The series tells the story of the life of Winnie O'Neill (Joe Gilgun) and his friends in the fictional town of Hawley. The first episode consists of six episodes, which ended on September 19, 2019, receiving positive reviews. Other key cast members include Michelle Keegan, Damien Moloney, Tom Hanson, Aaron Heffernan, Ryan Sampson, Part and Dominic West. Even before the first episode aired, it was announced that Brassic had been renewed for the second series, which premiered on May 7, 2020. The show was renewed for an extended third series of eight episodes; The release date has not yet been disclosed. The Brassic site follows the lives of Winnie O'Neill and his five friends as they live their lives in the fictional northern English town of Hawley. Working class groups commit various crimes to keep money in their pockets, but as they age some are starting to wonder if there is more to life away from the city. Starring and characters Chief Joe Gilgun as Vincent Winnie O'Neill; Winnie the Restless Man. He is constantly struggling with his bipolar disorder and scars from his troubled childhood. His mother left when he was young, and his alcoholic, safe blower father lifted him up as best he could. Winnie blew up his first safe when he was seven years old, and has been alive ever since. He lives alone in a hut in the woods on the outskirts of Hawley. The combination of rural loneliness and his strong friendship with Dylan and Erin helps Winnie cope with his highs and lows. It has a street-like skill and is dynamically funny with eccentric intensity. Also, Winnie is emotionally intelligent and has a greater depth of feelings towards others. He regularly visits his GP, Dr. Chris Cox, who doesn't exactly provide him with the help he's looking for, but his gang of friends are on hand to give him the support he needs and about its existence. Michelle Keegan as Erin Croft: Erin is fiercely independent, driven and turns heads. A troubled childhood led to a wild baby phase in her teens that left her alone and pregnant at a young age. However, her son, Tyler, turned out to be the best mistake she had ever made. Determined to give him every chance she ever had, Erin is in college so she can get out of town and start a better life. Erin Dylan's boyfriend, whom she loves, but he struggles to offer her the stability she needs, not to mention what kind of future she craves for herself and Tyler. Erin admits that in her relationship with Dylan there is a third wheel, and this man Winnie. Although she cares deeply about Winnie, she knows that his presence keeps her from her long-term plans. Damien Moloney as Dylan: Dylan is Winnie's best friend and Erin's boyfriend. He has a clever book and knows how to play an average poker game. He is in love with Erin and has a close relationship with his son Tyler, but his friends mean everything to him. Winnie is like Dylan's brother and one person who really understands him. Dylan lost the chance to go to university because he didn't want to leave his comrades, and, to Erin's disappointment, he never grew up. Sometimes he works in the Kat pub, but spends most of his time having fun with the guys. Tom Hanson as Leslie Cardy Titt: Cardy is a little cute. He just sees the good in everyone. The guys affectionately call him Cardy (short of cardiac arrest) because of his growing body weight and unhealthy lifestyle. He comes from a large family estate, and when his parents kicked him out, he just moved into an apartment above a kebab shop; paradise. Cardy struggles with confidence and has been bullied about her weight and stuttering. In fact, Cardy met the guys through Ash, who stepped in to stop Cardy from beating up a bunch of teasing teens. His role in the gang is that runner, getting gears, dropping things. Little things he can't spoil. It feels like at home in a kebab shop where he is something of a local hero and the famous winner of every kebab contest there. Another of Cardy's love for his pet pigeon Nigel, which means everything to him. Aaron Heffernan as Ash Dennings: Ash grew up on a travellers' spot on the outskirts of Hawley. He comes from a proud family fighting and, raised by his hearty mother, he can go to extreme violence in seconds, making it comfortable to get around like a muscle in a gang. While Ash is openly gay for boyfriends, he chooses to hide his true sexuality from his family. The boys know his woes and Ash and Winnie have boxed together for years. Ash finds solace in having mates who take him completely, and it's with the guys that he feels most like himself. Ryan Sampson as Tommo: Tommo a little bit but very pleased with the satisfied there's a lot of it in life. He has no family and he is happy when he is wanking or shagging. Turning his passion into a business, he earns money by keeping secret evenings for wealthy local businessmen, barristers and foreman. Tommo's take on life is extremely liberal: he does what he wants when he wants, and it's the one in the gang who never cares what people think. He is loyal to the boys, and they are the only ones who seem to shit about him; everyone needs someone, and Tommo needs them more than he lets on. Parf Tucker as J.J.: J.J. from a small Asian family. His older brothers went into medicine and law, but JJ takes after his father, who is a black sheep in the family. After a failed attempt at college, going to purely impress his mother, JJ set up his own auto shop in Hawley. To keep the more legitimate side of his business afloat, he relies on Winnie to bring him a dubiously purchased car. He chops them up and sells them for parts and spare parts. JJ is hardly away with a bit of a dodgy affair and his place in the gang cements both the group's retainer and technician. If the gang needs a car, JJ can offer a solution, no matter how unconventional it may be. Recurring Steve Evens as Jim: a farmer who lets Winnie grow his cannabis plants in an underground bunker on his farm. Dominic West as Dr. Chris Cox is Winnie's GP, with whom he eventually develops a close bond. He doesn't actually offer Winnie any constructive advice, although the pair agrees to help mentor each other as Dr Chris reveals his obsession with knees. Ruth Sheen as Kat: Kat the pub hostess at the local pub that the group go. She is very sociable, knowing them all for years and knows about the problems of everyone. Bronagh Gallagher as Carol Dennings as Ash's sister. She takes an interest in Cardy, leading to a relationship in Series 2 and a subsequent engagement. Jude Riordan as Tyler Croft: Erin and son Winnie, who was conceived after a drunken night out. At the beginning of the first series, he and Winnie are unaware of their father's personality, which is revealed at the end of the series. Erin calls it not quite planned, but