Solve the order you want. Choose to design over 20 templates to make a selection Our team works daily to offer new and attractive resume tables. This session is your calling card on your resume. All fields are mandatory in our generator training program. And for what reason? Let's evaluate the field from the point of view of recruiters: Name: It doesn't need to be explained, does it? Nationality, marital status and age: Before opening a vacancy, each company compiles a profile of a more suitable professional to fill the position. A company may be looking for new talent or someone with more baggage. You can look for single people without so much restriction, and who can travel or, on the other hand, married professionals who inspire more commitment to work. This information helps the recruiter who receives his resume to assess at the first moment whether his profile is consistent with the desired profile. Address, City, State: Your residence may be crucial for the company to know, such as the time required in your commute in the workplace (and therefore the risks of delay) or how many transport vouchers will be required (cost information) if you are hired. Phones and email: There would be no need to explain these areas, but it is an impressive number of candidates who have a great resume but who forget to put their contact information. Result: they are eliminated simply because it is impossible to call them for an interview. And where can I give my Social Security number, i.D., Nowhere is Josivaldo! This information is irrelevant during the selection process and will only be requested by the company in the future if you are selected. Back to fill when writing a training program vitae, you must abide by a number of rules and tips that aim to differentiate you between other candidates for the vacancy, highlighting your professional and personal qualities. Before you start writing this paper, try to reflect on your professional past and career by defining your strengths. When it's time to dig, do it quietly, without haste - read and reread several times until you make sure everything is in order. While the content certainly speaks louder, the presentation of the curriculum has many points to A well-presented curriculum, organized and printed on good paper, conveys the idea of a competent and differentiated professional. So use a good printer and white paper, in A4 format, of good weight (90g/m2, for example). Do not use xerox or print the document duplex. Just below, we'll list three resume templates with different visual effects. We have each one filled (examples using bogus people) and a blank template for you to fill in with your information. Choose the one that you find most interesting, not forgetting to customize it according to the vacancies you are going to compete for as above. Our team wishes you the best of luck in winning a new job, internship or new employment! How to make a free resumeVide these free online resume templates for download you may have been in the mood to create one of your own. It's easier than you think. Follow these steps:1. The format of a free resume is not to be used by having all the world experience if the recruiter takes your resume ready, sees the mess and throws it in the bin. To get everything organized, follow these tips: Use a source like Arial, Cumbria or Garamond; Use a size 11; Use fields 2.5; Make the titles of sections larger than the rest of the text. Size 14 is good. So the document will be well structured2. Divide the document into 6 parts The entire curriculum should be able to effectively communicate your professional trajectory. To do this, divide the document into the following parts: personal information and the purpose of the curriculum are always in the first place, but the rest of the document should be organized in order of importance3. Writing in a free summary When writing, think about these tips: Use the reverse chronological order: write about your latest achievements first and foremost to make a better first impression. Less is more: list only what is relevant to the vacancy. Perfect size 1 page. Use bullet points: they facilitate the digestion of information: with these tips, the recruiter will be impressed. Maybe he thinks your free resume wasn't that free and you paid paid to do it.
