Spelling games can help them with their language learning. #4: Spelling games can help with other important game skills give people the opportunity to learn how to spell words over a long period of time, and they help cultivate an understanding of how words are formed. In addition, studies show that learning to write and learn to read and write rely on much of the same basic knowledge. Many adults describe themselves as poor readers and poor writers, and recent research has shown that the time Americans spend reading is at record lows. But guess what has happened over the past two decades? The amount of time Americans spend playing mobile games. Spelling games provide an excellent opportunity to shake off those reading and writing related skills as well as enjoying yourself. It's an added bonus that exercising the reading and writing skills you already possess through the game can help you grow and expand those existing skills in a new way as well. Top 4 Spelling Games for Kids Now that you know how words/spelling games can benefit people from all walks of life, let's take a look at our list of the best spelling games. First: the best spelling games for children! PBS Kids Spelling Games If you are looking for one resource for spelling games online that provides access to various spelling, vocabulary, and reading games designed for children's education and child development experts, look no further than PBS Kids Online. THE PBS Kids website conveniently categorizes many of the educational games they provide based on different areas of content. There are also games for children ranging from pre-reading to 8 years old. Younger children can also appreciate the fact that many of PBS Kids' Spelling, Dictionary Stock, and Reading Games feature characters they may already know and love from their TV shows like Big Bird, Clifford Big Red Dog, and Little Heroes Super Why! Getting to know these popular TV characters can be a great incentive for young children to engage in educational games. While there are tons of educational games on the site, one of our favorite PBS Kids word/spelling games is available for free online Super Why Saves Day. This game presents a familiar story as a fairy tale, and asks players to help rewrite history using the words they spell in the game. Players choose letters as they appear on the screen to spell out 3-5 letters of the word and then choose from a pool of words they have written to rewrite different parts of the story. Super Why Saves the Day helps children with both a sense of spelling and an understanding of reading. Perfect for: Kids ages 3-8 Where to Find/Buy: PBS Kids website, or download the PBS Kids Games app for iOS, Android, or Amazon Fire Vocabulary Spelling City If you're a parent or teacher helping kids succeed in school based on reading and writing is probably important to you. Spelling City games can be a great source of support! Spelling City is a website and app that gamifies literacy learning to help children and youth grow and improve their vocabulary, spelling, acoustics, and writing skills. The activities and games provided by Spelling City mimic the forms of learning and evaluation that are used to teach literacy in U.S. schools. Using spelling city can help students develop confidence and familiarity with how their literacy skills will be assessed at school through fun, attractive games. There are two different versions of Spelling City currently available: a free version and a paid annual subscription, called Family Annual Membership. With the free version, you can access spelling games online or through the app. Family Annual Membership provides more opportunities: In addition to more than 40 spelling games, membership gives you word study playlists, automatically graded spelling and vocabulary tests, and tracks student data and progress. In addition, membership is a version without advertising. Ideal for K-12 students; Families who are homeschool; Parents seeking additional learning support for their children; Teachers seeking literacy; Learn English Where to Find/Buy: Online on the Vocabulary Spelling City website or download the VocabularySpellingCity app for iOS or Android. Wordplay for Kids If you're trying to shorten screen time, Wordplay for kids is a great tincture option for creating child spelling, vocabulary, word building, and concentration skills. Here's how the game works: Players use a letter spinner to purchase certain letters, which they then use to form a word before time runs out. The longer the word they form, the more points they get. Words should fall under six special Food and drink, object or thing, living being, Something in the house, the name of a boy or girl and any word. Another advantage of Wordplay for children is that the game can be played as both individuals or with a group of 2-6 other players. The inclusive nature of this game gives children the opportunity to practice spelling with others who may take anxiety out of the process. In addition, each player participates in each round, which holds excitement and momentum for young players who want to stay in the middle of the action. Perhaps best of all, Wordplay for Kids is the winner of teacher selection, so you know its potential to help kids find success in school spelling activities strong. One word of caution though: This insistent game comes with small pieces that can be a choking hazard, so be sure to keep out of reach of young people who are still in the taste-all-you-touch phase. Perfect for: Children from 6 Where to Find/Buy: Buying tinctures online through Amazon Montessori Crosswordry Crosswordry Crosswordry is an app that comes highly recommended for children with dyslexia. Using Montessori's teaching method, Montessori Crosswords uses a moving alphabet with acoustic support to allow children to create words from a set of 320 combinations of words, images, audio and acoustics. The teaching methods used by Montessori Crosswords help children understand that words are made up of sounds, or phonemes. It also helps children remember the acoustics associated with letters. The app performs these two things, allowing children to interact with letters and acoustics in crossword puzzles through sound, touch and vision. As we mentioned earlier, learning to feel like playing can reduce the anxiety of many young students about spelling. In addition, this app solves spelling from a unique learning point of view, so it makes spelling accessible to children who have had a difficult literacy experience. Perfect for: Any child, and especially children with dyslexia Where to find/buy: App Store for iOS devices is only Top 3 Spelling Games for Adults Now that we've looked at spelling games designed specifically for kids, let's check out some top adult spelling games.
