So you decided to go from iPhone to Android. While you're excited to try out the new features in Android and its OS, there are also many things you need to do, including transferring all the data and backing up from the iPhone to Android. Don't forget, there are apps like WhatsApp where we have all our personal chats, photos, contacts and videos stored. So, if you want to know how you can easily transfer WhatsApp data from your iPhone to Android, just follow the steps mentioned below (via gadgets now): How to transfer WhatsApp chats from iPhone to Android So when you move WhatsApp backup from iPhone to Android, you should follow the following steps. Step 1. Open WhatsApp on your iPhone and swipe left in the chat you want to export. Step 2. Then you need to choose the more option and move on to export chat. Step 3. Once you're selecting, simply select the mail option and enter the email address associated with your address account. Step 4. You have to follow the above three steps for all WhatsApp chats you want to export. Once you've done the chat mailing that you want your Android-linked email address, follow these steps on your Android phone: Step 1. Go to the mail on your Android phone and download all the WhatsApp chat files that have been sent via the iPhone. Step 2. Remove WhatsApp from your Android and reinstall it. Step 3. Now you get to restore the data screen where you have to choose the recovery option. Step 4. Then you wait for the recovery process to complete and choose the next one. Step 5. Voilà! All your WhatsApp chats have now been restored on your Android device from your iPhone. Maybe you would like to use WhatsApp for work because it's free and easy to use. Maybe it's just a convenient way to keep in touch with your friends. Either way, you probably have some pretty important posts and media out there, and it would be a shame if it all suddenly disappeared. That's why it's a great idea to back up submission messages, photos and videos. Here's how to do it! Products used in this guide How to back up time between Android and iPhone If you plan to go from Android to iPhone and want to take your WhatsApp messages with you, you're kind of out of luck. With a backup WhatsApp backup device on your Android phone, you reserve time up to Google Drive. The Android WhatsApp app uses Google Drive to back up and recover. The iOS app uses iCloud to make both of them. Even if you have the iOS app Google Drive, you still won't be able to recover your WhatsApp Android files this way. iOS WhatsApp will only communicate with iCloud. That being said, there are some third-party applications that you can use though have not verified them and will not trust them with our personal data. As you back up WhatsApp chats in Google Drive Fortunately, WhatsApp automatically backs up and saves your messages in your phone's phone memory However, depending on the settings, you can also back up chats on Google Drive. So in case you have to remove WhatsApp from your phone, your messages will be safe. Just be sure to back things up before you delete the app. Google Drive is a great way to back up all WhatsApp messages. You can switch from your Android phone to your Android phone and you'll be able to have your messages and media follow you wherever you go. It's also a bit of extra insurance in case WhatsApp decides one day to crash without repair and you end up having to remove and reinstall it. Here's how to back up with Google Drive: Run WhatsApp from your home screen or app drawer. Click on the menu icon at the top right-right to the right of the screen. These are three vertical dots. Click Settings. Click Chats. Click on the chat backup. Click back on Google Drive to select the frequency with which you want to back up your chats (we choose Daily for this example). Click on the Google account you want to back up time. Click Allow. Click Include video if you want to back up video time. Click back to initiate the first backup. Now that everything is back up, you'll be able to recover your chats every time you reinstall WhatsApp, regardless of device. Note that whenever you back up on Google Drive, WhatsApp also backs up on the phone's internal memory as well, which means it will take up some space. If you have a pre-installed application management file or one like ES File Explorer, you'll be able to go and make room if you need to. It may be wise to connect your phone when backing up, as the first backup may take some time, depending on the size of the chats. The beautiful thing is that every backup you run after the first is gradual, which means that it will add to the current backup, instead of washing everything and starting over or adding all the backup over the old one, takes up less space. How to restore WhatsApp chats from the backup of Google Drive All back up. Well done! You changed phones or had to reinstall WhatsApp. It's not that great. Now how do you get all your chats back?
