As in previous editions, Genser's Histology describes in a simple and clear but at the same time the strict way of the basis of this discipline with the maximum correlation between structure and function. Following modern pedagogical trends in the world, he also connects them with pathological processes and clinic. Highlights of this new edition include: Updating terminology, adding new illustrations, and replacing many of them according to the latest knowledge. Incorporating the concepts of cellular and molecular biology, inseparable today from a simple morphological description. Using boxes with a background of different colors: yellow, with deeper knowledge; Red, with clinical examples; blue, with questions about the chapter, so that the student can independently evaluate his studies. Complementing the book with an additional Spanish-language website for teachers and students with lots of histological images, that is a great tool for learning and self-assessment. A simple-to-understand and very detailed text on cellular biology and general and special histology, created for students who seek to reach the scientific level required by 21st century medicine.
