Post your Kik or Kik Display Name to Facebook, Instagram, Twitter, Tumblr, and other social media. Before you know it, your contact list will be filled with all sorts of interesting and interesting people. Your Kik username Before you know it, there are times when you want to share your Kik username with someone. Maybe you're sending an email to all your friends to invite them to join Kik Messenger and then connect with you there. Or, you can be someone #KikPal share your username so people can #KikPals chat with you. You can see invitations to a #KikParty posted on Facebook or Twitter and want to drop your kik there. For all these interesting interactions, you must provide your Kik username. This isn't the name that appears on the screen when you chat, but the only username you chose for yourself when you first created your account on Kik Messenger. It is really easy to find your username on Kik Messenger. From your main chat page, click the daisy tool in the top corner of the screen to open Settings from Settings, choose Your Account. The first item on your Account page is your Kik Username. Username vs. display name On your Kik Messenger account, you have two different names. It is important to understand the difference between the two. Your display name is what people see when they chat with you. It could be your real name or it could be something completely different like, My Cat's Slave. Whatever you choose for your display name, that's how you identify yourself with other users. It can be changed as often as you want. When you change your display name, all future messages and all your friend's message screen will be changed to your new display name. You can get creative with it as you want, but remember that everyone you kik will see it on all the messages you've sent or will send. To change the name of your display on Kik Messenger: Slowly Click the daisy tool in the top corner of the screen to open Settings from Settings, select Your Account. The third item on your Account page is Your Name. Select Your Name by clicking on the actual name, not the label for it. Change your display name by entering your first and last name. The name field is required but accepts only one word. If you want a display name with more than two words, put it all apart from the first word in their field. Easily change your Kik Messenger display name, there is no way to change your username. This is because your username is the data field that Kik Messenger uses to link your account to your friends. Not only is your username permanent, it is proprietary. You're the only one with that username. When you share it, you open yourself up to get a kik from anyone who sees it. You should only share your Kik username with people you want to interact with through your Kik Messenger account. Secure sharing Although you should be aware that sharing your username will help you get kiks from anyone who sees that username, you should also know the tools at your own mind when it comes to privacy on Kik Messenger. A lot of Kik Messenger users post their usernames as part of invitations to #KikParty, #KikGroup, or #KikPal. Many people drop their kik into a party or invite the group. They do this with total abandon because they know Kik Messenger protects their privacy. Kik Messenger privacy protection, with no link to the phone number or address in your Kik account or profile. The only time someone other than you can link your phone number or real name to your Kik Messenger profile is when you discover them (or they discover you) through the Kik Address Book Matching tool. To do that, you already have in each other's phonebooks. When someone you don't know sees your kik fall on their party invite, they can send you a personal kik to welcome you to join them and their friends, but all they'll see is your username, where you drop it for your invitation and display name when chatting. Nothing else is available to them. Your name, location, age, gender, and phone number are all protected when you use Kik Messenger. Block When you share your Kik Code, drop a kik into a party post, or give your Kik username any other way, there's always a chance that someone will kik some unwanted attention in your way. Maybe you already have a boyfriend. Maybe she's too young for you. Or maybe you two have nothing in common. You try to be polite, but they don't get hints. They keep sending messages you don't want to receive. Kik Messenger protects your privacy by allowing you to block users contact you. It's a tough decision, but sometimes you have to make it. If you take this step, someone else won't know it. There is no way in Kik Kik to see if users are blocking you. It looks like the message went through but hasn't read it yet. To block a user name: From the home screen, tap the user name you want to block for 1 second. A menu appears; select Chat Information. On the next screen, select the dot icon in the top corner. A menu appears; select Block (name). A confirmation screen appears; select Block. To unblock users: From the home screen, open Settings by clicking the small daisy tool in the top corner. Select Chat Settings. Select Block List. Select the user you want to unblock. Select Unblock. Drop your Kik Messenger username as your means of connecting with new friends to Chat Kik, parties and groups. To participate in all the fun, you will often have to know what your Kik username is: how to find your username so that you can drop your kik when required. Just remember that your username is different from your display name and will never change. Now, go out, drop some kiks and have some fun! Your Kik username cannot be changed. But you can change your display name! On Kik your username is your identity and is unique to you. Here's how we connect you with your friends on Kik.
