Sending a message to this provider Vicky Grafton Photography Attention to Detail is one of the key factors that separates a good wedding from the really great ones, and the creative folds of napkins are a great example of how small details can make a big impact. While napkins are undoubtedly a necessary part of your desktop design, their display method doesn't have to be standard or simple. In fact, we believe this should enhance the rest of the decor choices you've made. Gone are the days of triangular pyramid napkin creases: From elegantly deconstructed folds to crisp and modern napkin designs, couples are becoming more creative with these lunchtime staples. Why bother with special napkin folds at all? Well, first impressions matter and it's a great way to set the tone for your holiday. Maybe you decide to have a traditional ceremony, but you want to free up the reception and really get the party started. A sharp landscape with dark napkins will immediately let guests know that they are in for a change of pace. In addition, a hemstitch linen napkin with folding backlight custom monogram will let guests know to expect a classic, elevated evening. Whatever artistic direction you choose, the thoughtful swipe times that match the style of your wedding will leave a lasting impression. Aside from creative folds, you can use the design of napkins as a chance to bring extra details, like tape or napkin rings, to your spot setting. Take this place setting designed by Linda Ha, for example. Instead of simply laying the menu card on top of a textured gray napkin, Ha decided to use a modern gold clip to connect the two items. The overall effect was chic and polished. Ahead, we've put together more unique folds of napkins and accessories to inspire your own big day choices. Whatever your aesthetics, you'll find your perfect touch here. Advertising Advertising Trends Now: Cluster Wedding Central One of the most elegant napkin folds just so happens to be the simplest: rectangular times. The edges of the napkin are hidden from view, and the entire fold serves as an understated base for the dining menu or seat map. Rebecca Rose Of Events accentuated this large rectangular fold with one gardenia flowering reference blooms featured in a cluster of central pairs. See more from this real pocket wedding once brings cohesion to the place setting by making a napkin and menu card of one organization, as Laurie Arons Special Events did here. For streamlined, modern That's the way to go. Advertising Elegant ways to decorate your wedding with calligraphy Pocket folds vary in depth, and this particular design pocketed almost the entire menu. If If The map menu has a comb or calligraphy detail at the top, this is a great option. It hides the type featured on the rest of the menu, bringing attention to the top motif or detail. Monogram Wedding Ideas We Love While This Jenna Lam Events Countertop featured a standard rectangular fold, there was nothing simple about the look. The rich monogram from DCL Productions was front and center, and any other style of times probably already detracted from the overall effect. Charla Storey Photography Dramatic contrasts in size can be astounding. Here, rusting red underwear was folded into a tight rectangle, almost the same size as the place of the card, resulting in a unique game in proportion to the design dreamed of grit gold events. We also love how color napkins are tied in seamlessly with We and You floral centerpieces. Advertising Advertising Rotating classic rectangular fold of 90 degrees adds a whole new feeling to the setting of the place. Here, the change played up a bizarre reception atmosphere. Vicky Grafton's Photo Menu cards usually lay in the same direction as a napkin, but Chic Weddings Italy organized this napkin perpendicular to the written word menu. The rectangular folded beige linen is subtly parallel to the table runner and La Rosa Canina garlands, creating a cohesive display. Simple, beautiful black-and-white wedding rings, only folding this napkin in half once, Sinclair and Moore kept the surface area large enough to serve almost like a napkin. The choice of light linen La Tavola as the base helped ensure black la Happy stationery popped up. Advertising napkin roll is a timeless option that is surprisingly versatile. Here, a gold napkin ring that references the gold-rimmed chargers seamlessly, was indeed the star of the show. The Corbin Gurkin Photography Dream Garden Party Wedding Ideas gold foil printed menu was rolled around a linen napkin before being tied together with a sprig of greenery and gold thread. With everyone resting on top of a botanical inspired plate, the whole look was perfect for a garden party. Jewel-toned Wedding Centerpieces course wow your guests when the rest of your tablescape is bright and bold, simple swipe times ensures that your design elements don't compete with each other. Here, sapphire table runners and precious central tones were complemented by an understated napkin roll. Advertising yellow wedding ideas that will make your day bright and cheerful When your plates are rich, it would be a shame to hide them. That's why placing these bright yellow wipes (all the way to the top of the plates) makes sense. The gold rings were the perfect touch. The La Tavola Fine Linen napkin was folded into a thick rectangle to serve as a map-setting menu on this elegant table. Don't be shy. Get creative with your folds. Here, Fete in France combined the look of the roll with the fold Create a napkin display that added a little extra dimension to the countertop. The extra height also ensures that the Studio French Blue menu cards have been shown nicely. Advertising Take a cue from wedding stationery when deciding on appropriate swipe times. Belly bands are often provided around wedding invitations and this napkin acted similarly by wrapping horizontally around the golden rimmed charger. Plaid Wedding ideas that are snug and chic While some napkin folds effectively hide most of the linen, the horizontal wrapper has left much of this beige Buffalo plaid La Tavola Fine Linen napkins visible, adding to the rustic countertop feel. The wrap fold should not be horizontal. This vertical wrapper lined up nicely with a menu map and contrasted perfectly with the Casa de Perrin table plates. Advertising Cool