Before Eli Whitney invented cotton gin, cotton picking was handmade. Currently, farmers may have to read the guide to know how to manage cotton gin. The word guide comes from the Latin root words meaning hands, and the adjective form of the word still asserts that meaning is by hand or by hand. The adjective definition also extends a bit meaning something done manually rather than the machine, and the consequences are usually that it is physical work. These types of communication may include a combination of hand signals, facial gestures and other types of body signals. Manual communication can be used independently, either in conjunction with or as a supplement to oral communication. It can be used in a variety of settings, such as a means of communicating with the hard of hearing, as a supplement to teaching those with reading or learning disabilities, and as a means of social communication. As a means of teaching hard of hearing students, manual communication is very important. That's because it's their main means of communication. Sign language is a complex language designed specifically to communicate with visually impaired people. It consists of different types of hand gestures and other body signals that can be used to convey meaning or communicate with other people. People who have learning difficulties like dyslexia, which make it difficult for them to read, will benefit from a combination of manual communication in addition to reading. The manual communication that the books contain makes it easier for them to understand the contents. Teachers and students also use manual communication while communicating with each other in the classroom. For example, a teacher might ask a question, and the students raise their hands. It is a form of manual communication that indicates that they want to answer the question. If the teacher points to someone, it will be a signal for the person to answer the question, and for others to put their hands down. In the business community, learning unconscious forms of manual communication can affect business relationships. For example, a financial representative who tries to force a customer to open a bank account can read a customer's response by studying unconscious or involuntary signals such as tapping his hand or foot, crossing his legs, and shifting the eyes of a representative. These are all signs of disinterest. The same can be applied in business negotiations and during business meetings with clients. Other people also use this form of communication in everyday interactions. Smile is a form of such communication, and waving your arms is also a form of manual communication. Cuddling, rolling your eyes in exasperation, and even blushing are other signs of this means of communication. Immanuel, which means God is with us, is Hebrew first appearance in Scripture in Isaiah's book: That is why the Lord himself will give you a sign. Here, the virgin will get pregnant and will have a son and call him immanuel. (Isaiah 7:14, ESV) The word Immanuel appears only three times in the Bible. In addition to the reference in Isaiah 7:14, it is in Isaiah 8:8 and is cited in Matthew 1:23. He also referred to Isaiah 8:10. When Mary and Joseph were engaged, Mary was found pregnant, but Joseph knew that the child was not his because he had no relationship with her. To explain what happened, the angel appeared to him in his dream and said, Joseph is the son of David, do not be afraid to take Mary home as your wife, because what is conceived in her is from the Holy Spirit. She will give birth to a son, and you must give him the name Jesus, because He will save his people from their sins. (Matthew 1:20-21, NIV) The gospel author Matthew, who addressed the Jewish audience first, then referred to the prophecy of Isaiah 7:14, written more than 700 years before the birth of Jesus: All this happened to fulfill what the Lord said through the prophet: The Virgin will be with the child and will give birth to a son, and they will call him Imumane - what god means. (Matthew 1:22-23, NIV) Jesus of Nazareth fulfilled this prophecy because he was completely human, but still completely God. He came to live in Israel with his people, as Isaiah predicted. The name Jesus, by the way, or Yeshua in Hebrew, means the Lord is salvation. According to Baker's Bible Encyclopedia, immanuel's name was given to a child born in the time of King Ahaz. This was intended as a sign to the king that Judas would be granted a reprieve from attacks by Israel and Syria. The name was a symbol of the fact that God would demonstrate his presence by ridding his people. It is generally accepted that there was a wider use - that it was a prophecy about the birth of the embodied God, Jesus the Messiah. The idea of a special presence of God living among his people goes to the Garden of Eden, where God walks and talks to Adam and Eve in the cool of the day. God manifested his presence with the people of Israel in many ways, both in the pillar of the cloud by day and fire at night: And the Lord went before them in the afternoon in a pillar of clouds to guide them along the way, and at night in a pillar of fire to give them light that they could travel day and night. (Exodus 13:21, ESV) Before his ascent to heaven, Jesus Christ made this promise to his followers: And of course I am with you always, until the end of the century. (Matthew 28:20, NIV). This promise is repeated in the last book of the Bible, in Revelation 21:3: And I heard a loud voice from the throne saying: Now god's dwelling is with people, and he will live with them. They will be his people, and God will be with them and be their God. (NIV) No, no, no. Before Jesus returned to heaven, he told his followers that the third face of the Trinity, the Holy Spirit, would live with them: And I will ask the Father, and he will give you another Counselor to be with you forever (John 14:16, NIV) During the Christmas season Christians sing the hymn, Come, come, Emmanuel as a reminder of God's promise to send a savior. These words were translated into English from the 12th century Latin hymn by John M. Neal in 1851. The lyrics echo various prophetic phrases from Isaiah that predicted the birth of Jesus Christ.
