Some modes in the TerrariaUnlike PC version of Terraria, the mobile version has no Mediumcore or hardcore mode. Everything is ready for the most basic level, Softcore. SoftcoreWhen, playing on Softcore, the level of punishment for those who died is relatively light. You will only lose about 1/3 (sometimes 2/3) of the goods in the inventory and about half the gold you have. This penalty is relatively small if you compare it to Mediumcore (lose all the items in your inventory and gold), or hardcore (expelled from the world). In addition, the mobile version of Terraria retains 2 levels of difficulty of the game, Pre-hardmode (easy level) and Hardmode (hard level). Pre-hardmode When the name implies, Pre-hardmode is a relatively simple mode to bring a new player experience. In Pre-hardmode, the number of spawn enemies (accidentally generated) is relatively low, the enemy also tends to have less health and less aggression. Players easily learn about the mechanism of the game without worrying too much about the enemy. Hardmode With a lot of enemies spawn and more often, Hardmode is a mode for those who like to experience battle when both blood, attack and the number of enemies increase dramatically. You will have to use all your knowledge and skills to survive in this mode. Also, the boss in Hardmode is harder and with more numbers than the usual mode, if you are passionate about wrestling, then HardMode will be the perfect mode. So you think you're ready for Hardmod?
