, most sensor data, weather, and even things like custom countdown timers. It also has Tasker support for even more functionality. KLWP is a live wallpaper manufacturer. It's This. editor of WYSIWYG, which allows you to create in its own form. It also shares many features with KWGT. This is great for Android themes. There is also a KLCK Kustom Lock Screen if you want to go even further and add a lock screen if you want to go even further additional to go even further addition to go even further additional to go even further additiona to go even further additi lot of customization options. You can make it look pretty much the way you want it to. It supports icon packs, subnet positioning, color controls, docking station scrolling, and more. There are also Nova Launcher themes in Google Play that add a little more to the mix. The paid version adds some extra features. You can also get a plugin that adds notification icons to apps. It's a good place to start. RedditPrice: Free/$3.99 per month/$29.99 per year Reddit is a great place to be. It's not an app that gives you themes, but you can find a lot of ideas in the right subreddits. We recommend starting with AndroidThemes and working your way out. People are posting their home screen layouts and then (usually) all the apps needed to get there. You'll find icon packages, wallpapers, KWGT and KWLP themes to import, and all kinds of other things. Here's a great example of what we mean. Either way, Reddit is free to use or you can pay monthly to remove ads and get a few extra features. TapetPrice: Free/$1.99 There are a number of wallpaper apps with some really cool stuff. Tapet is not one of these apps. Instead, this app randomly generates wallpapers with one of its many models. There are almost 100 models to choose from and the colors are 100% customizable. Everything is generated on your device, so it also works offline. This one has a bit of a learning curve. Controls aren't easy when you're used to how other apps work. However, this is a very minor and temporary guibble. You may find some seriously cool, one of the sort things with this. The free version gives you access to some templates. The premium version opens up all the templates. Some other great apps in this space include Minima, and Vectorify da Home.UCCWPrice: Free/$4.99UCCW is one of the most popular custom widget apps. He has a WYSIWYG editor. So you can see what your widget looks like, how you do it. You can add all kinds of functionality, including calendar events, weather, battery, missed calls, various notifications, location and more. It also has the support of Tasker. You can download additional skin packs as apps in Google Play. You also import widgets made by other people. He has a few mistakes here and there. There is also a bit of a learning curve. It's also good. WalliPrice: Free with in-app purchasesWalli is an above average wallpaper app. It has a bunch of random images and works of art from a bunch of random artists. It's kind of like Etsy, but for your your You can find a ton of unique things here that you usually can't find anywhere else. Valli is also doing the right thing by giving his artists some revenue from the app itself. It rounds up the experience with a user-friendly interface and neat playlist features to help you discover new wallpapers. We also like Google wallpaper, Abstruct, and WallPix for wallpaper as well. Bonus: OEM themes Price: Free / VariesAndroid has no native themes. This is part of what makes Android themes so difficult. However, many OEMs have themed in their skins. Samsung, HTC, LG, Huawei, MIUI and others have themed engines. You'll have to make settings in the settings menu or a separate OEM app store in order to find them. They can change the color and theme of icons, background, quick settings, menu settings and other elements that normal theme methods can't get normally. They are not too diverse, and some of them cost money. However, this is a good place to start if you don't share Android. Bonus: Root theming options Price: FreeRooted devices have far more theme options than non-root devices. Those who dare to break the warranty and go rogue have a ton of options, including the Xposed Framework for various user interface settings, Substratum and synergy to overlay the theme, and some custom ROMs allow different theme elements as well. This is one of the few good reasons left to eradicate the device because it allows you to dig into the system rather than being locked like a conventional, non-root device. We have Substratum related, but you may have to do some digging to find all the different options for rooted devices. If we missed any great Android themes, tell us about them in the comments! Also, if you're a little new in this, you can find plenty of tutorials on Reddit and XDA developers. Both sites have some pretty hardcore themed themes!
