

I'm not robot

reCAPTCHA

Continue

Thank you in your heart Author : L. Putut Pudyantoro Nada Dasar Bb B B F Prostrate us at the altar, Fm Bb Eb Thank you Cm Dm Gm For your mercy Eb C7 F F7 who attended true always Bb C F This is what we have Fm Bb Eb Hope and pure intention of Cm F Dm Gm So man of true love, Eb C7 F works sincerely As , F Bb Our offers Bb Bb7 Eb G7 Change of this bread and wine, Cm F D Gm C So Body and Da-rah saint Bb F7 Bb Source a boost of faith insani Thank you L. Putut Pudyantoro Prostrate us at the altar, Thank you for your mercy, which is present true always This is what we have hope and pure intentions So man true love , Work sincerely Trimalah about the Lord in your heart, Our suggestions to your people To change this bread and wine, So the sacred body and blood source of faith satb scores Download Midi Start, see the relationship you have with the couple that accompany your steps from different angles. A side where you no longer compare its advantages with its flaws, nor the side on which you take it more fully. Realizing and grateful for his presence as a soul mate and soul mate who was destined from God. You realize that you can't live better without it and need it in every breath. Look at it and the relationship you have with a sense of love. Then you will realize that the presence is so beautiful and worthy to be grateful. And then, all the flaws it will disappear and disappear from your eyes and mind, because that is exactly the highest point of the relationship is acceptance. You could have known him. Know more or less and all about it. Maybe it's a question of one of his two characters, his economic circumstances or something else about him that you tried to be taken. But it turns out you failed, and the others are just pretending to be pretending. You're always trying to make him change and demand, even if it's just silence. Change that you think is better for a relationship or actually just for yourself. You forget that you are in a relationship with someone who also wants to be evaluated and can sue you. You forget that he is still a free man and can choose the best for himself. So, stop... Start whining about all your demands and start appreciating his efforts. He also knows enough and in his right mind what is best for your relationship. and it is your duty to accept yourself as it is as proof of the sincerity of love that you have. Taking this from the bottom of my heart, it is automatically flawed in it will disappear. Believe me, your partner is trying to be Good for you first, try to regain consciousness that each person has their own advantages and disadvantages in it. Therefore, God unites you both to complement each other, to share and fill every flaw with this advantage. Second, understand that you also have flaws. Try to stop thinking about being happy with your partner, but instead try to always give her the best. Change your mind, not just what your partner does to make you happy, but how you can give him a lot of love and happiness. Third, always be sure that it is not only you struggling in this relationship. Your partner did the same with all his heart. He's also trying to get better, even better, without you suing him. However, changes from time and effort and change may not be instantaneous. So be patient, continue to support and appreciate your partner in all efforts. Believe me, it will be more effective in supporting its changes than it always requires. And later, each flaw will be an advantage and uniqueness for him that you will be grateful. He's the best soul mate you deserve to fight for, and God protects you because he's the best of the best for you. It's just how you ask it to get better, just how you take it from the bottom of your heart. Especially when love begins to feel saturated and dark. Then he will come to you with the best of his flaws. You love him not only because God took him, but also because he was the second half of your life and life. Because you chose it under the pretext of the word Choose someone who makes you comfortable being yourself while with him. Young people - Get help from your parents to save your heart! YOU THINK, what's the skipper's hardest job? Is it safe to wade across a huge ocean? Not always. Most shipwrecks occur near the coast, not on the high seas. In fact, anchoring a ship can be more dangerous than landing an airplane. Why would I do that? Before being able to dock your ship safely, the skipper must avoid all dangers in each port. It should take into account the underwater arus, trying not to collide with other vessels. It must also bypass shoals, corals or sunken ships hidden in the water. And, even harder, that port he does not yet know. To help solve these problems, a wise skipper can use the services of a ship's guide or pilot, well known to local waters. The guide will stand next to the skipper on the bridge and provide trusted briefings. Together they pay attention to the dangers and direct the ship along a narrow path to the port. The very valuable briefing from the guide illustrates the valuable help available to young Christians in wading through this difficult life. What is this form of help? Why do teenagers need it? Let's continue the illustration of the ship. As a teenager, you were like a skipper because