Find a used car trade, resell, certified used and retail value used vehicles depending on the condition, mileage and other factors of car sales. Modern desktop environments, such as GNOME, KDE and Unity, have overshadowed the brilliance of Cairo Dock, but if you want to set up your desktop, you won't find a more stylish option. Cairo Dock provides a great launcher app, system menu, and feature set with a built-in terminal window. Cairo Dock provides a way to download apps using an array of panels and launchers found at the bottom of the screen, similar to macOS (or Mac OS X). The dock includes menus and a number of other useful tools such as controlling wireless networks and sound playback. You can place the dock at the top, bottom or either side of the screen and then customize them to your liking. It doesn't make sense to install a Cairo dock if you use Unity, GNOME, KDE, or Cinnamon, since these environments represent fixed ways of navigating your desktop. If you're using something more customizable, such as an Openbox window manager, LXDE, or XFCE, Cairo Dock will make a good addition. Install Cairo Dock using Debian- or Ubuntu-based distribution and apt-get as follows: sudo apt-get install cairo-dock for Fedora or CentOS to use yum as follows: yum install a cairo-dock for Arch Linux to use pacman as follows: pacman -S cairo-dock For openSUSE use zypper as follows: zypper install cairo-dock To run Cairo to run the next command in the terminal: cairo-dock - When Cairo Dock first works you will be asked whether you want to use OpenGL graphics. The answer is yes to this question to download the default Cairo Dock. If you receive a message that a track manager is required, open the terminal window and install a track manager, such as xcompmgr. sudo apt-get set xcompmgr sudo yum set xcompmgr sudo pacman-S xcompmgr sudo zypper set xcompmgr To launch xcompmgr, enter the next command in the terminal: xcompmgr and Run Cairo Dock at launch differs from one installation to another. For example, creating Cairo to work with OpenBox follows one procedure, while creating Cairo to work with LXDE follows another. When you run the Cairo dock you can also right click on the default dock at the bottom, select the Cairo dock and then choose to launch Cairo Dock at the start. You can change the default theme for Cairo Dock to match your taste and preferences. Click the right button on the default dock and select Cairo Dock and Configure. Select the Topics tab. Preview themes by clicking on them. To move on to a new theme, choose Apply. Some themes stick single panels while others are included 2 Some of them place applets on your desktop, such as a watch or audio player. You can find more themes for Cairo-Doc from DeviantArt.com. Once you've downloaded the theme you can add it to the list by dragging and dropping the reset item on the theme window or selecting a folder icon and selecting the appropriate file. You can also set up individual items on the Cairo Dock. Just tap the right button of the item that you would like to set up and then drag the item to another docking panel to move it. You can remove an item from the panel or create a completely new panel. Drag the icon from the panel to the main desktop if you want to have more immediate access to it. You can change the settings for individual launchers. Click the right button and select Edit. Alternatively, click on the panel and select Cairo Dock and Configure. You can set up different settings for each item. For example, an audio player icon lets you choose which audio player to use. Other settings include the size of the icon, where to place the icon (i.e. which panel) and the signature to the icon. To add a new panel, right click on any other Cairo Dock panel and select Cairo Doc's add the main dock. By default, a small line appears at the top of the screen. To set up this dock you can move the items to it by dragging them from another dock, right by clicking on the launchers to another dock, then choose to move to another dock, or right by clicking on the line and opting to set up the dock. Now you can add items to this dock just like the other docks. Increase your Cairo dock with helpful additions by pressing the right button on the panel and then selecting Cairo Dock and Configure' Add-Ons. Check the box to add new additions to the main panel. They can then be moved to other panels or to the main desktop, dragging them. The terminal add-on is useful because it provides a pop-up terminal from the dock, which is useful when commands run quickly. The notification area and old notification area add-ons are also useful because they will make it possible to select wireless networks from the dock. The final area of Cairo-Doc to consider is to set up the configuration. Right tap the Cairo Dock panel and then choose the Cairo Dock set-up. Select the Configuration tab. There are three more tabs to consider: Behavior: This tab allows you to customize the behavior of your chosen dock, such as allowing you to hide the bar when the apps are open, choosing where to spread the dock, and selecting mouseover effects. Appearance: This tab allows you to customize colors, font sizes, icon sizes and dock style. Shortkeys: This tab allows you to install quick access keys for a variety of items, including menu, terminal, notification area, and browser. Choose the item you want to change by selecting it. Double-click on the item to open the box, which encourages you to press the key or combination of keys for that item. But you can look more like a resident foreigner, thereby deflecting the scammer's attention to the more obvious tourists walking behind you and leaving you free to enjoy the good things about Cairo. Here's how: Wear your belongings in a plastic bag or general tote. Nothing screams tourist like a multi-piston, lightning-heavy nylon backpack with a visible bottle of water. Cover your legs - it concerns men and women. Islamic rules aside, Egyptians have a high level of modesty, and it's clear that you haven't been here long unless you're shy to show your knees in public. Food on the go is rarely seen. Munch on shaurma (meat chopped with braids and stuffed in a bun with chopped tomatoes and garnish) or ta'amiyya (egyptian version of falafel) either on the benches of a fast food canteen or standing outside, watching the world pass. Carry along a copy of Al-Ahram Weekly or Arab Al-Ahram if you want to go deep undercover. Cairo Nightlife Cairo is the capital of Egypt, and the largest city on the Nile River. While in Cairo, you will find many lovely restaurants, bars, clubs and cafes to keep you busy. Dinner and drinks Cairo is filled with restaurants serving all kinds of cuisine. Whether you are in the mood for Italian, French, Indian or local Egyptian tastes, you will find them all and more in Cairo. Restaurants Pub is an example of the unique dining options found in the city. Located on the island of Samalek, it is a favorite among locals and tourists. Although they mostly serve drinks, they also have an extensive menu. Arrival before 9pm as the pub can get quite busy late at night. Another popular hangout is Sangria. Here you can step off on the outdoor terrace and sip your favorite alcoholic drink or smoke sheesha, a tobacco with a taste of molasses that is enjoyed throughout the city. The cafe is also easy to find in Cairo. Most locals prefer tea over coffee, but you can find both in the city centre. Ask around and find a place to relax and take in the sites and sounds of the city. As you should whenever you are in an unfamiliar city, eat what the locals eat. Try homemade pita bread, dried fruits and local fruits and vegetables. Late at night, have a snack at one of the many street vendors in the area. Street food can be scary less adventurous travelers, but you have nothing to worry about. Millions of people diet dependent on fast casual dishes served on the streets of Cairo. Dancing After you've finished dinner, to one of the many clubs, bars and discos in the city. Cairo Jazz Club, Le Le Buddha Bar, La Bodega, Nile Dragon are just some of the places you should visit. The city also has several cinemas, museums and Internet cafes; many of which remain open until late at night. Tourists to the city are free to soak up, but it is recommended not to go overboard. The police will not hesitate to arrest you for public intoxication and petty hooliganism. There is no better way to spoil a good vacation than to wake up in a foreign prison. A swim down the Nile Cairo sits on the Nile River. The city has prospered from this waterway, and they continue to share close ties. Before you head to Cairo, research dinner cruises and party boats. Whether you want to bring a group of friends for a few drinks, or you're looking for a more family-friendly experience, Cairo cruises are sure to be satisfying.