the best mistake. He is close to Dylan and later has a father-son relationship with Winnie in series 2. Ramon Tikaram as Terence McCann: A local career criminal and businessman who Winnie steals from. He threatens to cut off Winnie's penis if he does not repay the cost of the stolen goods, which leads to the fact that Winnie faked his own death. In series 2, McCann decides to forgive Winnie and makes him work for him, surprisingly pleased with Winnie's fake death and fleeing from his thugs. Tim Dantony in Winnie's Dad: Winnie the Alcoholic Father. He wasn't Winnie's perfect father as a child, but he did the best he could. He considered suicide in series 2 after breaking up with his girlfriend devastating Winnie, who in turn sent him to rehab. Anthony Welch as Jake: Erin's classmate in college. He shows interest in her, which shows that she is in a relationship and is a mother. He develops a friendship with her in series 1, which turns into a relationship in series 2, after she breaks up with Dylan. It ends after his brother Aaron makes sexual advances towards her and then attacks her. Joanna Higgs in The Fire: a stripper and friend of Erin, who eventually runs the club with her. John Weaver as Carl Slater as a police officer who has been Winnie's sworn enemy since childhood. Claude Scott-Mitchell as Sarah: Dylan's girlfriend in Series 2. He breaks up with her after reuniting with Erin. Oliver Wellington as Aaron: Jake's brother, who is interested in Erin. He makes sexual advances towards her, though she shows no interest in him; he later attacks her, causing Winnie to brutally beat him. The development production of Joseph Gilgun and Danny Brocklehurst has developed a new comedy television series for Sky One, entitled Brassic, in which Gilgun will portray the lead role while Brocklehurst will write episodes of history and scripts. It began broadcasting in the UK on 22 August 2019, with the first series of six episodes broadcast weekly. Before the first episode aired, the program was automatically re-entered into the second series, and producers are optimistic that it will be critically considered in a positive way. They were right, and many critics praised the show for its comedic and dramatic tone; the first series ended on 19 September. On April 24, 2020, Sky released a trailer for the second series, confirming that it would begin broadcasting on May 7 of that year. It has been confirmed that it will also broadcast six episodes with all of them becoming available to stream via NOW TV from the premiere date, although it will officially be broadcast on a weekly basis via Sky. Before the second series of Sky, the series was re-commissioned for an extended third series consisting of eight episodes; The release date was not disclosed. Casting after Gilgun was announced as the show's host, Michelle Keegan, Damien Moloney, Tom Hanson, Aaron Heffernan, Ryan Sampson and Part Tucker joined the cast in other lead roles. Characters include Vincent Winnie O'Neill (Gilgun), Erin Croft (Keegan), Dylan (Moloney), Cardy (Hanson), Ash (Heffernan), Tommo (Sampson) and J.J. (Tuckerar), while Dominic West and Bronagh Gallagher also portrayed assisting roles throughout the series, starring Dr. Chris Cox and Dr. Cox, respectively. For the second series, Claude Scott-Mitchell joined the cast as Sarah, a new novel for Maloney's character. All series 1 actors reprised their roles, with Feet star John John and Bill Paterson will also join the cast as newcomers. West also repeated his role, now portraying a more regular character. The filming program is set up based by Joe Gilgun in Chorley's hometown of Program is set in the fictional town of Hawley, which is inspired by Gilgun's experiences growing up in Chorley. As for the situation, location manager Jonathan Davies said: We were given scripts and some of us had a meeting with Joe (Gilgun) to talk about how to feel and watch the show and talk about which direction to go. It is a very collaborative process to build a world that fits into the story and the script. People want to feel that they are being transported to this real world by Brassic. Despite his situation, Brassic was filmed in the Lancashire town of Bakka. Filming for the first series began in September 2018, when a fan tweeted: As if Michelle Keegan is starring in Backup, love her. The scene surprised locals as not many were informed about the filming there and who were the actors, with one local resident saying: There were quite a few people, myself included, watching and it caused a few traffic problems as people kept stopping. Michelle Keegan was there surrounded by security guards, and there was a Mercedes van ready to pick her up when she was done. Further filming included some scenes filmed in Bolton, pub scenes were filmed at The Star and Garter public house near Manchester Piccadilly station, while a remarkable opening scene of the first episode was filmed in West Yorkshire. On the day of the program's premiere, Gilgun said that filming of the second series had already begun before the first series aired, and they allegedly had previously had a confidential agreement with Sky a few weeks earlier. Filming continued throughout the autumn of 2019, with all previous series 1 shootings continuing, and locations were also expanding in the north-west of England. Gilgun testified in an interview that the cast and film crew caused controversy during filming when they were kicked out of the circus after one day of filming, causing the film crew to film the remaining scenes in the parking lot; Gilgun later stated that the circus did not know about the number of actors and crew that the production team was going to bring. The Marketing Trailer for the first series was released by Sky One on August 13, 2019, which contained minor clips containing comedy scenes from various episodes and confirmed a release date of August 22; this trailer was constantly shown on all Sky platforms a few days before its premiere. On April 24, 2020, Sky began showing the trailer for the second series, once again briefly showing clips for the new series and confirming its premiere date of May 7. On August 27, 2019, it was announced that the first series would be released on DVD on September 30. Lucy Mangan's critical response from The Guardian, reviewing the series, gave him four out of five stars, saying: It's a hilarious, warm, brutal mélange that works because it has a heart without sentimentality and authenticity without tension. Creator and lead actor Joseph Gilgun was praised for his work as Winnie O'Neill, while review aggregator Rotten Tomatoes commented: Joseph Gilgun is amazingly expressive as Winnie, his unstable features are constantly shrivelled together and apart, as at the top of the shoelace bag.