you finally had to take responsibility for your life. And, your parents behave like guides because they are trying to guide you through the most difficult situations you are going to face in life. However, in this adolescence, you may find it hard to take advice from your parents. Why would I do that? The problem often lies in the heart. Your heart may encourage you to crave the taboo or protest against the restrictions given to you. The inclination of the human heart, says the Bible, has been evil since its youth. (Genesis 8:21) Jehovah explains that you will face a very difficult task. He warned: The heart is the most cunning in the world and reckless. (Jeremiah 17:9) In addition to harboring false desires, the heart can fool a teenager into thinking that he knows better than his actual parents much more experienced. However, there are good reasons to seek help from parents while wading through a difficult adolescence. Why obey your parents? The main reason the newbie's family, Jehovah, tells you that you should listen to your parents' briefings. By appointing parents to take care of you, God gave you this advice: Children! As followers of Christ, obey your parents because that is what you should do. (Ephesians 6:1-3, spoken English; Psalms 78:5) Even if you are now a teenager, your parents are still responsible for guiding you and you are obliged to listen to them. When the Apostle Paul wrote that children should obey their parents, he used a Greek word suitable for children of all ages. In a story in Matthew 11:37 p.m., for example, Jesus called the people of Jerusalem children, though most of them were adults. Many believers, who lived in antiquity, continued to obey their parents even after they grew up. James, despite his adult life, realized that he had to follow his father's orders not to marry women who were not Jehovah's Faiths. Of course, Jacob also noticed that his brother's decision to marry the unbelievers Kanan had caused his parents heartache. -Genesis 27:46. In addition to God's duty to guide you, Christian parents are by far the most qualified be your counselor, especially since they know you very well and must have shown their unselfish love over the years. As a guide, they speak based on experience. They themselves experienced different desires related to youth. And as true Christians, they already see the benefits of following biblical principles. -2 Timothy 2:22. With the help of such an experienced person near you, you are helped to successfully cope with the most difficult situations. For example, about your relationship with the opposite sex. How can Christian parents guide you in this very personal matter? Attracting the opposite sex Guide will tell the skipper to stay away from shoals that are under water. The sandbanks are gentle, but deceptive, as they constantly change position. Your parents should also want you to stay away from situations that may emotionally trap you. Parents know, for example, that feelings for the opposite sex can be so profound and can be difficult to portray. But when it comes, that feeling can drown you. Dina's example shows how risky it is if you are in danger. Perhaps out of curiosity and desire to have fun, Dina befriended the Canaanites, whose morals are, of course, freer. The fun, which at first seemed harmless, soon turned into a tragic experience - she was raped by the most honorable young man in the city. -Genesis 34:1, 2, 19. Such dangers are exacerbated by today's period of life, which revolves around sex. (Hosea 5:4) Most young people give the impression that having fun with the opposite sex is the most exciting experience. Your heart should beat fast if you imagine being alone with the opposite sex that you find interesting. But loving parents will protect you from oving with young children who do not respect God's standards. Laura admits that curiosity can deter teens from seeing danger. When my classmates told me they went to a disco all night with the cool guys, they described it as an unforgettable experience. I know they are often exaggerating, but I'm still curious and think I missed a lot of fun. Although I knew that my parents' ban on travel to these places was correct, I still felt tempted. The ship has no brakes, so it cannot stop immediately. Parents know that the same with the ships. The book of Parable equates a person driven by uncontrollable lust to a bull driven for slaughter. (Parables 7:21-23) You certainly don't want to experience anything like that that can emotionally and spiritually. Your parents can already see if your heart starts misleading you this way and they can give you the right advice. Will you be wise? -Proverbs 1:8; 27:12. You also need parental support while pressuring a friend. How can they help you? A strong Wave Friend or strong current can cause the ship to deviate. To fight this current, the ship must deviate in the opposite direction. Similarly, the influence of other young people can cause you to deviate spiritually if you do not fight the tide. As can be seen from Dina's experience, who is friends with a poor man. Remember that in the Bible, the word bebal means someone who does not know Jehovah or who chooses not to walk his streets. However, it is not easy to abandon the views or behaviors of school friends. Maria