I love board games! I grew up playing Monopoly and other strategic games, and loved it! We've talked before about how video games can teach personal finance skills to kids. But play can also teach kids about basic concepts of investing, money management, and more. And with the push to stop TV and iPad addiction, what better gift to give your kids than a tincious game the whole family can play together? Here's our list of the five best board games that can teach you about investing:1. MonopolyMonopoly is one of the best board games for teaching you kids about money and investing. Why? Because the goal of the game is to invest in real estate, earn cash flow, and have more money at the end. How do you do that? Investing at the right time, and having enough money to be able to do so. You can also upgrade and invest in your property to develop it and make it worth more. This game also has planning and trading aspects - you have to plan what to do with cash and you have the ability to trade and do trades as well. It's a great way to teach kids the basics of money management. Check out the big deals on Monopoly on Amazon.com - 2. Game LifeThe Game of Life is another classic tincture game that teaches kids and families the main money themes. Like Monopoly, except you choose different paths based on simulated real life options such as career and family. The game teaches really great money skills such as the importance of career and income. It also teaches children why it is important to start investing early, and how challenging interest works. Ending the game of life on the Amazon.com - The Million Dollar ChallengeMillion Dollar Challenge is the only true investment of purposeful infusion games on this list. But it's not at the top of the list because, frankly, it's a little harder to learn than any of the other games. The reason is that this game focuses specifically on investing - the first stage of the game focuses on learning how to trade, stop losses, and more. The second stage of the game comes into even more advanced themes in investing. The goal is like a game it is entitled to get to $1,000,000 before anyone else does. It's a fairly rare game, but you can still find it sometimes on Amazon.com.Check Out Million Dollar Challenge at Amazon.com- The cash flow of 1o1Cash Flow 101 is actually a tincture game created by Robert Kiyosaki. Love it or hate it, he teaches the basics of money very well. This game is a combination of board games and a learning tool. It has more training materials than any other infusion game on this list. The goal of the game is not only to play, but also to learn how to manage solid money. This game will teach players the basics of investing, income and spending, and even gets into advanced investing methods. This game also has a free online version of kids can play here. If you want an infusion game game Check cash flow 101 for Amazon.com - Puerto RicoPuerto Rico is probably the least known urgent game on this list, but it's a lot of fun and a great way to teach kids about money. The game is all about being a capitalist on the island of Puerto Rico. Your goal is to set up your company before the island runs out of workers, the capital becomes civilized, or the market is focused on full capacity. The average game takes about an hour and an hour and a half to play. This game will teach your kids about cash management and the importance of investing. It will also teach your children how change management can be positively or negatively impacted by changes in the market beyond their control. Check out Puerto Rico for Amazon.com- Bonus: Settlers CatanSettlers Catan is a tincture game where every player is a settler who tries to build their stocks while developing resources and trading. This is a great money management game that has several aspects of investing built in. We have included it in the list because this game continues to grow in popularity every year. The goal of the game is to get to 10 winning points by developing your land with the help of resource cards. Players can also trade to get the resources they need. There are also unexpected events such as a burglar who can stop production on the spot he lands on. Check Out Settlers of Catan on Amazon.com---gt;Robert Farrington is a millennial expert of America's money® and America's Student Loan Debt Expert™ and founder of College Investor, a personal finance website dedicated to helping millennials avoid student loan debt to start investing and building wealth for the future. Are you between jobs or looking for a side of the fuss you can work from home? Teaching English is a great gig to get in and earn as much as $25 an hour if you sign up with online companies that hire English teachers. Or you can make unlimited income if you build your own audience through a blog or YouTube channel. What qualifications do you need to get paid for teaching English online? Well, first of all, you don't have to be an English major. It is a misconception that usually rises as a concern when you teaching English on the Internet. The truth is that while you need to know the basic aspects of English so you can teach your students well, you don't need to have an English degree. Here's what you need: You need to You need a desire to teach. If you have taught in a formal setting before, this will be helpful. However, you don't need to be a professional teacher to teach English online. You should have an available time in your calendar when you teach students. You need a payment portal, especially if you will find your customers/students. You will need a video conferencing service like Skype or Zoom. It's best to do this on your desktop or laptop so you can share your screen and use it as a virtual board or show your students a PowerPoint presentation, for example. You need a written cancellation