Calculate your 10-year risk of heart disease or stroke using the ASCVD algorithm published in 2013 by acc/AHA's Cardiovascular Risk Assessment Guide. This calculator suggests that you have not had a previous heart attack or stroke. If you have, it is usually recommended to discuss with your doctor about starting aspirin and statins. In addition, if you have LDL-cholesterol (bad cholesterol) more than 190, it is also generally recommended to discuss with your doctor about starting aspirin and statins. Unfortunately, there is insufficient data to reliably predict the risk for those under 40 or over 79 years of age and for those with total cholesterol levels of more than 320. UPDATE (11/21/17) -- ACC/AHA has released its 2017 Guide to Prevention, Detection, Evaluation and Management of High Blood Pressure in Adults. At a high level, the new guidelines override hypertension like blood pressure zgt:130/80 and recommend starting an anti-hypertension-based ASCVD risk assessment of zgt:10%. This will be a significant change as JNC-8. Please let us know if you want us to include new guidelines in cvriskcalculator.com by filling out this one question survey. UPDATE (6/30/16) - The calculator has been tested against the final guidelines from the USPSTF for the start of aspirin therapy. UPDATE (9/18/15) -- The calculator now also includes draft guidelines from the USPSTF to initiate aspirin therapy. UPDATE (5/26/14) - The calculator now also includes guidelines from JNC-8 for blood pressure management. The Excel table is also available for download.
