

I'm not robot  reCAPTCHA

Continue

Persuasive speech outline topics

Are you struggling to find a good persuasive speech topic? It can be hard to find topics that interest you and your audience, but in this guide we've done hard work and created a list of 105 persuasive speech ideas. They are organized into ten categories and cover a wide range of topics, so you're definitely looking for one that interests you. In addition to our list, we also go over which factors make good speech topics and three tips you need to follow while researching and writing your persuasive speeches. What Makes a Good Persuasive Speech Topic? What makes a topic of speech that persuades certain better than others? There are many reasons, but in this section we discuss the three most important factors of great topics for persuasive speech. It's something you Know About or Is Interested in Learning About The Most Important Factors in choosing and creating great persuasive greetings is to choose a topic you care about and are interested in. You have to do a lot of research on this topic, and if it's something you like learning about, that will make the process easier and more enjoyable. It will also help you ring the spirit and be informed when you speak, both important factors in giving you excellent persuasive speech. It was the Topic of Caring People In the fourth grade, after being told I could give a persuasive speech on any topic I wanted, I chose to discuss why the Saguaro cactus should be the national factory of the United States. While I gave an impassioned talk and pulled a life-sized Saguaro cactus on a butcher paper to hang behind me, I doubt anyone enjoyed the speech a lot. I recently returned from a family holiday to Arizona where I'd seen Saguaro cacti for the first time and decided they were the coolest thing ever. However, most people don't care that much about Saguaro cacti, and most people don't care what plants our country is or if we have one (for records, the US has national flowers, and it's a rose). Spare yourself smattering the applause my nine-year-old got at the end of my speech and picked something you thought people would be interested in hearing about. This also minimizes knowing your audience, which we discuss more in the final section. It Wasn't Overdone When I was in high school, almost every speech persuaded my classmates and I was assigned was the same topic: should the drinking age be lowered to 18? I got this prompt in English class, on standard tests, in class and debates, etc. I have written and presented about it often I can probably still rattle off all the key points of my old speech words. You can imagine that everyone's eyes are layered when classmates give their speeches on this topic. We'll hear about it many times that, although it's a topic we care about, the speeches on it just don't interest us anymore. These are many potential topics for Speech. Carefully choose one that cliché or overdone. Even if you give a great speech, it's harder to keep your audience interested if they feel like they already know what you're going to say. The exception to this rule is that if you feel you have a new point of view or fact on a topic that is currently not general knowledge. Including them can create interesting overdone topics. If you do this, be sure to explain it earlier in your speech that you have unique information or opinions on this topic so your audience knows to expect something new. 105 Topics for Persuading Speech Here is our list of 105 persuasive speech ideas. We make sure to choose topics that aren't excessive, yet many people will have an interest, and we also make the point of choosing a topic with multiple points of view rather than a simple topic that has a clearer answer (i.e. bad disinfl?). These topics are organized into ten categories. Arts/Culture If arts and music therapy is covered by health insurance? Should all students be required to learn instruments in school? Should all national museums be free to citizens? Should graffiti be considered an art? Does the offensive language be removed from classical literary works? Is the paper book better than e-books? Economy Should all trainees be paid for their work? Should employees receive bonuses for walking or cycling to work? Will Brexit hurt or help the UK economy? Should everyone over the age of 65 be able to take the bus for free? Should the federal minimum wage be increased? Should tips on the restaurant be obliged? Should Black Friday sales be allowed to start on Thanksgiving? Should students who boyrain others be expelled? Should all schools require students to wear uniforms? Should boys and girls be taught in a separate classroom? Should students be allowed to listen to music during the study hall? Should all primary schools be required to teach a foreign language? Should schools include meditation or leisure during the day? Should grades in gym classes affect student GPA? Should teachers get bonuses when their students score well on standard tests? Should children of illegal immigrants be allowed to attend public schools? Should students be paid for a particular GPA? Should students be allowed to have their cell phones with them during school? Should high school students be allowed out of school during lunch breaks? Should Greek life in college be abolished? If the school student is secondary volunteering a few hours before they can finish their studies? Should schools still teach cursive handwriting? What's the best way for schools to stop whistleblowing? Ethics Should prostitution be legally verified? Should people with more than one DUI lose their driver's license? Should people be required to light snow from the right foot in front of their house? Their minors can drink alcohol in their homes if they get their parents' consent? Should guns be allowed on college campuses? Should the burning of the flag as a form of illegal protest? Should welfare recipients be required to pass a drug test? Should white supremacy groups be allowed to hold gatherings in public places? Should weapons of unsuited assault? Should the death penalty be abolished? Should the beauty page for children be banned? Does OK refuse to serve same-sex couples based on religious beliefs? Should transgender people be allowed to serve in the military? Is it better to live together before getting married or waiting? Should affirmative action be allowed? Should prisoners be allowed to vote? Should Columbus Day be replaced by Aboriginal Day? Government/Politics Should governments spend more money on developing high-speed rail lines and less to build new roads? Should the government be allowed to filter internet content deemed inappropriate? Should Puerto Rico become the 51st state? Should Scotland declare independence from the United Kingdom? Whose face should be on the next new currency printed by the US? Should people convicted of drug possession be sent to a rehabilitation program rather than jail? Should voting be made compulsory? Who is the