Detecon is a subsidiary of T-Systems International, one of the world's leading providers of independent digital service providers and a subsidiary of Deutsche Telekom. Detecon, which promotes its Beyond Consulting approach, a significant evolutionary step forward in traditional consulting methods adapted to the requirements of digitalization today and in the future. The concept includes top consulting that covers the full spectrum from innovation to implementation. Innovative digital consulting requires an increasing technological experience and a high degree of flexibility that includes flexible but precisely suitable expert networks for complex, digital ecosystems in particular. At the same time, in digital consulting, it is increasingly important to accompany clients from innovation to prototyping and implementation. This factor has prompted Detecon in 2017 in Berlin as objects that expand the value-added consultation chain and accelerate the implementation of digital strategies and solutions using prototypes and concept evidence, operated by the Centers for Digital Engineering in Cybersecurity, Analytical Intelligence, Co-Innovation and Industrial IoT. You must have had one too. So over your head and start with a clean document. Google documents a web office suite that is capable of doing most of what other paid office suits like MS Word does. You can also export the document as a PDF when you're done by going to the file- Step 2: Write that your company does The first thing you need to tell your customer what your company is doing. Your client is probably a busy person and would like to know that what he just came across will be worth reading for the next few minutes. If you don't assure your client that what he's about to read is worth your time you'll lose it. Step 3: State How You Make It Now that you have your client's attention it is time for you to explain to him in a short way how you plan to help your customers. Break the task into smaller pieces. This gives the customer confidence that you know what you are doing and any money invested on you is definitely worth it. Step 4: Write your vision and Mission Every company needs vision and mission. Vision is the direction where you want to see your company go. Mission is a more realistic statement where you briefly talk about what your company is currently doing. If you can make these two things attractive enough your customers will definitely be interested in your company. Step 5: Let your customers know your team If you have famous names that you can tell jumped on the bandwagon, you're sure to some authority from this. This can be especially useful if people themselves have a sufficient level of knowledge. Imagine seeing a team where everyone is has 10 years of experience in his field. That's enough to win someone's trust. Step 6: Provide contact details Now that you have convinced your reader to become your potential customer it is time to let them know how he can contact you. Provide a phone number that is always available. Some people do not like to talk on the phone and prefer written communication. Provide your company's email address so they can contact you as well. 15 Profile Templates 1 Consulting Company.