Blue Wedding Ideas You'll Love Setting Reception Tables With a Salad Plate and Charger gives your design endless possibilities. Here, the vertical wrap of the napkin once was artfully sandwiched between two plates for a textured blue-on-blue effect. Ashley Ludaescher Photography To reflect the beige runner table, this napkin creatively featured a layered runner of her own that added depth to the vertical times. Advertising Although the idea of swipe times offers clear lines, don't limit yourself to classic folds. We love how Ginny Au created a free, organic wrap feel with this Frou Frou Chic wipe, leaving the edges exposed. The end result served as a cushion base for Tara Spencer's place card. See the rest of this real wedding Two napkins have been layered together and elegantly draped over the setting place to create a perfectly light look. Christine Lim Photography When sandwiched between two crisp white plates, easily draped peach silk and willow napkins added the softness of this modern tablescape. The look was designed by Blush and Bowties with Hunt and collect florals. Advertising Geometric Wedding Ideas that are nothing but square Big Triangular once brought a geometric flair to this otherwise smooth and rounded vignette. In stark contrast to the loose, the look is tightly knotted napkins. The easily chic sensation of a swipe knot continues to be a popular style with modern pairs. This sleek black knot is proof that the napkin is perfectly tied at home on a black wedding tie. Advertising A Little Curve added interest to this knotted napkin and highlighted the rich gold Placesetting's Borrowed Blue charger. The curved napkin is also subtly framed by a map of the Prim and Pixie menu. Wedding Trend We Love: Macrameakut; The decor of this napkin fold featured a bit of everything. The shabby underwear was before placing at an angle at a salad plate. While the napkin had a lot going on, choosing crispy white linen ensured the look was not taken away from Noonan Wine Country designs are central or macrame placemats. The pink napkin, which subtly references that Catalina Neal's floral table, was top knotted for a put-together-meets-undo look. The whole effect of the amorology and hostess Haven exuded easily premeditation. Furoshiki advertising is a traditional style of Japanese gift packaging using linen napkins or handkerchiefs instead of wrapping paper. For this celebratory event, Beth Kirby-style furoshiki-inspired venue setting with taupe linen wrapped around favors in addition to Rebekka Seale hand-painted indigo muslin napkins that were draped over the edge of the table. Tara Hurst stationery and handmade studio plates tied the whole look together. If you want a special napkin display without sacrificing timeless aesthetics, consider adding a thin ribbon to an otherwise classic time for an updated presentation. Here, Toast Santa Barbara used a simple velvet ribbon to lift this classic diamond crease without taking away from the overall table design. Inspired by a fan, this napkin turned things upside down to create a completely unique look. Sometimes all you need is a reorientation of the classic times to create a modern effect. Advertising Napkins usually lay on top of the settings of the place, but this is by no means a rigid and fast rule. Placed under two layered Casa de Perrin plates, this square napkin folded anchor duo Weddings place design settings. Ashley Ludaescher Photography Rose Gold Wedding Ideas that make a statement simple times placed in a unique piece of place setting can make a world of difference in the final look. Here the napkin was folded into a simple rectangle, but was located at an angle at a thin rose gold product. Waterfall times are as easy to perform as it is aesthetically elegant. Just fold the napkin in thirds along before draping a piece of flax over the edge of the table for an exquisite dining landscape, as in-here. Advertising Exposed folds have created a light texture for this pointed waterfall Marquee Events swipe. While napkins are usually stacked in a way that hides the folds, this look from Mayhar Design was a creative divergence with the norm. Waterfall times crossed with pointed, diamond-inspired folds ensured the monogram on these underwear was shown in front and center. As an extra special touch, the napkins were actually hand-embroidered by the groom's aunt to be souvenirs for the couple! Trends now: Crest-shaped Wedding D'eaacute;cor This comb-inspired pentagonal fold is perfect for monogrammed napkins. Advertising a napkin folded into a geometric hexagon created a clear touch on these tables designed by Laurie Arons with floral flora. Even if you don't installing tables with chargers or plates, you can still create a striking seat environment. A simple rectangular fold accentuated by black black created a certain customization place on these banquet tables designed by Blue Gardenia Events. Two vertical opposite folds are framed by a drink card that has been wrapped around this taupe of hemstitch linen napkins from BBJ linen. Advertising heart-shaped wedding ideas for the romantic in you is perfect for a attending party or wedding shower, heart-shaped napkins have assembled this whole pink landscape designed by Calder Clark. Gold utensils, peach roses from Blossoms Events and hearty candy rounded out a stunning vignette. This pentagonal fold is both classic and creative. Thanks to the fine color palette, the diamond-inspired fold at this A. Dominick Events soir'e doesn't compete with the ornate rim of the dusty pink charger. A modern take on pocket folds, the pocket of this Kate Cullen napkin was placed at an angle as an organic contrast with the boho-glam Entwined Productions countertop. Advertising Although the options for napkin folds are almost endless, there's a good reason that the thin rectangular folds are timeless classics. Take, for example, this coal napkin. Clean lines and no-frills folded style make it a great addition to the table, allowing garlands of centerpiece and other design elements to truly shine. After all, whether it's top and complex, or simple and clean, your napkin times of choice can easily highlight the rest of your desktop design. Here, simple Ark napkins were stacked to be little more than amber moon design menu cards and effectively framed stationery. Stationery.
