There are many methods available to install the Google Play Service and Google Play Store on MIUI. However, some are unable to install and enable Google Contact synchronization properly. Today I'm going to share a simple method for installing the Google Play Store on MIUI. Follow the steps below to install the Google Play Store on miUI. 1. Go to the Mi App Store and search Google on the search rack. Now scroll down and click on the Baidu icon. You'll see an app about 168KB with the Google Play Store logo, install it. 2. Open the app and click on the blue round icon below. It will start downloading Google's service framework. You'll need to install it manually just by clicking on the installation. Note: You need to include Unknown Sources from the Privacy Settings. If it's not on, it automatically helps you turn it on. 3. Now it will download Google Account Manager, Google Play Services, Google Calendar Sync, Google Contact sync one by one and you just need to click on the installation. 4. Finally, it will download the Google Play Store! Just set it up! 5. Once you've installed the Google Play Store, log into the Play Store. That's it! Hope this helps you install the Google Play Store easily. Now, what if Google Contact Sync and Google Calendar Sync don't work? Well, you can fix this by setting the appropriate permission and restrictions. And to do this, you need to go to the settings of installed applications, and then search Boogle in the search bar. You'll see Google Contact Sync and Google Calendar Sync in the list, as in the picture below. Then open Google contact synchronization. Turn on the automatic start of the switch. Set battery savers on Unlimited internet access permission, Now open the resolution and set the required permission for contact reading, modification, and information about installed applications. Follow a similar approach with Google Calendar Sync settings and set an automatic launch and no battery restrictions. Then set the resolution settings. Now google Contact Sync and Google Calendar Sync have the proper permission and settings to work with. But you need to do one more thing to make sure it is not interrupted. Go to the Google Play service from installed apps and include all the necessary permissions related to the contact and calendar. That's it! Comment below This guide is helpful to you...