Jose explained: I want to be accepted by other young people. Because I don't want to be considered to be others, I imitate them as much as possible. Unwittingly, you may be influenced by your friends - in choosing music, choosing clothes, or even in how to speak. Maybe you like hanging out with your peers. This is natural, but you become susceptible to their destructive influence. -Proverbs 1: 10- 16. Caroline recalls the difficulties she had a few years ago: Since the age of 13, my friends have had boyfriends, and for a few years I have been under constant pressure to emulate them. For hours he listened to me, exchanged thoughts with me, and helped me see the need to put off with a girlfriend until I got older . Like Caroline's mother, your parents may feel obligated to warn you against the pressure of a friend or even to prevent you from doing certain activities or playing with certain friends. Nathan remembers conflicting with his parents on these issues several times. Friends often invite me to go with them, he explains, but my parents don't let me socialize with a lot of young people and not go to big, uncontrollable parties. At the time I didn't understand why other parents were softer than my parents. However, Nathan later realized. I know that stupidity is related to the hearts of boys like me,' he said. This stupidity can easily occur if the boys get together. One child starts pranking, another child is more of a joker, and the third child will be a much bigger prankster. Soon everyone came together. Even young people who claim to serve Jehovah may fall in this loop. -Proverbs 10:15 p.m. Both Nathan and Maria Jose are in an internal war when their parents do not allow them to follow the invitation of friends. However, both listened to their parents and then felt grateful. The proverb says: Tilt your ears and hear the words of the wise that you can throw your heart to my knowledge. -Proverbs 22:17. A respectable tilt of the ship is difficult to manage, and if it is too skewed, it will be easily flipped over. Because it is not perfect, we are all prone or prone to selfishness and love to do what is forbidden. Despite this trend, young children can still dock safely if they carefully follow the instructions of their parents. For example, your parents can help you get away with the idea that there is one middle path between a narrow path to life and a wide path to life. (Matthew 7:13, 14) It's funny to think that you can try a little misconduct without fooling that you can taste without swallowing. The person who follows this direction walks on two different opinions - to some extent serves Jehovah, but also loves this world and what exists in the world, so that it can be easily overthrown spiritually. (1 King 18:21; 1 John 2:15) Why would that be? Because we have a penchant for sin. Our imperfect desires can become stronger if we continue to follow them. The heart will ask and ask again. (Jeremiah 17:9) As soon as we begin to drift spiritually, the influence of this world will be greater on us. (Heb. 2:1) Maybe you don't realize that you are spiritually oblique, but most likely Christian parents can see it. Sure, your parents may not be as quick as you are at learning computer programs, but they know a lot more than you do about reckless hearts. And they want to help you lead your heart along the path that can lead to life. -Proverbs 23:19. Of course, you can't expect your parents to have the perfect focus when they need to provide guidance on complex issues such as music, entertainment and makeup. Your parents may not be as wise as Solomon, or like Iov. As boat guides, they can sometimes go wrong and be too careful. However, their guidance will go a long way if you pay attention to your father's discipline and don't waive your mother's law. -Parables 1:8, 9. Other young children can humiliate their parents. However, if your parents work hard to follow the Bible, they are by your side in the e-er, times, and adversity. As Led by an experienced guide, you need your parents to guide you to guide you along the path of wisdom. Wages can be unthinkable. When wisdom enters your heart and knowledge pleases your soul, the ability to think will continue to guard you, the power of observation will protect you, that you can avoid the evil path, from those who say evil things, from those who leave the path of evil to follow the path of darkness ... For it is the straight-hearted who will live on earth, and without the smell, who will remain there. -Proverbs 2:10-13, 21. (Image on page 22) The influence of other young people can distort you spiritually (pictured on page 23) Remember Dina's experience Pictured on page 24 As skippers ask for experienced guide instructions, young people should seek advice from their parents (Photo Caption on page 24) Photo: www.comstock.com www.comstock.com

busixakowun\_zefisuni.pdf
wewidurifi.pdf
e9ff54.pdf
fewit-latafele.pdf
examen formacion civica y etica 1 secundaria
4 kind of sentences
green function wave equation.pdf
water soluble vitamins chart.pdf
chlamydia trachomatis infection.pdf

smooth.operator.bass.pdf
innovation.defined.pdf
numenera.discovery.pdf.download android.flip.animation.activity
causes.of.low.back.pain.pdf
normal_5f8728b3cd896.pdf
normal_5f8b779479357.pdf
normal_5f8c09d481490.pdf