Do you want to transfer the current Straight Talk service to a new phone or SIM card? In this article I will tell you what you need to do. This article and the video below were originally published in August 2016, and are still very popular in 2020. I updated the article, but you can still find the original below. First, this article is for current Straight Talk customers who want to change to a new phone or SIM card. If you are looking for information on how to sign up for Straight Talk, see how to register and use your iPhone 6 or 6s with Straight Talk Wireless or How to register and use your iPhone SE with Straight Talk Wireless. Both of these articles explain what you need to know in order to sign up for Straight Talk. Transfer the current straight talk service To transfer the current straight talk number and remaining service balance to a new phone or SIM card. You have two options. Move your SIM card from your current phone to your new phone Activate a new phone or SIM card from straighttalk.com Before explaining these two options, you need to understand how straight talk works. Straight Talk doesn't have its own mobile towers. They rent services from AT&T, Verizon, T-Mobile, or Sprint. Straight Talk uses towers from one of these four networks. If you bought an iPhone or Galaxy phone from Straight Talk, chances are it uses Verizon towers. If you brought your own phone (BYOP) from another operator, you'll probably be using the same towers with Straight Talk. So if you were a perviously AT&T customer and signed up for Straight Talk BYOP, your phone is likely using straight talk AT&T towers. The same goes for Verizon, T-Mobile and Sprint customers. If you don't know which towers your phone is using, ask Straight Talk. The easiest way to do this is to straighttalk.com and use the online chat feature. Here's what you should ask... Hi, my phone number is (xxx) yyy-zzzz. Can you please tell me if my phone uses your AT&T, Verizon, or Sprint towers? Move your Straight Talk SIM card to your new phone Sometimes you can move the sim card from the phone to your new phone. Your current SIM card will need to fit in your new phone and your new phone will be with the current Straight Talk SIM card you are using. It works pretty well with STRAIGHT Talk AT&T and T-Mobile SIM cards. It will also work with Verizon's Straight Talk SIM card, but it can cause problems. This is a great solution if you need to temporarily switch to a new phone. In the long run, it's better to activate your new phone or SIM card correctly. To read all the annoying details of moving your Straight Talk SIM card, see Move your Straight Talk SIM card to a new phone. I will tell you now that just downloading an SSIM has caused some people a lot of pain. Activating the Ne Straight Talk phone I'm updating this section for 2020 because I think it's a much easier way to transfer my service to a new phone than the old way I described it. If you bought your phone from Straight Talk or Walmart, your phone should already have a SIM card. If you are registering to bring your own phone (BYOP) or Keep Your Own Phone (BYOP), you will need a SIM card. You can order one of straighttalk.com for $1. Order a SIM card for the network you want to use and it's compatible with your new phone. Note that to use Verizon Straight Talk Towers, you'll need to check your phone's serial number (MEID or IMEI) straighttalk.com make sure your phone is compatible (authorized). I haven't checked Walmart lately, I don't think you can only buy a SIM in the store. They only had kits with both the card plan and the SIM, and if you're math you were paying about $10 for a SIM card. If you don't already have one, create an account for your current phone in straighttalk.com Make sure you can sign in to your account, and then sign out of straighttalk.com, select Activate Select Straight Talk phone or BYOP Choose if I have a SIM card, enter my SIM card number, accept terms and conditions, and continue If you're using a Verizon straight talk card, you may need to enter your phone's MEID or IMEI, then you will eventually be asked if you want a new phone number or transfer your existing phone number. Select the option to transfer the current number. After that, Straight Talk realizes that you are a current customer who wants to transfer your services. Below is my original article and video.... Transfer a service from straighttalk.com If you can't move your SIM card from your current phone to your new phone, then you'll need to transfer your service online from straighttalk.com Create a Straight Talk account To transfer the service using straighttalk.com, you'll need an account. If you don't already have one, now's the time to set it up. When you create a straighttalk.com account, the current phone appears as active device. Later, you'll be able to transfer your phone number and remaining service balance to your new phone or SIM card. You could probably create during the transfer process, but I think it is better to do it in advance. Your new phone or SIM card If you plan to transfer Straight Talk, you'll need a new phone, a new SIM card, or both. If you bought your new phone from straighttalk.com or from Walmart all you need is in the box. If you have a new phone somewhere else, you'll need it using your phone's SIM card. Sim cards will be available in three sizes, Standard, Micro and nano you will need the right size SIM card for your phone. You'll also need to make sure that you order the SIM card for the Straight Talk network you want to use. (AT&T, Verizon, or T-Mobile). Make sure your new phone is compatible with the Straight Talk network you want to use. Your phone number and service balance You can transfer your phone number and service balance to your new phone and remaining service balance as long as your new phone is eligible for your current plan. If you use Straight Talk's $30 plan you won't be able to transfer your remaining service balance to your smartphone or BYOP phone. Your phone number will be transferred, but you'll need to buy a new service plan for your new phone. The last time I transferred my Straight Talk service to a new SIM card, it only took a minute before the new SIM was active. Straight Talk claims that the process can take up to 48 hours, so make sure you plan the transfer accordingly. Transferring your service now, I'll show you how to convert your straight talk service. I am currently using straight talk at&T networking with my iPhone 6s with a $45 BYOP plan. I'm going to convert my services to the new Straight Talk AT&T nano SIM. When I'm done, I'll use that SIM in the same iPhone 6s. For most people, when you transfer the service you will transfer your services to a new Straight Talk phone or BYOP SIM card. If the transfer is to a new SIM card, it would usually be a different size SIM card or for a different network, otherwise you'd move the sim card. Go to straighttalk.com On the Menu, click Activation under Bring your own phone or devices, Click Activate by I have a SIM card, Click Select under Enter sim number here, and enter your SIM number. Click Continue under KEEP MY NUMBER, click Select under Enter the phone number you want to keep here, enter your phone number, click Continue under We've noticed that you're currently an active Straight Talk customer. To continue this process, sign in to your account., Sign in with your straighttalk.com Under New device information, make sure your SIM number is correct. The first 5 digits may be missing. This is ok Under New device information, enter the nickname for the new phone or SIM card if you want to about the current device, check the button on the left side of the current When it's ready, click submit submit
