I had a bit of a search here to see if anyone else connected with/discovered anything! Ta! At least I'm not as angry as this one! BlueCat Moderator Messages: 2844 Joined: Mon March 26, 2007 2:42pm BlueCat Post Nov 04, 2014 9:02pm Those 2007 guidelines are currently under review. As far as I know, there is no other version, although you could imagine that there must have been as one saying that it should have been revised in 2009. The qualified guidelines were revised and published in August 2014, so I think AP ones will be available soon. There's no such thing as bad weather, just the wrong clothes. Billy Connolly. Let's say once a month from KP and twice a month from a cbt therapist? It didn't really fit in my head, but thought I'd check! At least I'm not as angry as this one! BenJMan Team Member Messages: 2216 Joined: Mon Yul 20, 2009 2:16pm Location: Lancashire Post BenJMan Thurs 06, 2014 12:49Am To my knowledge, minimum recommended oversight of the AP weekly for at least an hour, but I'm not sure where I plucked that from, someone can freely contradict me. Thus, once a month from CP and twice a month from CBTT will not fit the mark. However, to the best of my knowledge there are specific rules around who should control the AP, I know that it is certainly the case that some parts of the oversight are often done not CP's. I think giving a person has the right to control the actual actual it's fitting, I think the hero any man really intends to make is the best place for all the people and Maya Angelou. Two hours usually means one hour of official observation and an hour when they can be in contact with a psychologist, such as queries during that time, going over the report. Most supervision really should be from a psychologist rather than a TOC therapist or a TOC supervisory therapist as a supplement. If you want a TOC therapist to fully or basically monitor I think it would be better to call the position something different as an assistant practitioner. I would have strong feelings about posts called AP but do not have oversight by a qualified psychologist-practitioner. However, if it is decided that a person will have some share of his oversight on behalf of another profession (as is often the case with linear management, or a matter of oversight, depending on the context), then I think it is reasonable that this is part of the structure, provided that their practising supervising psychologist is the majority available each week and takes responsibility for their overall personal and professional development, and that the total amount of time the ring is protected for direct supervision meets the minimum standards of Miriam Watch my blog on baa Posts: 1529 Joined: W Jules 01, 2008 3:41pm Post Baa Thu November 06, 2014 11:23 am Thank you for your thoughts people. I agree with them and the same issues and I plan to discuss it at the next team meeting. I just wanted to check out that I still remember the AP world in the right direction! I've been having some ongoing disputes about AP oversight that people feel only needs oversight every two weeks - I've pushed for weekly and powers that will require evidence. I'm leaving, so it's more for the psychologist who takes over from me. C2B5186D05), if you look in section 9 you will find good guidelines on a range of issues related to oversight, including (in the content section): At least two hours a week of quality control should be provided and carried out in a confidential environment without interruption with additional oversight of clinical responsibilities if necessary. This should include renting one hour of official supervision and at least another hour of informal surveillance/contact. The exact amount of oversight should depend on the context. If there are several assistant psychologists working in the same department, it may be appropriate to have a group supervision element. If one assistant psychologist works in an isolated service, they may need to get more supervision. (Leaders and qualified psychologists should be mindful of risk and management mechanisms when agreeing to act as a leader in isolated services.) I think the hero of any man really intends to make this the best place for all the people and Maya Angelou. Apologies for not being able to post a link to the BPS website, but it won't allow me for some reason. Here's a link to the download: ... 9255.d.WU is very clear about surveillance requirements as well as some interesting differences between bands of 4/5 AP roles. Jilly's post on Feb 29, 2016 at 4:57pm those draft guidelines for the new release, but I don't think they'll change beyond that when it's finally formatted and released.