policy if you're looking for your own students, not depending on the platform. If you plan to teach English online, there are two main ways you can do this. You can sign up to teach with online companies. Or you can set up your own operation and create an audience using a blog or YouTube channel. Let's discuss them both. When you sign up to teach English to companies online, you will be paid an hourly wage based on several companies, including the company you choose to teach from and the country where your student lives. There are a number of companies that will allow you to get paid for teaching English online. We will discuss 10 popular ones below: VIPKid: To become an English teacher with VIPKid, you need to register and get approval. Once you have been approved, you can adjust the desired clock and students will begin to book you. With VIPKid, you will use their platform and resources to teach. It seems they are doing it so that they provide every student who signs up with them goes through the same curriculum. Although students come from different countries, it seems most of them are from China. According to their website, you can expect to earn up to $22/hour. Finishing here is VIPKid's TeachPartTime: TeachPartTime is another platform that allows you to sign up and be approved. Once you are approved, you can apply and be offered learning opportunities. Check out TeachPartTime here. Wyzant: Wyzant is a platform that caters to the many English items included. Once you register you are registered for their platform, you can optimize your profile so that you can get found. You can set your own hourly fare on Wyzant. Once you are done with a teaching session, you will register your watch and then Wyzant will bill the student, take the cut, and send you the payment. Tutor.com: Like Wyzant, you will need to apply and be approved for specific items on the Tutor.com. through this website, however, they limit how many people can teach a particular subject. So if there are too many English teachers, even if you can qualify for teaching there, you will not be approved for teaching English. Tutor.com likes to attract people who have a doctorate, doctorate, or who have extensive experience teaching a particular subject. Even if don't have any of them, it's worth a try. EnglishTut: To apply for english teaching, you need a teacher's certification and a four-year degree. Lingoda: Students who want to learn English, German, Spanish and French can register to receive lessons at Lingoda. There you will be teaching English, which is used for business purposes. You can apply to become a teacher at Lingoda here. CamblyCafetalkDaDa: DaDa is an online english language learning platform for children aged 4 to 16. DaDa is based in mainland China and collaborates with the American INSTITUTE TESOL to teach children English. EF Education FirstgoFLUENT: goFLUENT also focuses on business English, so if you have the knack for teaching that you can sign up to teach there as well. No matter which company you choose to go with, most of all you need a reliable internet connection and webcam to get started. The second way for you to get paid is teaching English for you to build your own audience and then monetize it. It's much more complicated than the first option, but the rewards can be huge. Here's why: There's no limit to the size of the audience you can create. When we logged into learning English online on YouTube, the YouTube channel with the fewest subscribers had about 1,300 subscribers. The demand for learning English online is huge with English becoming the preferred language for most business and educational transactions. So if you're committed to creating quality content and constantly posting videos, you can quickly build an audience. Once you have built trust with your audience, you will be able to sell e-books and courses for them. This can become a high-yield revenue stream where you make much more than $20/hour. Even if you don't want to create your own digital products, you can still make money from a YouTube channel in a number of ways: Google AdSense (you'll be able to turn it on YouTube after you have 1,000 subscribers and have accumulated 4,000 hours of viewing time in one year). You can make money as a affiliate, recommend products in an English learning niche and make commissions on the subject. You can have a Patreon community where you provide your students with extra value and charge them for it. For a perspective, if you charge a monthly fee of $10 and 100 people sign up for your Patreon membership, that is $1,000 per month in income. As I mentioned above, the hard part of this is creating that initial audience. This can prevent you from making a video for months don't get the results you want. There are tools like TubeBuddy and VIDi that you can use to explore YouTube themes and increase your chances of having your videos found. Using these tools can increase viewing time and subscribers and create your audience. Realistically however, expect it to take a year or so to get up to a significant audience you can sell. Running your own channel will also require you to invest in camera equipment so you can have quality videos. But even if you don't have it, you can start on your phone and upgrade later. You can get paid to teach English online. In this post, we shared the best ways to go about what to do. You can easily start by registering with one of the companies mentioned in this post. The downside is that you are at the mercy of the changes that happen to the company. Otherwise, you can start your own operation that will make you money for years to come. The downside here is that sometimes, creating an online audience can take time. Either way, you can become successful from any way. Was this post helpful? Let us know in the comments below.
