Bhagavad Gita is the knowledge of the five basic truths and the relationship of each truth to the other: these five truths are Krishna, or God, the individual soul, the material world, the action in this world and the time. Geeta clearly explains the nature of consciousness, itself and the universe. This is the essence of India's spiritual wisdom. Bhagavad Gita, is part of the 5th Veda (written by Vedavyas - an ancient Indian saint) and the Indian epic - Mahabharata. For the first time at the Battle of Kurukshetra, Lord Krishna told Arjun. Bhagavad Gita, also called Geeta, is a 700-verse dharma Scripture that is part of the ancient Sanskrit epic Mahabharata. This scripture contains a conversation between Prince Pandama Arjuna and his guide Krishna on a number of philosophical issues. Faced with a fratricidal war, a dull Arjuna turns to his chariot Krishna for advice on the battlefield. Krishna, in the course of Bhagavad Gita, gives Arjuna wisdom, a path to devotion, and a doctrine of selfless action. Bhagavad Gita supports the essence and philosophical tradition of the Upanishads. However, unlike the strict Monism of the Upanishads, Bhagavad Gita also integrates dualism and theism. Numerous comments have been written on Bhagavad Gita with widely different views on essentials, starting with Adi Sankara's comments about Bhagavad Gita in the eighth century AD. Commentators see in the staging of Bhagavad Gita on the battlefield allegory of the ethical and moral struggles of human life. Bhagavad Gita's call for selfless action inspired many leaders of the Indian independence movement, including Mohandas Karamchanda Gandhi, who referred to Bhagavad Gita as his spiritual dictionary.