best American president? Should the military budget be reduced? Should the President be allowed to serve more than two terms? Should a border fence be built between the United States and Mexico? Should countries pay ransoms to terrorist groups for free ransoms? Should minors be able to purchase birth control without their parents' consent? Need to hide or lie about your HIV status with someone you sleep unorthodoxly? Should the government soda taxes and other sugary drinks and use the proceeds for public health? Should high school provide free condoms to students? Should the US turn to single-payer health care? Should a healthy person be required to donate blood regularly? Should assisted suicide be valid? Should religious organizations be required to pay taxes? Should the religious slaughter of animals be banned? Should the Church of Scientology be exempted from paying taxes? Should women be allowed to become priests? Should a country be allowed to accept only refugees with certain religious beliefs? Should public prayers be allowed in schools? Science/Environment If human cloning is allowed? Should people be allowed to own exotic animals such as tigers and monkeys? If the selfie of the animal in a tourist location with famous animals (such as koala and tigers) are allowed? Should genetically modified foods be sold at grocery stores? Should people be allowed to own pit bulls? Should parents be allowed to choose the gender of their unborn children? Should vaccinations be required for students to attend public schools? What is it What kind of renewable energy is the best? Should plastic bags be banned in grocery stores? Should the United States rejoin the Paris Agreement? Should dog factories be banned? Should fracking become law? Should animal tests be illegal? Should offshore drilling be allowed in protected sea areas? Should the US government increase NASA's budget? Should Pluto still be considered a planet? Sports If college athletes are paid for being on a sports team? Should all athletes be required to pass regular drug tests? Should professional female athletes be paid the same as male athletes in the same sport? Is there any case when athletes should be allowed to use steroids? Should college sports teams receive less funding? Should boxing be illegal? If a school is required to teach all students how to swim? Need cheerlea should be considered sport? Should parents let their children play tackle football? Technology Will robots reduce or increase human employment opportunities? How old should a child be allowed to have a cell phone? Should the library be replaced by unlimited access to e-books? Overall, have technology help connect people or isolate them? Should self-driving cars be valid? Should all new buildings become energy efficient? Is Net Neutrality a good thing or a bad thing? Does violent video games encourage players to become violent in real life? 3 Bonus Tips for Crafting SpeechEs Persuading You Of course, giving a great persuasive speech need more than just choosing a good topic. Follow the three tips below to create stellar greetings that will attract and impress your audience. Does Your Research For persuasive speech, there's nothing worse than getting audience questions that show you misunderstood the issue or leave an important piece. It makes your whole speech look weak and unconvint. Before you start writing a word of your speech, be sure to do a lot of research on all sides of the topic. Take a look at the different resources and points of view to make sure you get the full picture, and if you know any experts on the topic, be sure to ask their opinions as well. Consider all the topics of speech Angles Persuading rarely black and white, which means there will be several sides and points of view on this topic. For example, for a topic if people are allowed to have pit cows? There are two clear points of view: everyone should be allowed to own pit cows if they wish, and no one should be allowed to own a cow Pit. But there are other options you need to consider: people only need to have a pit bull if they pass a dog training class, one should be able to have a pit bull, but only if it is the only dog they have, one should be able to have pi bulls but only if they live a certain distance from school, one should be able to have a pit bull only if the dog passes the obedience class etc. In speech you will make you seem well informed on this topic, and it will improve the quality of your speech by looking at the nuances of the difference in issue. Know Your Audience Every time you give a speech, it's important to consider your audience, and this is especially true for persuasive speech when you're trying to convince people to trust a certain point of view. When writing your speech, think about what your audience might already know about this topic, what they might need to explain, and the topic aspects they care most about. Also consider what viewers will be most concerned about for specific topics, and be sure to address those concerns. For example, if you give a speech to a Catholic organization about why you think priests should be allowed to marry, you don't have to go to Catholic history or its core beliefs (which they may already know), but you should mention any leading research or opinion opinions that support your views (which they may not know about). They may worry that married priests will not commit to Their Lord or their congregation, so be sure to address those concerns and why they shouldn't worry about them as much as they think. Discussing your topic with people (ideally those with a viewpoint similar to your future audience) before you give your speech is a great way to get a better understanding of how your audience thinks. More Resources to Write Persuading Speech If you need more guidance or just want to check out some great persuasive examples of writing, consider checking out the following books: Conclusion: The Idea of A Speech That Persuades Good speech Topics can be difficult to think about, but in this guide we have compiled a list of the 105 interesting ideas the best speech ideas persuade is about topics you are interested in, not excessive, and will be about something your audience cares about. After you choose your topic, keep these three tips in mind when writing your persuasive speech: Do your research Consider all corners Know your Audience What Next? Want a great GPA? Check out our step-by-step guide to getting good grades in high school so you can have a stellar transcript. Interested in learning about great co-curricular opportunities? Learn more about job shadows, community services, and volunteer programs abroad. Still trying to figure out your course? Check out our expert guide where the classes you need to take in high school. Want to increase your SAT score by 160 points or ACT you as many as 4 eyes? We've written a guide to each test of the top 5 strategies you should use to have a punch to improve your score. Download for free now: now: now: